

39 521

THE

EXPEDITION OF

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

By the AUTHOR of

-----Quorlum hæc tam putida tendunt, Furcifer? ad te, inquam----- Hor.

ALTENBOURG: printed and fold by RICHTER, 1785.

32.11 B

To Mr. HENRY DAVIS, Bookfeller, in London.

Abergavenny, Aug. 4.

RESPECTED SIR,

HAVE received your effeemed favour of the 13th ultimo, whereby it appeareth, that you have perused those fame Letters, which were delivered unto you by my friend the reverend Mr. Hugo Bhen; and I am pleafed to find you think they may be printed with a good prospect of fuccess; in as much as the objections you mention, I humbly conceive, are fuch as may be redargued, if not entirely removed.——And, first, in the first place, as touching what profecutions may arife from printing the private correspondence of persons fill living, give me leave, with all due fubmiffion, to observe, that the Letters in question were not written and fent under the feal of fecrecy, that they have no tendency to the mala fama, or prejudice of any perfon whatfoever; 'sun rather to the information and edi-A 2 fication fication of mankind: fo that it becometh a fort of duty to promulgate them in u/um publicum. Befides. I have confulted Mr. Davy Higgins. an eminent attorney of this place, who, after due infpection and confideration, declareth. That he doth not think the faid Letters contain any matter which will be held actionable in the eve of the law. Finally, if you and I fhould come to a right understanding, I do declare in verbo facerdotis, that, in cafe of any fuch profecution, I will take the whole upon my own shoulders, even quoad fine and imprifonment, though, I must confess, I should not care to undergo flagellation: Tam ad turpitudinem, quam ad amaritudinem, poena Spectans-Secondly, concerning the perfonal refentment of Mr. Juffice Lifmahago, I may fay, non flocci facio-I would not willingly vilipend any Christian, if, peradventure, he deserveth that epithet: albeit, I am much furprifed that more care is not taken to exclude from the commission all such vagrant foreigners as may be justly suspected of difaffection to our happy conflitution, in church and flate-God forbid that I fhould be fo uncharitable, as to affirm politively, that the faid Lilmahago is no better than a Jesuit in disguise; but this I will affert and maintain, totis viribus, that, from the day he qualified, he has never been once seen intra templi parietes, that is to say, within the parish church.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, with respect to what passed at Mr. Kendal's table, when the faid Lismahago was fo brutal in his reprehensions, I must inform you, my good Sir, that I was obliged to retire, not by fear arising from his minatory reproaches, which, as I faid above, I value not of a rush; but from the fudden effect produced by a barbel's row, which I had eaten at dinner, not knowing, that the faid row is at certain feasons violently cathartic, as Galen observeth in his chapter $\pi eeu rx \theta vs$.

Fourthly, and laftly, with reference to the manner in which I got poffellion of thefe Letters, it is a circumfrance that concerns my own confcience only; fufficeth it to fay, I have fully fatisfied the parties in whofe cuftody they were; and, by this time, I hope I have alfo fatisfied you in fuch ways, that the laft hand may be put to our agreement, and the work proceed with all convenient expedition; in which hope I reft,

respected Sir,

your very humble fervant,

JONATHAN DUSTWICH.

P. S.

P. S. I purpole, Deo volente, to have the pleasure of seeing you in the great city, towards All hallow-tide, when I shall be glad to treat with you concerning a parcel of MS. sermons, of a certain clergyman deceased; a' cake of the right leaven, for the present taste of the public. Verbum fapienti, &c.

J. D.

To the Revd. Mr. JONATHAN DUSTWICH at-

• 5

SIR.

RECEIVED yours in course of post, and fhall be glad to treat with you for the MS. which I have delivered to your friend Mr. Bhen; but can by no means comply with the terms proposed. Those things are so uncertain -Writing is all a lottery-I have been a lofer by the works of the greateft men of the age-I could mention particulars, and name names: hut don't choose it-The taste of the town is fo changeable. Then there have been fo many letters upon travels lately published-What between Smollett's, Sharp's, Derrick's, Thickness's, Baltimore's, and Baretti's, together with Shandy's Sentimental Travels, the public feems to be cloved with that kind of entertainment-----Nevertheles, I will, if you please, run the rifque of printing and publishing, and you shall have half the profits of the impression -You need not take the trouble to bring up your sermons on my account-No body reads fer-fermons but Methodifts and Diffenters____ Befides, for my own part, I am quite a stranger to that fort of reading; and the two perfons, whole judgment I depended upon in these matters, are out of the way; one is gone abroad, carpenter of a man of war; and the other has been filly enough to ablcond, in order to avoid a profecution for blafphemy-I'm a great lofer by his going off-He has left a manual of devotion half finished on my hands, after having received money for the whole copy-He was the foundeft divine, and had the most orthodox pen of all my people; and I never knew his judgment fail, but in flying from his bread and butter on this occafion.

A 4

By owning you was not put in bodily fear by Lifmahago, you preclude yourfelf from the benefit of a good plea, over and above the advantage of binding him over. In the late war, I inferted in my evening paper, a paragraph that came by the poft, reflecting upon the behaviour of a certain regiment in battle. An officer of the faid regiment came to my fhop, and, in the prefence of my wife and journeyman, threatened to cut off my ears—As I exhibited marks of bodily fear, more ways than one, to the conviction of the bye-ftanders, I bound him over; my action lay, and I recover-. ed. As for flagellation you have nothing to fear, fear, and nothing to hope, on that head ____ There has been but one printer flogged at the cart's tail these thirty years; that was Charles Watfon; and he affured me it was no more than a flea-bite. C-S-has been threatened feveral times by the Houfe of L-; but it came If an information should be to nothing. moved for, and granted against you, as the editor of these Letters, I hope you will have honefly and wit enough to appear and take your trial-If you fhould be fentenced to the pillory, your fortune is made-As times go. that's a fure flep to honour and preferment. I shall think myself happy if I can lend you'a lift; and am, very fincerely,

yours,

London Aug. 10th.

HENRY DAVIS.

Pleafe

Pleafe my kind fervice to your neighbour, my coufin Madoc.——I have fent an Almanack and Court-kalendar, directed for him at Mr. Sutton's, bookfeller in Gloucester, carriage paid, which he will pleafe to accept as a simall token of my regard. My wife, who is very fond of toasted cheefe, prefents her compliments to him, and begs to know if there's any of that kind, which he was fo good as to fend us last Christmas, to be fold in London.

H. D.

THE

EXPEDITION

OF

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

To Dr. Lewis.

DOCTOR,

HE pills are good for nothing-I might as well fwallow fnow-balls to cool my reins -I have told you over and over, how hard I am to move; and at this time of day. I ought to know fomething of my own conftitution. Whv will you be fo politive? Prithee fend me another prefcription-I am as lame and as much tortured in all my limbs as if I was broke upon the wheel: indeed, I am equally diffreffed in mind and body-As if I had not plagues enough of my own, those children of my filter are left me for a perpetual fource of vexation-What bufinefs have people to get children to plague their neighbours? A ridiculous incident that happened yesterday to my niece Liddy, has difordered me

in

in fuch a manner, that I expect to be laid up with another fit of the gout-perhaps, I may explain myfelf in my next. I fhall fet out tomorrow morning for the Hot-Well at Briftol. where I am afraid I fhall flay longer than I could wifh. On the receipt of this, fend Williams thither with my faddle-horfe and the demi pique. Tell Barnes to threfh out the two old ricks. and fiend the corn to market, and fell it off to the poor at a fhilling a bufhel under market price.---I have received a fnivelling letter from Griffin. offering to make a public fubmiffion and pay cofts. I want none of his fubmiffions: neither will I pocket any of his money-The fellow is a bad neighbour, and I defire to have nothing to do with him: but as he is purfe-proud, he fhall pay for his infolence: let him give five pounds to the poor of the parifh, and I'll withdraw my action; and in the mean time you may tell Prig to ftop proceedings,-Let Morgan's widow have the Alderney cow, and forty fhillings to clothe her children: but don't fay a fyllable of the matter to any living foul--I'll make her pay when fhe is able. I defire you will lock up all my drawers, and keep the keys till meeting; and be fure you take the iron-cheft with my papers into your own cuftody-Forgive all this trouble from,

Dear Lewis

Your affectionate

Gloucester, April 2.

1

M. BRAMBLE.

Τo

13

To Mrs. GWILLIM, Houle-keeper, at Blambleton-hall.

MRS. GWITLIM,

WHEN this rums to hand, be fure to pack up in the trunk mae that flands in my closet. to be fent me in the Briftol waggon without lofs of time, the following articles, viz. my role-collard neglejay, with green robins, my yellow damask, and my black velvet fuit, with the fhort hoop: my bloo quilt d pettycot, my green manteel, my laced apron. ny French commode, Macklin head and lappets, and litel box with my jowls. Williams may bring over my bum-daffee, and the viol! with the enfings of Dr. Hill's dock-water, and Chowder's lackitif. The poor creature has been terribly confluprated ever fince we left huom Pray take particular care of the house while the family is absent. Let there be a fire constantly kept in my brother's chamber and mine. The maids, having nothing to do, may be fat a fpin. I defire you'll clap a pad-luck on the ning. wind-feller, and let none of the men have excels to the ftrong beer-don't forget to have the gate thit every evening before dark. - The gardnir and the hind may lie below in the landry, to partake the house, with the blunderbuss and the great dog; and I hope you'll have a watchful eye over the naids. I know that huffy, Mary Jones, loves to be rumping with the men. Let me know if Alder-

1

14 THE EXPEDITION OF

Alderney's calf be fould yet, and what he fought —if the ould goole be fitting; and if the cobler has cut Dicky, and how the pore anemil bore the operation.—No more at prefent, but refts,

Yours,

CII 0	A	_ 1
Gloftar,	ADTIL	2.
Q101(~)

TABITH, BRAMBLE,

To Mrs. MARY JONES, at Branbleton-hall.

DEAR MOLLY,

HEAVING this importunity, I fend my love tto you and Saul, being in good health, and hopachg to heer the fame from you; and that you tcand Saul will take my poor kitten to bed with thyou this cold weather.-We have been all in a had taking here at Gloftar-Mifs Liddy had like toto have run away with a player-man, and young f mafter and he would adone themfelves a mifchief; but the 'fquire applied to the mare, and they were bound over .--- Mistrefs bid me not speak a word of the matter to any Christian foul-no more I fhall: for, we fervints fhould fee all and fay nothing-But what was worfe than all this, Chowder has had the misfortune to be worried by a butcher's dog, and came home in a terrible pickle

HUMPHRY CLINKER 15

nickle-Miftrefs was caken with the afterifks. but they foon went of. The doctor was fent for to. Chowder, and he fubicribed a repolitory. which did him grat fervice-thank God he's now in a fair wy to do well-pray take care of my box and the pillyber, and put them under vour own bed : for, I do suppose, madam Gwyllim will be a rying into my fecrets, now my back is turned. John Thomas is in good health, but fulky. The 'fquire gave away an ould coat to a poor mar; and John fays as how 'tis robbing him of his parquifites.-----I told him, by his agreement he was to receive no vails; but he favs as how there's a difference betwixt vails and parquifites; and fo there is for fartain. We are all going to the Hot-Well, where I fhall drink your health in a glafs of water, being,

Dear Molly,

Your humble fervant to command,

Gloftar, April 2.

WIN. JENKINS.

16 THE EXPEDITION OF

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jelus College, Oxon.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

AS I have nothing more at hart than to convince you I am incapable of forgetting, or neglecting the friendship I made at college, I now begin that correspondence by letters, which you and I agreed, at parting, to cultivate. I begin it fooner than I intended, that you may have it in your power to refute any idle reports which may be circulated to my prejudice at Oxford, touching a foolifh quarrel, in which I have been involved on account of my fifter, who had been fome time fettled here in a boarding fchool. When I came hither with my uncle and aunt (who are our guardians) to fetch her away, I found her a fine, tall girl, of feventeen, with an agreeable perfon; but remarkably fimple, and quite ignorant of the world. This disposition, and want of experience, had exposed her to the addreffes of a perfon-I know not what to call him, who had feen her at a play; and, with a confidence and dexterity peculiar to himfelf, found means to be recommended to her acquaintance. It was by the greatest accident I intercepted one of his letters; as it was my duty to ftifle this correspondence in its birth, I made it my bufiness to find him out, and tell him very freely freely my fentiments of the matter. The fpark did not like the file I used, and behaved with abun. dance of mettle. Though his rank in life (which, by the bye, I am ashamed to declare) did not entitle him to much deference; yet as his behaviour was remarkably spirited, I admitted him to the privilege of a gentleman, and fomething might have happened, had not we been prevented.-In fhort, the business took air, I know not how, and made abundance of noife-recourfe was had to juffice-I was obliged to give my word and honour, &c. and to-morrow morning we fet out for Briftol Wells, where I expect to hear from you by the return of the post.--- I have got into a family of originals, whom I may one day attempt to defcribe for your amufement. My aunt, Mrs. Tabitha Bramble, is a maiden of forty-five, exceedingly flarched, vain, and ridiculous.-My uncle is an odd kind of humorift. always on the fret, and fo unpleafant in his manner. that, rather than be obliged to keep him company. I'd refign all claim to the inheritance of his effate,-----Indeed, his being tortured by the gout may have foured his temper, and, perhaps. I may like him better on further acquaintance: certain it is, all his fervants and neighbours in the country, are fond of him, even to a degree of enthufiafm, the reafon of which I cannot as yet comprehend. Remember me to Griffy Price, Gwyn, Manfel, Baffet, and all the reft of my old Cambrian companions.----VOL. I. Salute в

17

13 THE EXPEDITION OF

Salute the bedmaker in my name—give my fervice to the cook, and pray take care of poor Ponto, for the fake of his old mafter, who is, and ever will be,

Dear Phillips,

Your affectionate friend,

and humble fervant,

Gloucester, April 2.

JER. MELFORD.

To Mrs. JERMYN, at her house in Gloucester.

DEAR MADAM,

HAVING no mother of my own, I hope you will give me leave to difburden my poor heart to you, who have always acted the part of a kind parent to me, ever fince I was put under your care.—Indeed, and indeed, my worthy governefs may believe me, when I affure her, that I never harboured a thought that was otherwife than virtuous; and, if God will give me grace, I fhall never behave fo as to caft a reflection on the care you have taken in my education. I confefs I have given juft caufe of offence .by my want of prudence and experience. I ought not not to have liftened to what the young man faid; and it was my duty to have told you all that paffed, but I was ashamed to mention it; and then he behaved fo modelt and refpectful, and . feemed to be fo melancholy and timorous, that I could not find in my heart to do any thing that fhould make him miferable and desperate. As for familiarities, I do declare, I never once allowed him the favour of a falute; and as to the few letters that paffed between us, they are all in my uncle's hands, and I hope they contain nothing contrary to innocence and honour.-----I am ftill perfuaded that he is not what he appears to be: but time will difcover-mean-while T will endeavour to forget a connection, which is fo difpleafing to my family. I have cried without ceafing, and have not tafted any thing but tea, fince I was hurried away from you; nor did I once clofe my eyes for three nights running.----My aunt continues to chide me feverely when we are by ourfelves; but I hope to foften her in time, by humility and fubmiffion .- My uncle, who was fo dreadfully paffionate in the beginning, has been moved by my tears and diffrefs; and is now all tendernefs and compaffion; and my brother is reconciled to me, on my promife to break off all correspondence with that unfortunate youth: but, notwithftanding all their indulgence, I fhall have no peace of mind till I know my dear and ever honoured B 2 gover-

19

20 THE EXPEDITION OF

governels has forgiven her poor, difconsolate, forlorn.

Affectionate humble fervant,

till death,

Clifton, April 6.

LYDIA MELFORD.

To Mifs LÆTITIA WILLIS, at Gloucester.

My DEAREST LETTY,

I AM in fuch a fright, left this fhould not come fafe to hand by the conveyance of Jarvis the carrier, that I beg you will write to me, on the receipt of it, directing to me, under cover, to Mrs. Winifred Jenkins, my aunt's maid, who is a good girl, and has been fo kind to me in affliction, that I have made her my confidant; as for Jarvis, he was very fly of taking charge of my letter and the little parcel, becaufe his fifter Sally had like to have loft her place on my account: indeed I cannot blame the man for his caution; but I have made it worth his while .--My dear companion and bed-fellow, it is a grievous addition to my other misfortunes, that I am deprived of your agreeable company and conversation, at a time when I need fo much the com-

21

comfort of your good humour and good fenfe: but, I hope, the friendfhip we contracted at the boarding.fchool, will last for life-I doubt not but on my fide it will daily increase and improve. as I gain experience, and learn to know the value of a true friend.-O, my dear Letty! what fhall I fay about poor Mr. Wilfon? I have promifed to break off all correspondence, and, if poffible, to forget him; but, alas! I begin to perceive that will not be in my power. As it is by no means proper that the picture fhould remain in my hands, left it fhould be the occafion of more mifchief, I have fent it to you by this opportunity, begging you will either keep it fafe till better times, or return it to Mr. Wilfon himfelf, who, I fuppofe, will make it his business to see you at the usual place. If he fhould be low-fpirited at my fending back his picture, you may tell him I have no occasion for a picture, while the original continues engraved on my-But no; I would not have you tell him that neither; because there must be an end of our correspondence—I wish he may forget me, for the sake of his own peace; and yet if he fould, he must be a barbarous-But 'tis impoffible-poor Wilfon cannot be falfe and inconftant: I beseech him not to write to me, nor attempt to fee me for fome time; for, confidering the refentment and paffionate temper of my brother Jery, fuch an attempt might be attended with confequences that would make us all miferable '

B 3

ferable for life——let us truft to time and the chapter of accidents; or rather to that providence which will not fail, fooner or later, to reward thofe that walk in the paths of honour and virtue.—I would offer my love to the young ladies, but it is not fit that any of them fhould know you have received this letter.—If we go to Bath, I fhall fend you my fimple remarks upon that famous centre of polite amufement, and every other place we may chance to vifit; and I flatter myfelf that my dear Mifs Willis will be punctual in anfwering the letters of her affectionate

Clifton, April 6.

LYDIA MELFORD.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR LEWIS,

I HAVE followed your directions with fome fuccefs, and might have been upon my legs by this time, had the weather permitted me to ufe my faddle-horfe. I rode out upon the Downs laft Tuefday, in the forenoon, when the fky, as far as the vifible horizon, was without a cloud; but before I had gone a full mile, I was overtaken inftantaneoufly by a florm of rain that wef me to the fkin in three minutes—whence it came the the devil knows; but it has laid me up (I fuppose) for one fortnight. It makes me fick to hear people talk of the fine air upon Clifton-Downs: how can the air be either agreeable or faiutary, where the daemon of vapours descends in a perpetual drizzle? My confinement is the more intolerable, as I am furrounded with domeffic vexations .--- My niece has had a dangerous fit of illnefs, occasioned by that curfed incident at Gloucefter, which I mentioned in my laft .--She is a poor good-natured fimpleton, as foft as butter, and as eafily melted----not that fhe's a fool-the girl's parts are not defpicable, and her education has not been neglected; that is to fay, fhe can write and fpell, and fpeak French, and play upon the harpfichord; then fhe dances finely. has a good figure, and is very well inclined; but, fhe's deficient in spirit, and fo susceptible-and fo tender forfooth !----- truly, fhe has got a languishing eye, and reads romances-Then there's her brother, 'fquire Jery, a pert jackanapes. full of college petulance and felf-conceit; proud as a German count, and as hot and hafty as a Welch mountaineer. As for that fantaftical animal. my fifter Tabby, you are no ftranger to her qualifications-I vow to God, fhe is fometimes fo intolerable, that I almost think she's the devil incarnate come to torment me for my fins; and yet I am confcious of no fins that ought to entail fuch family-plagues upon me-why the devil fhould not I shake off these torments at once? I B A an't an't married to Tabby, thank Heaven! nor did I beget the other two: let them choose another guardian: for my part, I an't in a condition to take care of myself; much less to superintend the conduct of giddy-headed boys and girls. Von earneftly defire to know the particulars of our adventure at Gloucester, which are briefly thefe, and I hope they will go no further :-----Liddy had been fo long cooped up in a boarding-fchool, which, next to a nunnery, is the worft kind of feminary that ever was contrived for young women, that fhe became as inflammable as touchwood; and going to a play in holyday-time,-'Ideath, I'm ashamed to tell you! she fell in love with one of the actors-a handfome young fellow that goes by the name of Wilfon. The rafcal foon perceived the impreffion he had made. and managed matters fo as to fee her at a houfe where fhe went to drink tea with her governefs. -This was the beginning of a correspondence, which they kept up by means of a jade of a milliner, who made and dreffed caps for the girls at the boarding-fchool. When we arrived at Gloucefter, Liddy came to flay at lodgings with her aunt, and Wilfon bribed the maid to deliver a letter into her own hands; but it feems Jery had already acquired fo much credit with the maid, (by what means he best knows) that she carried the letter to him, and fo the whole plot was difcovered. The rafh boy, without faving a word of the matter to me, went immediately in in fearch of Wilfon; and, I fuppofe, treated him with infolence enough. The theatrical hero was too far gone in romance to brook fuch usage: he replied in blank verfe, and a formal challenge enfued. They agreed to meet early next morning and decide the difpute with fword and piftol. I heard nothing at all of the affair, till Mr. Morley came to my bedfide in the morning, and told me he was afraid my nephew was going to fight, as he had been overheard talking very loud and vehement with Wilfon at the young man's lodgings the night before, and afterwards went and bought powder and ball at a fhop in the neighbourhood. I got up immediately, and upon inquiry found he was just gone out. I begged Morley to knock up the mayor, that he might interpole as a magiltrate, and in the mean time I hobbled after the fquire, whom I faw at a diftance walking at a great pace towards the city gate-in fpite of all my efforts. I could not come up till our two combatants had taken their ground, and were priming their piftols. An old houfe luckily fcreened me from their view; fo that I rushed upon them at once, before I was perceived. They were both confounded, and attempted to make their escape different ways; but Morley coming up with constables at that instant, took Wilson into custody, and Jery followed him quietly to the mayor's house. All this time I was ignorant of what had passed the preceding day; and neither of the parties would difcover a tittle of the matter. The mayor obferved that it was great prefumption in Wilfon, who was a ftroller, to proceed to fuch extremities with a gentleman of family and fortune: and threatened to commit him on the vagrant act.-The young fellow buffled up with great fpirit, declaring he was a gentleman, and would be treated as fuch: but he refused to explain himfelf further. The mafter of the company being fent for, and examined, touching the faid Wilfon, faid the young man had engaged with him at Birmingham about fix months ago; but never would take his falary; that he had behaved fo well in his private character, as to acquire the respect and good-will of all his acquaintance, and that the public owned his merit. as an actor, was altogether extraordinary.-After all, I fancy, he will turn out to be a run-away prentice from London .----- The manager offered to bail him for any fum, provided he would give his word and honour that he would keep the peace; but the young gentleman was on his high ropes, and would by no means lay himfelf under any reftrictions: on the other hand, Hopefull was equally obffinate; till at length the mayor declared, that if they both refused to be bound over, he would immediately commit Wilfon as a vagrant to hard labour, I own I was much pleafed with Jery's behaviour on this occasion: he faid that rather than Mr. Wilfon should be treated in fuch an ignominious manner, he would give his word and honour to profecute the affair

23

no further while they remained at Gloucester-Wilfon thanked him for his generous manner of proceeding, and was difcharged. On our return to our lodgings, my nephew explained the whole mystery; and I own I was exceedingly incenfed. -Liddy being questioned on the fubject, and very feverely reproached by that wild-cat my fifter Tabby, first swooned away, then diffolving into a flood of tears, confessed all the particulars of the correspondence, at the fame time giving up three letters, which was all fhe had received from her admirer. The laft, which Jery intercepted, I fend you inclosed, and when you have read it, I dare fay you won't wonder at the progrefs the writer had made in the heart of a fimple girl, utterly unacquainted with the characters of mankind. Thinking it was high time to remove her from fuch a dangerous connection. I carried her off the very next day to Briftol; but the poor creature was fo frightened and fluttered. by our threats and expostulations, that she fell fick the fourth day after our arrival at Clifton. and continued fo ill for a whole week, that her life was defpaired of. It was not till yefterday that Dr. Rigge declared her out of danger. You cannot imagine what I have fuffered, partly from the indifcretion of this poor child, but much more from the fear of lofing her entirely. This air is intolerably cold, and the place quite folitary-I never go down to the well without returning tow-fpirited: for there I meet with half a dozen

2

poor

27

poor emaciated creatures, with ghoftly looks, in the last stage of a confumption, who have made fhift to linger through the winter. like fo many exotic plants languishing in a hot-house; but, in all appearance, will drop into their graves before the fun has warmth enough to mitigate the rigour of this upgenial fpring .----- If you think the Bath water will be of any fervice to me. I will go thither as foon as my niece can bear the motion of the coach .--- Tell Barns I am obliged to him for his advice; but don't choose to follow it. If Davis voluntarily offers to give up the farm, the other shall have it; but I will not begin at this time of day to diffrefs my tenants, because they are unfortunate, and cannot make regular payments: I wonder that Barns fhould think me capable of fuch oppreffion-As for Higgins. the fellow is a notorious poacher to be fure: and an impudent rafcal to fet his mares in my own paddock; but, I fuppofe, he thought he had fome right (especially in my absence) to partake of what nature feems to have intended for common use-you may threaten him in my name, as much as you pleafe, and if he repeats the offence, let me know it before you have recourfe to juffice.----I know you are a great sportsman, and oblige many of your friends: I need not tell you to make use of my grounds: but it may be neceffary to hint, that I'm more sfraid of my fowling-piece than of my game. When you can spare two or three brace of parpartridges, fend them over by the ftage-coach, and tell Gwyllim that fhe forgot to pack up my flannels and wide fhoes in the trunk-mail------I fhall trouble you as ufual, from time to time, 'till at laft, I fuppofe, you will be tired of correfponding with

Your affored friend,

Clifton, April 17.

M. BRAMBLE.

To Mifs Lydia Melford.

MISS WILLIS has pronounced my doomyou are going away, dear Mifs Melford !----you are going to be removed, I know not whither! what fhall I do? which way fhall I turn for confolation? I know not what I fayall night long have I been toffed in a fea of doubts and fears, uncertainty and diffraction. without being able to connect my thoughts. much lefs to form any confiftent plan of conduct -I was even tempted to with that I had never feen you: or that you had been less amiable, or lefs compaffionate to your poor Wilfon; and yet it would be detestable ingratitude in me to form fuch a wifh, confidering how much I am indebted to your goodnefs, and the ineffable pleafure I have derived from your indulgence and approbation bation-Good God! I never heard your name mentioned without emotion ! the most diffant prospect of being admitted to your company, filled my whole foul with a kind of pleasing alarm! as the time approached, my heart beat with redoubled force, and every nerve thrilled with a transport of expectation; but, when I found my. felf actually in your prefence ;-----when I heard you speak;-----when I faw you smile; when I beheld your charming eyes turned favourably upon me; my breaft was filled with fuch tumults of delight, as wholly deprived me of the power of utterance, and wrapt me in a delirium of joy! -encouraged by your fweetnefs of temper and affability, I ventured to defcribe the feelings of my heart-even then you did not check my prefumption-you pitied my fufferings, and gave me leave to hope-you put a favourable-perhaps too favourable a construction, on my appearance-certain it is, I am no player in love -I fpeak the language of my own heart; and have no prompter but nature.-----Yet there is fomething in this heart, which I have not yet disclosed-I flattered myself-But, I will not-I must not proceed-Dear Miss Liddy! for Heaven's fake, contrive, if poffible, fome means of letting me speak to you before you leave Gloucester; otherwife, I know not what will -But I begin to rave again ----- I will erdeavour to bear this trial with fortitude-while I am capable of reflecting upon your tendernefs and truth.

30 THE EXPEDITION OF

truth, I furely have no caufe to defpair—yet I am firangely affected. The fun feems to deny me light—a cloud hangs over me, and there is a dreadful weight upon my fpirits! While you ftay in this place, I fhall continually hover about your lodgings, as the parted foul is faid to linger about the grave where its mortal confort lies— I know, if it is in your power, you will tafk your humanity—your compaffion—fhall I add, your affection? in order to affuage the almost intolerable difquiet that torments the heart of your afflicted

Gloucester, March 31.

WILSON.

To Sir WATKIN PHILIPS of Jefus College, Oxon.

Hot Well, April 18,

DEAR PHILIPS,

I GIVE Manfel credit for his invention, in propagating the report that I had a quarrel with a mountebank's Merry Andrew at Gloucester: but I have too much respect for every appendage of wit, to quarrel even with the lowest buffoonery; and therefore I hope Manfel and I shall always be good friends. I cannot, however, approve approve of his drowning my poor dog Ponto, on purpofe to convert Ovid's pleonafm into a punning epitaph—deerant quoque Littora Ponto: for that he threw him into the Ifis, when it was fo high and impetuous, with no other view than to kill the fleas, is an excufe that will not hold water—But I leave poor Ponto to his fate, and hope Providence will take care to accommodate Manfel with a drier death.

As there is nothing that can be called company at the Well, I am here in a flate of abfolute ruffication: This, however, gives me leifure to obferve the fingularities in my uncle's character, which feems to have interested your curiofity. The truth is, his difposition and mine, which, like oil and vinegar, repelled one another at firft. have now begun to mix by dint of being beat up together. I was once apt to belive him a complete Cynic: and that nothing but the neceffity of his occafions could compel him to get within the pale of fociety-I am now of another opinion, I think his peevifhnefs arifes partly from bodily pain, and partly from a natural excels of mental fenfibility; for, I fuppofe, the mind as well as the body, is in fome cafes endued with a morbid excess of fensation.

I was tother day much diverted with a converfation that paffed in the Pump room, betwixt him and the famous Dr. L----n, who is come to ply at the Well for patients. My uncle was complaining of the ftink, occafioned by the vaft quantity quantity of mud and flime, which the river leaves at low ebb under the windows of the Pumproom. He observed, that the exhalations from fuch a nuifance, could not but be prejudicial to the weak lungs of many confumptive patients, who came to drink the water. The Doctor overhearing this remark, made up to him, and affured him he was mittaken. He faid, people in general were fo mifled by vulgar prejudices. that philosophy was hardly sufficient to undeceive Then humming thrice, he aflumed a them. most ridiculous folemnity of aspect, and entered into a learned investigation of the nature of flink. He observed, that stink, or stench, meant no more than a firong impression on the olfactory nerves; and might be applied to fubftances of the most opposite qualities; that in the Dutch language, finken fignified the most agreeable perfume. as well as the most fetid odour, as appears in Van Vloudel's translation of Horace, in that beautiful ode, Quis multa gracilis, &c.-The words liquidis perfusus odoribus, he translates van civet & moschata gestinken; that individuals differed toto calo in their opinion of fmells. which, indeed, was altogether as arbitrary as the opinion of beauty; that the French were pleased with the putrid effluvia of animal food; and fo were the Hottentots in Africa, and the Savages in Greenland; and that the Negroes on the coaft of Senegal would not touch fifh till it was rotten; ftrong prefumptions in favour of what is VOL. I. C generally generally called fink, as those nations are in a ftate of nature, undebauched by luxury, unfeduced by whim and caprice: that he had reafon to believe the ftercoraceous flavour, condemned by prejudice as a ftink, was, in fact, most agreeable to the organs of fmelling; for, that every perfor who pretended to naufeate the fmell of another's excretions, fnuffed up his own with particular ' complacency; for the truth of which, he appealed to all the ladies and gentlemen then prefent: he faid the inhabitants of Madrid and Edinburgh found particular fatisfaction in breathing their own atmosphere, which was always impregnated with flercoraceous effluvia: that the learned Dr. B---, in his treatife on the Four Digeftions, explains in what manner the volatile effluyia from the inteffines, ftimulate and promote the operations of the animal oeconomy: he affirmed, the last Grand Duke of Tuscany, of the Medicis family, who refined upon fenfuality with the fpirit of a philosopher, was so delighted with that odour, that he caufed the effence of ordure to be extracted, and used it as the most delicious perfume: that he himfelf, (the Doctor) when he happened to be low-fpirited, or fatigued with bufinefs, found immediate relief and uncommon fatisfaction from hanging over the ftale contents of a close-ftool, while his fervant ftirred it about under his nofe: nor was this effect to be wondered at, when we confider that this fubftance abounds with the felf-fame volatile falts that are

ſo

i

fo greedily fmelled to by the most delicate invalids, after they have been extracted and fublimed by the chymifts .- By this time the company began to hold their nofes : but the Doctor, without taking the least notice of this fignal, proceeded to fhew, that many fetid fubftances were not only agreeable but falutary; fuch as affafatida, and other medicinal gums, refins, roots and vegetables, over and above burnt feathers, tan-pits. candle-fnuffs, &c. In fhort, he used many learned arguments to perfuade his audience out of their fenfes; and from stench made a transition to filth, which he affirmed was also a mistaken idea, in as much as objects fo called, were no other than certain modifications of matter, confifting of the fame principles that enter into the composition of all created effences, whatever they may be: that in the filthieft production of nature a philosopher, confidered nothing but the earth, water, falt, and air of which it was compounded: that, for his own part, he had no more objection to drinking the dirtiest ditch-water, than he had to a glafs of water from the Hot Well, provided he was affured there was nothing poifonous in the concrete. Then addreffing himfelf to my uncle, "Sir, (faid he) you feem to be of a dropfi-"cal habit, and probably will foon have a con-"firmed afcites; if I should be prefent when you "are tapped, I will give you a convincing proof "of what I affert, by drinking without hefitation "the water that comes out of your abdomen." ---

C 2

The

The ladies made wry faces at this declaration, and my uncle changing colour told him he did not defire any fuch proof of his philosophy: "But I fhould be glad to know (fid he) what "makes you think I am of a dropfical habit?" "Sir, I beg pardon (replied the Doctor) I per-"ceive your ankles are fwelled, and you feem to "have the facies leucophlegmatica. Perhaps, in-"deed, your diforder may be ædematous, or "gouty, or it may be the lues venerea: if you "have any reason to flatter yourself it is this last, "Sir, I will undertake to cure you with three "fmall pills, even if the difeafe fhould have at-"tained its utmost inveteracy. Sir, it is an ar-"canum which I have difcovered, and prepared "with infinite labour .--- Sir, I have lately cured "a woman in Brifol-a common prostitute, Sir, "who had got all the worft fymptoms of the "diforder; fuch as nodi, tophi, and gummata, "verruce. criste Galli, and a serpiginous erup-"tion, or rather a pocky itch all over her body. "---By that time fhe had taken the fecond pill. "Sir, by Heaven! fhe was as fmooth as my "hand, and the third made her as found and as "fresh as a new born infant." "Sir, (cried my "uncle peevifuly) I have no reason to flatter my. -"felf that my diforder comes within the efficacy "of your noftrum. But this patient, you talk of, "may not be fo found at bottom as you imagine." "I can't poffibly be miftaken, (rejoined the phy-"fician) for I have had communication with her "three

. . .

"three times-I always afcertain my cures in "that manner." At this remark, all the ladies retired to another corner of the room, and fome of them began to fpit-As to my uncle, though he was ruffled at first by the doctor's faying he was dropfical, he could not help fmiling at this ridiculous confession, and, I suppose, with a view to punish this original, told him there was a wart upon his nofe, that looked a little fufpicious. "I don't pretend to be a judge of "these matters, (said he) but I understand that "warts are often produced by the distemper; and "that one upon your nofe feeems to have taken "poffelfion of the very key-ftone of the bridge "which I hope is in no danger of falling." L-n feemed a little confounded at this remark, and affured him it was nothing but a common excrefcence of the cuticula, but that the bones were all found below; for the truth of this affertion he appealed to the touch, defiring he would feel the part. My uncle faid it was a matter of fuch delicacy to meddle with a gentleman's nofe, that he declined the office-----upon which the Doctor, turning to me, intreated me to do him that favour. I complied with his requeft, and handled it fo roughly, that he fneezed, and the tears ran down his cheeks, to the no fmall entertainment of the company, and particularly of my uncle, who burft out a laughing for the first time fince I have been with him: and took notice that the part feemed to be very tender. "Sir, (cried the C 3

"the Doctor) it is naturally a tender part; but, "to remove all poffibility of doubt, I will take "off the wart this very night."

As I have fomething elfe to fay; and this letter has run to an unconficionable length, I fhall now give you a little refpite, and trouble you again by the first post. I wish you would take it in your head to retaliate these double strokes upon

Your's always,

J. MELFORD.

To

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, of Jefus College, Oxon.

Hot Well. April 20.

ŧ,

DEAR KNIGHT.

I NOW fit down to execute the threat in the tail of my laft. The truth is, I am big with the fecret, and long to be delivered. It relates to my guardian, who you know, is at prefent our principal object in view.

T'other day, I thought I had detected him in fuch a fate of frailty, as would but ill become his years and character. There is a decent fort of woman, not difagreeable in her perfon, that comes to the Well, with a poor emaciated child, far gone in a confumption. I had caught my uncle's eyes feveral times directed to this perfor, with a very fuspicious expression in them, and every time he faw himfelf obferved, he haftily withdrew them, with evident marks of confusion -I refolved to watch him more narrowly, and faw him speaking to her privately in a corner of the walk. At length, going down to the Well one day, I met her half way up the hill to Clifton, and could not help fuspecting the was going to our lodgings by appointment, as it was about one o'clock; the hour when my fifter and I are generally at the Pump-room,----- This notion exciting my curiofity, I returned by a back-way, and C 4 and got unperceived into my own chamber, which is contiguous to my uncle's apartment. Sure enough, the woman was introduced, but not into his bed chamber; he gave her audience in a parlour; fo that I was obliged to fhift my ftation to another room, where, however, there was a finall chink in the partition, through which I could perceive what paffed .----- My uncle, though a little lame, role up when the came in, and fetting a chair for her, defired the would fit down: then he alked if the would take a difh of chocolate, which fhe declined, with much acknowledgement. After a fhort paule, he faid, in a croaking tone of voice, which confounded me not a little, "Madam, I am truly concerned "for your misfortunes; and if this trifle can be "of any fervice to you, I beg you will accept it "without ceremony." So faying, he put a bit of paper into her hand, which fhe opening with great trepidation, exclaimed in an extafy, "Twenty pounds ! O, Sir !" and finking down upon a fettee, fainted away-Frightened at this fit, and, I suppose, afraid of calling for affistance, lest her fitution should give rife to unfavourable conjectures, he ran about the room in distraction, making frightful grimaces; and, at length, had recollection enough to throw a little water in her face; by which application fhe was brought to herfelf: but, then her feeling took another turn. She fhed a flood of tears, and cried aloud,. "I know not who you are: but fure-worthy "Sir!

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

2

"Sir !-----generous Sir !-----the diffrefs of me "and my poor dying child-Oh! if the "widows prayers-if the orphan's tears of grati-"tude can ought avail-gracious Providence!-"Bieffings! thower down eternal bleffings-----" Here the was interrupted by my uncle, who muttered in a voice still more and more difcordant, "For Heaven's fake be quiet, Madam-----"confider-the people of the house----'sdeath! "can't you-" All this time fhe was ftruggling to throw herfelf on her knees, while he, feizing her by the wrifts, endeavoured to feat her upon the fettee, faying, "Prithee-good "now-hold your tongue-" At that inftant, who should burst into the room but our aunt Tabby! of all antiquated maidens the most diabolically capricious-Ever prying into other people's affairs, fhe had feen the woman enter. and followed her to the door, where the ftood listening, but probably could hear nothing diftinctly. except my uncle's last exclamation; at which fhe bounced into the parlour in a violent rage, that dyed the tip of her nose of a purple hue,----- "Fy upon you, Matt! (cried fhe) what "doings are these, to difgrace your own charac-"ter, and difparage your family?-----" Then fnatching the bank-note out of the ftranger's hand, fhe went on-"How now, twenty "Good woman, go about your bufinefs-Brother, "brother, I know not which most to admire; C 5 your 41:

"your concupiffins, or your extravagance !-----" "Good God. (exclaimed the poor woman) shall "a worthy genman's character fuffer for an action "that does honour to humanity?" By this time. uncle's indignation was effectually roufed. His face grew pale, his teeth chattered, and his eyes flashed "Sister, (cried he, in a voice like "thunder) I vow to God, your impertinence is "exceedingly provoking." With these words, he took her by the hand, and, opening the door of communication, thrust her into the chamber where I ftood, fo affected by the scene, that the tears ran down my cheeks. Obferving thefe marks of emotion, "I don't wonder (faid fhe) to "fee you concerned at the back-flidings of fo near "a relation; a man of his years and infirmities: "These are fine doings, truly-This is a rare "example, fet by a guardian for the benefit of "his pupils-Monstrous!-incongruous! fophif-"tical !"------I thought it was but an act of justice to fet her to rights; and therefore explained the mystery-But she would not be undeceived. "What! (faid she) would you go for to offer, "for to arguefy me out of my fenfes? Did'n't I "hear him whifpering to her to hold her tongue? "Did'n't I fee her in tears? Did'n't I fee him "ftruggling to throw her upon the couch? 0 "filthy ! hideous ! abominable ! Child, child, talk "not to me of charity.-----Who gives twenty "pounds in charity ?----But you are a ftripling "-----You know nothing of the world-----"Be-

ł

"Befides charity begins at home-Twenty "pounds would buy me a complete fuit of "flowered filk, trimmings and all-"" In fhort, I quitted the room, my contempt for her, and my respect for her brother, being increased in the fame proportion. I have fince been informed, that the perfon whom my uncle fo generoufly relieved, is the widow of an enfign, who has nothing to depend upon but the penfion of fifteen pounds a-year. The people of the Well-house give her an excellent charac-She lodges in a garret, and works very ter. hard at plainwork, to fupport her daughter, who is dying of a confumption. I muft own, to my fhame. I feel a ftrong inclination to follow my uncle's example, in relieving this poor widow; but, betwixt friends, I am afraid of being detected in a weaknefs, that might entail the ridicule of the company upon,

Dear Phillips

Yours always,

J. MELFORD.

Direct your next to me at Bath; and remember ' me to all our fellowjefuits.

Τo

To Dr. LEWIS.

Hot-Well, April 20.

I UNDERSTAND your bint. There are mysteries in physic, as well as in religion; which we of the profane have no right to invefti. gate A man must not prefume to use his reason, unless he has studied the categories, and can chop logic by mode and figure-Between friends, I think, every man of tolerable parts ought, at my time of day, to be both phyfician and lawyer, as far as his own conftitution and property are concerned. For my own part. I have had an hospital these fourteen years within myfelf, and fludied my own cafe with the most painful attention; confequently may be supposed to know fomething of the matter, altho' I have not taken regular courfes of phyfiology, et cetera, et cetera.----In fhort, I have for fome time been of opinion, (no offence, dear doctor) that the fum of all your medical difcoveries amounts to this, that the more you fludy the lefs you know.-----I have read all that has been written on the Hot-Wells, and what I can collect from the whole, is, that the water contains nothing but a little falt, and calcarious earth, mixed in fuch inconfiderable proportion, as can have very little, if any, effect on the animal oeconomy. This being the cafe, I think, the man deferves deferves to be fitted with a cap and bells, who, for fuch a paltry advantage as this fpring affords, facrifices his precious time, which might be employed in taking more effectual remedies, and exposes himself to the dirt, the stench, the chilling blafts, and perpetual rains, that render this place to me intolerable. If these waters, from a finall degree of aftringency, are of fome fervice in the diabetes. diarrhaa. and night fiveats, when the fecretions are too much increafed, must not they do harm in the fame proportion, where the humours are obstructed. as in the afthma, fourvy, gout, and dropfy? Now we talk of the drop/y, here is a ftrange, fantaftical oddity, one of your brethren, who harangues every day in the Pump-room, as if he was hired to give lectures on all fubjects whatfoever------I know not what to make of him----Sometimes he makes threwd remarks; at other times, he talks like the greatest fimpleton in nature-He has read a great deal; but without method or judgment, and digested nothing. He believes every thing he has read; especially if it has any thing of the marvellous in it; and his conversation is a surprising hotch-potch of erudition and extravagance.----He told me t'other day, with great confidence, that my cafe was dropfical; or, as he called it, leucophlegmatic: A fure fign, that his want of experience is equal to his prefumption; for, you know, there is nothing analagous to the dropfy in my diforder ----I

-I with those impertinent fellows, with their ricketty understandings, would keep their advice for those that ask it _____ Drop/y, indeed! Sure I have not lived to the age of fifty-five, and had fuch experience of my own diforder, and confulted you and other eminent phyficians, fo often, and fo long, to be undeceived by fuch a -----But, without all doubt, the man is mad: and, therefore what he fays is of no confequence. I had yesterday, a visit from Higgins; who came hither under the terror of your threats, and brought me in a prefent a brace of hares; which he owned he took in my ground; and I could not perfuade the fellow that he did wrong, or that I would ever profecute him for poaching-I muft defire you will wink hard at the practices of this rafcallion: otherwife I shall be plagued with his presents; which coft me more than they are worth.-----If I could wonder at any thing Fitzowen does, I fhould be furprifed at his affurance, in defiring you to folicit my vote for him at the next election for the county: for him, who opposed me on the like occafion, with the most illiberal competition-You may tell him civilly, that I beg to be excufed. Direct your next for me at Bath, whither I propose to remove to-morrow; not only on my own account, but for the fake of my niece, Liddy, who is like to relapfe. The poor creature fell into a fit yesterday, while I was cheapening a pair of fpectacles, with a Jew-

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

Jew-pedlar.——I am afraid there is fomething ftill lurking in that little heart of hers; which I hope a change of objects will remove. Let me know what you think of this half-witted Doctor's impertinent, ridiculous, and abfurd notion of my diforder—So far from being dropfical, I am as lank in the belly as a gray-hound; and, by meafuring my ankle with a pack-thread, I find the fwelling fubfides every day——From fuch doctors, good Lord deliver us!——I have not yet taken any lodgings in Bath; becaufe there we can be accommodated at a minute's warning, and I fhall chufe for myfelf——I need not fay your directions for drinking and bathing will be agreeable to,

Dear Lewis,

Yours ever,

MATT. BRAMBLE.

P. S. I forgot to tell you, that my right ankle pits, a fymptom, as I take it, of its being ædematous, not leucophlegmatic.

Τo

47

To Mils LÆTITIA WILLIS, at Gloucefter.

Hot-Well, April 21.

My DEAR LETTY,

I DID not intend to trouble you again till we fhould be fettled at Bath: but having the occafion of Jarvis, I could not let it flip, especially as I have fomething extraordinary to communicate-O, my dear companion! what fhall I tell you? for leveral days past there was a Jewlooking man, that plied at the Wells with a box of spectacles; and he always eyed me fo earnestly, that I began to be very uneafy. At laft, he came to our lodgings at Clifton, and lingered about the door, as if he wanted to fpeak to fomebody-I was feized with an odd kind of fluttering, and begged Win to throw herfelf in his way: but the poor girl has weak nerves, and was afraid of his beard. My uncle, having occafion for new glaffes, called him up ftairs, and was trying a pair of spectacles, when the man. advancing to me, faid, in a whifper-O gracious! what d'ye think he faid ?---- "I am Wilfon!" His features ftruck me that very moment-----it was Wilfon fure enough! but fo difguifed, that it would have been impossible to know him, if my heart had not affifted in the difcovery. 1

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

I was fo suprifed, and fo frightened, that I fainted away; but foon recovered; and found myfelf supported by him on the chair, while my uncle was running about the room, with the fpectacles on his nofe, calling for help. I had no opportunity to fpeak to him; but our looks were fufficiently expressive. He was paid for his glaffes, and went away. Then I told Win who he was, and fent her after him to the Pumproom; where fhe fpoke to him, and begged him in my name to withdraw from the place, that he might not incur the fufpicion of my uncle or my brother, if he did not want to fee me die of terror and vexation. The poor youth declared, with tears in his eyes, that he had fomething extraordinary to communicate: and afked, if the would deliver a letter to me: but this fhe abfolutely refused, by my order .----- Finding her obstinate in her refusal, he desired she would tell me, that he was no longer a player, but a gentleman; in which character he would very foon avow his paffion for me, without fear of cenfure or reproach-----Nay, he even difcovered his name and family; which, to my great grief, the fimple girl forgot, in the confusion occalioned by her being feen talking to him by my brother: who ftopt her on the road, and afked what bufiness she had with that raically Jew-She pretended the was cheapening a flay-hook; but was thrown into fuch a quandary, that fhe forgot the most material part of the information; VOL. L. D and

and when fhe came home, went into an hyfteric fit of laughing. This transaction happened three days ago. during which he has not appeared ; fo that I fuppole he is gone. Dear Letty! you fee how Fortune takes pleafure in perfecuting your poor friend. If you fhould fee him at Gloucefter-or if you have feen him, and know his real name and family, pray keep me no longer in fuspence-And yet, if he is under no obligation to keep himfelf longer concealed, and has a real affection for me, I flould hope he will, in a little time, declare himfelf to my rela-Sure, if there is nothing unfuitable in tions. the match, they won't be fo cruel as to thwart my inclinations-O what happiness would then be my portion! I can't help indulging the thought, and pleafing my fancy with fuch agreeable ideas; which, after all, perhaps, will never be realized-But, why fhould I defpair? who knows what will happen?---We fet out for Bath to-morrow, and I am almost forry for it; as I begin to be in love with folitude, and this is a charming romantic place. The air is fo pure; the Downs are fo agreeable; the furze in full bloffom : the ground enamelled with daifies, and primrofes, and cowflips; all the trees burfting into leaves. and the hedges already clothed with their vernal livery; the mountains covered with flocks of fheep, and tender bleating wanton lambkins playing, frifking and fkipping from fide to fide; the

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

the groves refound with the notes of black bird. thrufh, and linnet; and all night long fweet Philomel pours forth her ravishingly delightful fong. Then, for variety, we go down to the nymph of Brisiol spring, where the company is affembled before dinner: fo good-natured, fo free, fo eafy; and there we drink the water fo clear, fo pure, fo mild, fo charmingly maukifh. There the fun is fo chearful and reviving: the weather to foft; the walk to agreeable: the prospect fo amufing; and the ships and boats going up and down the river, clofe under the windows of the Pump room, afford fuch an enchanting variety of moving pictures, as require a much abler pen than mine to defcribe. To make this place a perfect paradife to me, nothing is wanting but an agreeable companion and fincere friend; fuch as my dear mils Willis hath been, and I hope ftill will be, to her ever faithful

LYDIA MELFORD.

51

Direct for me, ftill under cover, to Win; and Jarvis will take care to convey it fafe. Adieu.

D 2

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, of Jefus College, Oxon.

Bath, April 24.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

YOU have, indeed, reafon to be furprifed, that I fhould have concealed my correspondence with mifs Blackerby from you, to whom I difclofed all my other connexions of that nature; but the truth is. I never dreamed of any fuch commerce. till your last informed me, that it had produced fomething which could not be much longer con-It is a lucky circumftance, however, cealed. that her reputation will not fuffer any detriment. but rather derive advantage from the difcovery: which will prove, at leaft, that it is not quite fo rotten, as most people imagined-For my own part, I declare to you, in all the fincerity of friendship, that, far from having any amorous intercourfe with the object in queftion. I never had the leaft acquaintance with her perfon; but. if the is really in the condition you defcribe, I fuspect Maniel to be at the bottom of the whole. His vifits to that fhrine were no fecret; and this attachment, added to fome good offices, which you know he has done me, fince I left Almamater, give me a right to believe him capable of faddling me with this fcandal when my back was turned turned-Neverthelefs, if my name can be of any. fervice to him, he is welcome to make use of it; and if the woman fhould be abandoned enough to fwear his bantling to me. I must beg the favour of you to compound with the parish: I shall pay the penalty without repining; and you will be fo good as to draw upon me immediately for the fum required-On this occasion, I act by the advice of my uncle; who fays I fhall have good-luck if I pafs through life without being obliged to make many more compositions of the fame kind. The old gentleman told me last night, with great good humour, that betwixt the age of twenty and forty, he had been obliged to provide for nine bastards, sworn to him by women whom he never faw-Mr. Bramble's character, which feems to interest you greatly, opens and improves upon me every day .--- His fingularities afford a rich mine of entertainment; his understanding, fo far as I can judge, is well cultivated : his obfervations on life are equally just, pertinent, and uncommon. He affects milanthropy, in order to conceal the fenfibility of a heart, which is tender, even to a degree of weaknefs. This delicacy of feeling, or forenefs of the mind, makes him timorous and fearful: but then he is afraid of nothing fo much as of diffionour; and although he is exceedingly cautious of giving offence, he will fire at the leaft hint of infolence or illbreeding-Refpectable as he is, upon the whole, T

D3

I can't help being fometimes diverted by his little diftreffes; which provoke him to let fly the fhafts of his fatire, keen and penetrating as the arrows of Teucer—Our aunt, Tabitha, afts upon him as a perpetual grind-ftone—She is, in all refpects, a firiking contraft to her brother —But I referve her portrait for another occafion.

Three days ago we came hither from the Hot. Well, and took pofferfion of the first floor of a lodging-houfe, on the South Parade: a fituation which my uncle chofe, for its being near the Bath. and remote from the noife of carriages. He was fcarce warm in the lodgings when he called for his night-cap, his wide fhoes and flannel; and declared himfelf invefted with the gout in his right foot; though, I believe, it had as yet reached no farther than his imagination. T۴ was not long before he had reafon to repent his premature declaration: for our aunt Tabitha found means to make fuch a clamour and confufion, before the flannels could be produced from the trunk, that one would have imagined the houfe was on fire. All this time, uncle fat boiling with impatience, biting his fingers, throwing up his eyes, and muttering ejaculations; at length he burft into a kind of convultive laugh. after which he hummed a fong; and when the hurricane was over, exclaimed, "Bleffed be God "for all things !" This, however, was but the beginning of his troubles. Mrs. Tabitha's favourite ite dog Chowder, having paid his compliments to a female turn-spit, of his own species, in the kitchen, involved himfelf in a quarrel with no fewer than five rivals, who fet upon him at once, and drove him up ftairs to the dining-room door, with hideous noife: there our aunt and her woman, taking arms in his defence, joined the concert; which became truly diabolical. This fray being with difficulty fupprefied, by the intervention of our own foot-man and the cookmaid of the houfe, the 'fquire had just opened his mouth to expostulate with Tabby, when the town-waits in the paffage below, ftruck up their mufic, (if mufic it may be called) with fuch a fudden burft of found. as made him ftart and ftare, with marks of indignation and disquiet. He had recollection enough to fend his fervant with fome money to filence those noify intruders; and they were immediately difmified. though not without fome opposition on the part of Tabitha, who thought it but reafonable that he should have more music for his money. Scarce had he fettled this knotty point, when a ftrange kind of thumping and bouncing was heard right over-head, in the fecond ftory, fo loud and violent as to fhake the whole building. Iown I was exceedingly provoked at this new alarm; and before my uncle had time to express himfelf on the fubject, I ran up ftairs, to fee what was the matter. Finding the room-door open, I entered without ceremony, and perceived an object D 4

.

*

ject, which I cannot now recollect without laughing to excels-It was a dancing-mafter, with his scholar, in the act of teaching. The mafter was blind of one eye, and lame of one foot, and led about the room his pupil, who feemed to be about the age of threefcore, ftooped mortally, was tall, raw-boned, hard-favoured. with a woollen night-cap on his head; and he had fiript off his coat, that he might be more nimble in his motions-Finding himfelf intruded upon, by a perfon he did not know, he forthwith girded himfelf with a long iron fword, and advancing to me, with a peremptory air, pronounced, in a true Hibernian accent, "Mifter "What d'ye callum, by my fhoul and confcience, "I am very glad to sea you, if you are after "coming in the way of friendship; and indeed, "and indeed now, I believe you are my friend "fure enough, gra; though I never had the "honour to fea your face before, my dear; for "becaufe you come like a friend, without any ce-"remony at all, at all____" I told him the nature of my vifit would not admit of ceremony; that I was come to defire he would make lefs noife, as there was a fick gentleman below whom he had no right to difturb with fuch preposterous doings. "Why, look-ye now, young "gentleman, (replied this original) perhaps, upon "another occasion, I might shivilly request you "to explain the maining of that hard word, pre-"pasterous: but there's a time for all things, ho-"ney

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

So faying, he paffed 'me with "nev-" great agility, and, running down stairs, found our footman at the dining-room door, of whom he demanded admittance, to pay his respects to the ftranger. As the fellow did not think proper to refuse the request of such a formidable figure, he was immediately introduced, and addreffed himfelf to my uncle in thefe words: "Your "humble fervant, good Sir-I'm not fo pre-"pasterous, as your fon calls it, but I know the "rules of fhivility-----I'm a poor knight of Ire-"land, my name is Sir Ullic Mackilligut, of the "county of Galway; being your fellow-lodger, "I'm come to pay my respects, and to welcome "you to the South Parade, and to offer my beft "fervices to you, and your good lady, and your "pretty daughter; and even to the young gen-"tleman your fon, though he thinks me a pre-"pasterous fellow-You must know I am to "have the honour to open a ball next door to-"morrow with lady Mac Manus; and being "rufted in my dancing, I was refreshing my me-"mory with a little exercife; but if 'I had known "there was a fick perfon below. by Chrift! I "would have fooner danced a hornpipe upon my "own head, than walk the foftest minute over "yours."-----My uncle, who was not a little ftartled at his first appearance, received his compliment with great complacency, infifted upon his being feated, thanked him for the honour of his visit, and reprimanded me for my abrupt ex-D 5 postula-

1

poftulation with a gentleman of his rank and character. Thus tutored, I asked pardon of the knight, who, forthwith flarting up, embraced me fo clofe, that I could hardly breathe; and affured me, he loved me as his own foul. A+ length, recollecting his night-cap, he pulled it off in fome confusion; and, with his bald-pate uncovered, made a thoufand apologies to the ladies, as he retired _____At that inftant, the Abbey bells began to ring fo loud, that we could not hear one another speak; and this peal, as we afterwards learned. was for the honour of Mr. Bullock, an eminent cow-keeper of Tottenham, who had just arrived at Bath, to drink the waters for indigeftion. Mr. Bramble had not time to make his remarks upon the agreeable nature of this ferenade. before his ears were faluted with another concert that interested him more Two negroes belonging to a Creole nearly. gentleman, who lodged in the fame houfe, taking their ftation at a window in the ftair-cafe, about ten feet from our dining-room door, began to practice upon the French-horn; and being in the very first rudiments of execution, produced fuch difcordant founds, as might have difcompofed the organs of an afs-You may guels what effect they had upon the irritable nerves of uncle; who, with the most admirable expression of splenetic surprise in his countenance, fent his man to filence those dreadful blasts, and defire the muficians to practice in fome other place, as they they had no right to fland there and diffurb all the lodgers in the houfe. Those fable performers, far from taking the hint, and withdrawing, treated the meffenger with great infolence; bidding him carry his compliments to their master, colonel Rigworm, who would give him a proper answer, and a good drubbing into the bargain; in the mean time they continued their noife, and even endeavoured to make it more difagreeable; laughing between whiles, at the thoughts of being able to torment their betters with impunity. Our 'fquire, incenfed at the additional infult, immediately difpatched the fervant with his compliments to colonel Rigworm; requefting that he would order his blacks to be quiet. as the noife they made was altogether intolerable-To this meflage, the Creole colonel replied, that his horns had a right to found on a common stair-case; that there they fhould play for his diversion; and that those who did not like the noise, might look for lodgings elfewhere. Mr. Bramble no fooner received this reply, than his eyes began to gliften. his face grew pale, and his teeth chattered. After a moment's pause, he flipt on his fhoes without speaking a word, or seeming to feel any further disturbance from the gout in his toes. Then, fnatching his cane, he opened the door, and proceeded to the place where the black trumpeters were posted. There, without further hefitation, he began to belabour them both; and exerted exerted himfelf with fuch aftonifhing vigour and agility. that both their heads and horns were broken in a twinkling, and they ran howling down flairs to their mafter's parlour-door. The 'fauire, following them half way, called aloud. that the colonel might hear him, "Go, rafcals, "and tell your mafter what I have done; if he "thinks himfelf injured, he knows where to "come for fatisfaction. As for you, this is but "an earnest of what you shall receive, if ever "you prefume to blow a horn again here, while "I flay in the house." So faying, he retired to his apartment, in expectation of hearing from the Weft-Indian; but the colonel prudently declined any further profecution of the difpute. My fifter Liddy was frighted into a fit, from which fhe no fooner recovered, than Mrs. Tabitha began a lecture upon patience; which her brother interrupted with a most fignificant grin, exclaiming, "True, fifter, God increase my patience and your "diferetion. I wonder (added he) what fort of "fonata we are to expect from this overture, in "which the devil, that prefides over horrid "founds, hath given us fuch variations of difcord "-----The trampling of porters, the creaking "and crafting of trunks, the fnarling of curs, the "fcolding of women, the fqueaking and fqual-"ling of fiddles and hautboys out of tune, the "bouncing of the Irifh baronet over-head, and "the burfting, belching, and brattling of the "French-horns in the paffage (not to mention the "har-

"harmonious peal that ftill thunders from the Ab-"bey-fteeple) fucceeding one another without in-"terruption, like the different parts of the fame "concert, have given me fuch an idea of what a "poor invalid has to expect in this temple, de-"dicated to Silence and Repofe, that I shall cer-"tainly fhift my quarters to morrow, and endea-"vour to effectuate my retreat before Sir Ulic "opens the ball with my lady Mac Manus; a "conjunction that bodes me no good." This intimation was by no means agreeable to Mrs. Tabitha, whofe ears were not quite fo delicate as those of her brother-She faid it would be great folly to move from fuch agreeable lodgings, the moment they were comfortably fettled. She wondered he should be fuch an enemy to music and mirth. She heard no noife but of his own making: it was impossible to manage a family, in dumb-fliew. He might harp as long as he pleafed upon her fcolding; but fhe never fcolded except for his advantage; but he would never be fatisfied, even tho'f fhe fhould fweat blood and water in his fervice-I have a great notion that our aunt, who is now declining into the most defperate flate of celibacy, had formed fome defign upon the heart of Sir Ulic Mackilligut, which the feared might be fruftrated by our · abrupt departure from these lodgings. Her brother, eying her afkance, "Pardon me, fifter, "(faid he) I fhould be a favage, indeed, were I "infenfible of my own felicity, in having fuch a "mild.

б٤

"mild, complaifant, good humoured, and con-"fiderate companion and houfe-keeper; but as I "have got a weak head, and my fense of hearing "is painfully acute, before I have recourse to "nlugs of wool and cotton, I'll try whether I "can't find another lodging, where I shall have "more quiet and lefs mufic." He accordingly difpatched his man upon this fervice; and next day he found a small house in Milsham-street. which he hires by the week. Here, at least. we enjoy convenience and quiet within doors, as much as Tabby's temper will allow; but the 'fquire ftill complains of flying pains in the ftomach and head, for which he bathes and drinks He is not fo bad, however, but the waters. that he goes in perfon to the pump, the rooms. and the coffee-houfes; where he picks up continual food for ridicule and fatire. If I can glean any thing for your amusement, either from his obfervation or my own, you shall have it freely, though I am afraid it will poorly compensate the trouble of reading thefe tedious infipid letters of,

Dear Phillips

Yours always,

J. MELFORD.

Te

To Dr. LEWIS.

Bath, April 23.

DEAR DOCTOR,

IF I did not know that the exercife of your profession has habituated you to the hearing of complaints, I should make a conficience of troubling you with my correspondence, which may be truly called the lamentations of Matthew Bramble. Yet I cannot help thinking, I have fome right to discharge the overflowings of my spleen upon you, whose province it is to remove those diforders that occasioned it; and let me tell you, it is no small alleviation of my grievances, that I have a sensible friend, to whom I can communicate my crufty humours, which, by retention, would grow intolerably acrimonious.

You muft know, I find nothing but difappointment at Bath; which is fo altered, that I can fcarce believe it is the fame place that I frequented about thirty years ago. Methinks I hear you fay, "Altered it is, without all doubt; but then "it is altered for the better; a truth which, per-"haps, you would own without hefitation, if "you yourfelf was not altered for the worfe." The reflection may, for aught I know, be juft. The inconveniencies which I overlooked in the high-day of health, will naturally ftrike with exaggerated impression on the irritable nerves of an invalid, furprifed by premature old age, and fhattered with long-fuffering-But, I believe, you will not deny, that this place, which Nature and Providence feem to have intended as a refource from diftemper and difquiet, is become the very centre of racket and diffipation. Inftead of that peace, tranquillity and eafe, fo neceffary to those who labour under bad health, weak nerves and irregular fpirits; here we have nothing but noife, tumult and hurry; with the fatigue and flavery of maintaining a ceremonial, more ftiff, formal, and oppreflive, than the etiquette of a German elector. A national hospital it may be; but one would imagine, that none but lunatics are admitted; and, truly, I will give you leave to call me fo, if I ftay much longer at Bath .-- But I fhall take another opportunity to explain my fentiments at greater length on this fubject-----I was impatient to fee the boafted improvements in architecture, for which the upper parts of the town have been fo much celebrated. and t'other day I made a circuit of all the new buildings. The Square, though irregular, is, on the whole. pretty well laid out, fpacious, open, and airy; and, in my opinion, by far the most wholesome and agreeable fituation in Bath, efpecially the upper fide of it; but the avenues to it are mean, dirty, dangerous, and indirect. Its communication with the Baths, is through the yard of an inn, where the poor trembling valetudinarian is carried in a chair, betwixt the heels of a double row of horfes, wincing under the curry combs of grooms and positilions, over and above the hazard of being obstructed, or overturned by the carriages which are continually making their exit or their entrance-I suppose after some chairmen fhall have been maimed, and a few lives loft by those accidents, the corporation will think, in earnest, about providing a more fafe and commodious paffage. The Circus is a pretty bauble : contrived for fnew, and looks like Vefpafian's amphitheatre turned outfide in. If we confider it in point of magnificence, the great number of finall doors belonging to the feparate houfes, the inconfiderable height of the different orders, the affected ornaments of the architrave, which are both childifh and mifplaced, and the areas projecting into the street, furrounded with iron rails, deftroy a good part of its effect upon the eve; and, perhaps, we fhall find it ftill more defectiye, if we view it in the light of convenience. The figure of each feparate dwelling-house, being the fegment of a circle, must spoil the symmetry of the rooms, by contracting them towards the ftreet-windows, and leaving a larger fweep in the fpace behind. If, instead of the areas and iron rails. which feem to be of very little ufe, there had been a corridore with arcades all round. as in Covent Garden, the appearance of the whole would have been more magnificent and ftriking; those arcades would have afforded an agreeable VOL. I.

car-

E

co-

covered walk, and fheltered the poor chairmen and their carriages from the rain, which is here almost perpetual. At prefent, the chairs stand foaking in the open fireet, from morning to night. till they become fo many boxes of wet leather. for the benefit of the gouty and rheumatic, who are transported in them from place to place. Indeed this is a flocking inconvenience that extends over the whole city; and, I am perfuaded, it produces infinite mischief to the delicate and infirm: even the clofe chairs, contrived for the fick, by ftanding in the open air, have their frieze linings impregnated, like fo many fpunges, with the moifture of the atmosphere, and those cases of cold vapour must give a charming check to the perspiration of a patient, piping hot from the Bath, with all his pores wide open.

But, to return to the Circus: it is inconvenient from its fituation, at fo great a diftance from all the markets, baths, and places of pub-The only entrance to it. lie entertainment. through Gay-ftreet, is fo difficult, fteep, and flippery, that, in wet weather, it must be exceed. ingly dangerous, both for those that ride in carriages, and those that walk afoot; and when the ftreet is covered with fnow, as it was for fifteen days fucceflively this very winter, I don't fee" how any individual could go either up or down. without the most imminent hazard of broken bo-In blowing weather, I am told, moft of nes. the houfes in this hill are fmothered with fmoke, forced forced down the chimneys, by the gufts of wind reverberated from the hill behind, which (I apprehend likewife) must render the atmosphere he. re more humid and unwholefome than it is in the fquare below; for the clouds, formed by the confant evaporation from the baths and rivers in the bottom, will, in their afcent this way, be first attracted and detained by the hill that rifes clofe behind the Circus, and load the air with a perpetual fucceffion of vapour: this point, however, may be eafily ascertained by means of an hygrometer, or a paper of falt of tartar exposed to the action of the atmosphere. The same artist, who planned the Circus, has likewife projected a Crefcent; when that is finished, we shall probably have a Star; and those who are living thirty years hence, may, perhaps, fee all the figns of the Zodiac exhibited in architecture at Bath. Thefe. however fantastical, are still defigns that denote fome ingenuity and knowledge in the architect; but the rage of building has laid hold on fuch a number of adventurers, that one fees new houfes farting up in every out-let and every corner of Bath: contrived without judgment, executed without foliaity, and fluck together with fo little regard to plan and propriety, that the different lines of the new rows and buildings interfere with, and interfect one another in every different angle of conjunction. They look like the wreck of ftreets and fquares disjointed by an earthquake, which hath broken the ground into a variety of Ea holes holes and hillocks; or, as if fome Gothic devil had stuffed them altogether in a bag, and left them to ftand higgledy piggledy, just as chance directed. What fort of a monfter Bath will become in a few years, with those growing excrescences may be eafily conceived: but the want of beauty and proportion is not the worft effect of thefe new manfions; they are built fo flight, with the foft crumbling ftone found in this neigbourhood. that I should never fleep quietly in one of them. when it blowed (as the failors fay) a cap-full of wind; and I am perfuaded, that my hind, Roger Williams, or any man of equal ftrength. would be able to pulh his foot through the ftrongeft part of their walls, without any great exertion of his muscles. All these absurdities arise from the general tide of luxury, which hath overfpread the nation, and fwept away all, even the very dregs of the people. Every upftart of fortune, harnefied in the trappings of the mode, prefents himfelf at Bath, as in the very focus of observation-Clerks and factors from the East Indies, loaded with the fpoil of plundered provinces; planters, negro drivers, and huckfters, from our American plantations, enriched they know not how; agents, commiffaries, and contractors. who have fattened, in two fucceffive wars, on the blood of the nation; ufurers, brokers, and jobbers of every kind; men of low birth, and no breeding, have found themfelves fuddenly translated into a state of affluence, unknown to former ages;

... :

ages; and no wonder that their brains fhould be intoxicated with pride, vanity and prefumption. Knowing no other criterion of greatness, but the oftentation of wealth, they discharge their affluence without tafte or conduct, through every channel of the most abfurd extravagance; and all of them hurry to Bath, because here, without any further qualification, they can mingle with, the princes and nobles of the land. Even the wives and daughters of low tradefmen, who, like fhovel-nofed fharks, prey upon the blubber of those uncouth whales of fortune, are infected with the fame rage of difplaying their importance; and the flightest indisposition ferves them for a pretext to infift upon being conveyed to Bath, where they may hobble country dances and cotillons among lordlings, 'fquires, counfellors, and clergy. Thefe delicate creatures from Bedfordbury, Butcher-row, Crutched-Friers, and Botolph-lane, cannot breathe in the grofs air of the Lower Town, or conform to the vulgar rules of a common lodging house; the husband, therefore, must provide an entire house, or elegant apartments in the new buildings. Such is the composition of what is called the fashionable company at Bath; where a very inconfiderable proportion of genteel people are loft in a mob of impudent plebeians, who have neither understanding nor judgment, nor the leaft idea of propriety and decorum; and feem to enjoy nothing fo much as an opportunity of infulting their betters. Thus E 2

Thus the number of people, and the number of houfes, continue to increase; and this will ever be the case, till the fireams that swell this irrefissible torrent of folly and extravagance, shall either be exhausted, or turned into other channels, by incidents and events which I do not pretend to foresee. This, I own, is a subject on which I cannot write with any degree of patience; for the mob is a monster I never could abide, either in its head, tail, midriff, or members: I detess the whole of it, as a mass of ignorance, presumption, malice, and brutality; and, in this term of reprobation, I include, without respect of rank, station, or quality, all those of both fexes, who affect its manners, and court its fociety.

But I have written till my fingers are crampt, and my naufea begins to return—By your advice, I fent to London a few days ago for half a pound of Gengzeng; though I doubt much, whether that which comes from America is equally efficacious with what is brought from the Eaft Indies. Some years ago, a friend of mine paid fixteen guineas for two ounces of it; and, in fix months after, it was fold in the fame fhop for five fhillings the pound. In fhort, we live in a vile world of fraud and fophiftication; fo that I know nothing of equal value with the genuine friendfhip of a fenfible man; a rare jewel! which I cannot help thinking myfelf in poffeffion feffion of, while I repeat the old declaration, that I am, as ufual,

> Dear Lewis, Your affectionate

> > M. BRAMBLE.

7I

After having been agitated in a fhort hurricane, on my first arrival, I have taken a fmall house in Milfham-ftreet, where I am tolerably well lodged, for five guineas a-week. I was vesterday at the Pump-room, and drapk about a pint of the water, which feems to agree with my ftomach: and to-morrow morning I fhall bathe, for the first time; fo that in a few posts you may expect farther trouble; mean while, I am glad to find that the inoculation has fucceeded fo well with poor Joyce, and that her face will be but little marked-If my friend Sir Thomas was a fingle man, I would not truft fuch a handfome wench in his family, but as I have recommended her,. in a particular manner, to the protection of lady G----- who is one of the best women in the world, the may go thither without hefitation, as foon as the is quite recovered, and fit for fervice -Let her mother have money to provide her with neceffaries, and fhe may ride behind her brother on Bucks; but you must lay strong injunctions on Jack, to take particular care of the trufty old veteran, who has faithfully earned his present ease, by his past fervices.

То

To Mifs WILLIS, at Gloucester.

Bath, April 26.

My DEAREST COMPANION.

THE pleafure I received from yours, which came to hand yefterday, is not to be expressed. Love and friendship are, without doubt, charming passions; which absence ferves only to heighten and improve. Your kind present of the garnet bracelets, I shall keep as carefully as I preserve my own life; and I beg you will accept, in return, of my heart-housewise, with the tortoise shell memorandum book, as a trifling pledge of my unalterable affection.

Bath is to me a new world——All is gaiety, good-humour and diversion. The eye is continually entertained with the fplendor of drefs and equipage; and the ear with the found of coaches, chaifes, chairs, and other carriages. The merry bells ring round, from morn till night. Then we are welcomed by the city-waits in our own lodgings: we have music in the Pump-room every morning, cotillons every fore-noon in the rooms, balls twice a-week, and concerts every other night, befides private affemblies and parties without number——As foon as we were fettled in lodgings, we were visited by the Master of the Ceremonies; a pretty little gentleman, fo fweet, fweet, fo fine, fo civil, and polite, that in our country he might pais for the prince of Wales; then he talks fo charmingly, both in verfe and profe, that you would be delighted to hear him discourse; for you must know he is a great writer, and has got five tragedies ready for the ftage. He did us the favour to dine with us, by my uncle's invitation; and next day 'squired my aunt and me to every part of Bath; which to be fure is an earthly paradife. The Square, the Circus, and the Parades, put you in mind of the fump. tuous palaces represented in prints and pictures: and the new buildings, fuch as Princes row, Har. lequin's row, Bladud's row, and twenty other rows, look like fo many enchanted caftles, raifed on hanging terraces.

At eight in the morning, we go in difhabille to the Pump-room; which is crowded like a Welfh fair: and there you fee the higheft quality, and the lowest trades folks, jostling each other, without ceremony, hail-fellow well-met, The noife of the mulic playing in the gallery. the heat and flavour of fuch a crowd, and the hum and buz of their conversation, gave me the head ach and vertigo the first day; but, afterwards, all thefe things became familiar, and even agreeable.-----Right under the Pump-room windows is the King's Bath; a huge ciftern, where you fee the patients up to their necks in hot wa. ter. The ladies wear jackets and petticoats of brown linen, with chip hats, in which they fix E' 5 - their

73

ŝ

their handkerchiefs to wipe the fweat from their faces: but, truly, whether it is owing to the fteam that furrounds them, or the heat of the water, or the nature of the drefs, or to all thefe caufes together, they look fo flushed, and fo frightful, that I always turn my eyes another way-----My aunt, who fays every perfon of fafhion fhould make her appearance in the bath, as well as in the abbey church, contrived a cap with cherry-coloured ribbands to fuit her complexion. and obliged Win to attend her yesterday morning in the water. But, really, her eyes were fo red: that they made mine water as I viewed her from the Pump-room; and as for poor Win, who wore her hat trimmed with blue, what betwixt her wan complexion and her fear, fhe looked like the ghoft of fome pale maiden, who had drowned herfelf for love. When the came out of the bath. fhe took affafoetida drops, and was fluttered all day; fo that we could hardly keep her from going into hystericks: but her mistrefs fays it will do her good; and poor Win courtfies, with the tears in her eyes. For my part, I content myself with drinking about half a pint of the water every morning.

The pumper, with his wife and fervant, attend within a bar; and the glasses, of different fizes, stand ranged in order before them, so you have nothing to do but to point at that which you choose, and it is filled immediately, hot and sparkling from the pump. It is the only hot water

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

ter I could ever drink, without being fick-Far from having that effect, it is rather agreeable to the tafte, grateful to the ftomach, and reviving to the fpirits. You cannot imagine what wonderful cures it performs-My uncle began with it the other day; but he made wry faces in drinking, and I'm afraid he will leave it of-----The first day we came to Bath, he fell into a violent Dassion: beat two black-a-moors, and I was afraid he would have fought with their mafter; but the stranger proved a peaceable man. To be fure, the gout had got into his head, as my aunt observed: but, I believe, his passion drove it away; for he has been remarkably well ever fince. It is a thousand pities he should ever be troubled with that ugly diftemper; for when he is free from pain, he is the best tempered man upon earth; fo gentle, fo generous, fo charitable. that every body loves him; and fo good to me, in particular, that I shall never be able to fnew the deep fenfe I have of his tendernefs and affection.

Hard by the Pump-room, is a coffee-house for the ladies; but my aunt fays, young girls are not admitted, inasmuch as the conversation turns upon politics, fcandal, philosophy, and other subjects above our capacity, but we are allowed to accompany them to the bookfellers shops, which are charming places of refort; where we read novels, plays, pamphlets, and news-papers, for so finall a subscription as a crown a-quarter; and in

75

in these offices of intelligence, (as my brother calls them) all the reports of the day, and all the private transactions of the Bath, are first entered and difcuffed. From the bookfeller's fhop we make a tour through the milliners and toy-men: and commonly ftop at Mr. Gill's, the paftry-cook. to take a jelly, a tart, or a small bason of vermicelli. There is, moreover, another place of entertainment on the other fide of the water, oppofite to the Grove; to which the company crofs over in a boat-It is called Spring Garden; a fweet retreat, laid out in walks and ponds, and parterres of flowers; and there is a long-room for breakfasting and dancing. As the fituation is low and damp, and the feafon has been remarkably wet, my uncle won't fuffer me to go thither, left I fhould catch cold: but my aunt fays it is all a vulgar prejudice; and, to be fure, a great many gentlemen and ladies of Ireland frequent the place, without feeming to be the They fay, dancing at Spring worfe for it. Gardens, when the air is moift, is recommended to them as an excellent cure for the rheumatifm. I have been twice at the play; where, notwithftanding the excellence of the performers, the gaiety of the company, and the decorations of the theatre, which are very fine, I could not help reflecting, with a figh, upon our poor homely representations at Gloucester-But this, in confidence to my dear Willis----You know my heart, and will excufe its weaknefs.-----

After

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

77

,

After all, the great fcenes of entertainment at Bath, are the two public rooms; where the company meet alternately every evening-They are spacious, lofty, and, when lighted up, appear very striking. They are generally crowded with well dreffed people, who drink tea in feparate parties, play at cards, walk, or fit and chat together, just as they are disposed. Twice a-week there is a ball: the expence of which is defrayed by a voluntary fubfcription among the gentlemen; and every fubfcriber has three tickets. I was there Friday last with my aunt, under the care of my brother, who is a fubfcriber; and Sir Ulic Mackilligut recommended his nephew, captain O Donaghan, to me as a partner; but Jery excufed himfelf, by faying I had got the head-ach; and, indeed, it was really fo, though I can't imagine how he knew it. The place was fo hot, and the fmell fo different from what we are used to in the country, that I was quite feverifh when we came away. Aunt fays it is the effect of a vulgar conftitution, reared among woods and mountains; and, that as I become accustomed to genteel company, it will wear off-Sir Ulic was very complaifant; made her a great many high-flown compliments; and when we retired, handed her with great ceremony to her chair. The captain, I believe, would have done me the fame favour; but my brother, feeing him advance, took me under his arm, and wished him goodgood-night. The captain is a pretty man, to be fure; tall and ftraight, and well made; with light-gray eyes, and a Roman nofe; but there is a certain boldnefs in his look and manner, that puts one out of countenance——But I am afraid I have put you out of all patience with this long unconnected fcrawl; which I fhall therefore conclude, with affuring you, that neither Bath nor London, nor all the diverfions of life, fhall ever be able to efface the idea of my dear Letty, from the heart of your ever affectionate

LYDIA MELFORD.

TO Mrs. MARY JONES, at Brambleton-hall.

DEAR MOLLY JONES,

HEAVING got a frank, I now return your fever, which I received by Mr. Higgins at the Hot-Well, together with the flockings, which his wife footed for me; but now they are of no farvice. No body wears fuch things in this place --O Molly! you that live in the country have no deception of our doings at Bath. Here is fuch dreffing, and fiddling and dancing, and gadding, and courting, and plotting-O gracious! if God had not given me a good flock of difcretion, what a power of things might not I reveal,

son-

confarning old miftrefs and young miftrefs; Jews with beards, that were no lews; but handfome Christians, without a hair upon their fin, ftrolling with spectacles, to get speech of Mils Liddy. But she's a dear fweet foul, as innocent as the child unborn. She has tould me all her inward thoughts, and disclosed her passion for Mr. Wilfon; and that's not his name neither; and thof he acted among the player-men, he is meat for their masters; and fhe has gi'en me her vallow trollopea; which Mrs. Drab, the mantymaker, fays will look very well when it is fcowred and fmoaked with filfur-You knows as how, yallow fitts my fizzogmony. God, he knows what havock I fhall make among the mail-fex, when I make my first appearance in this killing collar, with a full fut of gaze, as good as new, that I bought laft Friday of madam Friponeau, the French mullaner-Dear girl, I have feen all the fine fhews of Bath; the Prades, the Squires, and the Circlis, the Crashit, the Hottogon, and Bloody Buildings, and Harry King's row; and I have been twice in the Bath with miftrefs, and na'r a fmoak upon our backs. huffy-----The first time I was mortally afraid, and flustered all day; and afterwards made believe that I had got the heddick; but miftrefs faid, if I didn't go, I fhould take a dofe of bum-taffy; and fo remembring how it worked Mrs. Gwyllim, a pennorth. I chofe rather to go again with her into the Bath, and then I met with an axident.

79

Ţ

I dropt my petticoat, and could not get it up from the bot:om-But what did that fignify? they mought laff, but they could fee nothing; for I was up to the fin in water. To be fure, it threw me into fuch a gumbuftion, that I know not what I faid, nor what I did, nor how they got me out, and rapt me in a blanket-Mrs. Tabitha fcoulded a little when we got home: but the knows as I know what's what-Ah Laud help you!-There is Sir Yury Micligut, of Balnaclinch, in the cunty of Kalloway-I took down the name from his gentleman. Mr. O Frizzle, and he has got an eftate of fifteen hundred a-year-I am fure he is both rich and generous-But you nofe, Molly; I was always famous for keeping fecrets; and fo he was very fafe in trufting me with his flegm for miftrefs; which, to be fure, is very honourable; for Mr. O Frizzle affures me, he values not her portion a brafs varthing-And, indeed, what's poor ten thousand pounds to a Baron Knight of his fortune? and, truly, I told Mr. O Frizzle, that was all fhe had to truft to-----As for John Thomas. he's a morafs fellor-I vow, 1 thought he would a fit with Mr. O Frizzle, becaufe he axed me to dance with him at Spring Garden-But Got he knows I have no thoughts eyther of wan or t'other.

As for house news, the worst is, Chowder has fallen off greatly from his stomick—He eats nothing but white meats, and not much of that; and and wheezes, and feems to be much bloated, The doctors think he is threatened with a dropfy -Parlon Marrowfat, who has got the fame disorder, finds great benefit from the waters; but Chowder feems to like them no better than the 'fquire; and miftrefs fays, if his cafe don't take a favourable turn, the will fartainly carry him to Aberga'nny, to drink goat's whey-To be fure, the poor dear honymil is loft for want of axercife; for which reafon. fhe intends to give him an airing once a-day upon the Downs, in a post-chaife-I have already made very creditable correxions in this here place; where, to be fure, we have the very fquintasense of satiety-Mrs. Patcher, my lady Kilmacullock's woman, and I are fworn fifters. She has fhewn me all her fecrets, and learned me to wash gaze, and refrash rufty filks and bumbeseens, by boiling them with winegar, chamberlye, and stale beer. My fhort fack and apron luck as good as new from the fhop, and my pumpydoor as fresh as a role, by the help of turtle-water-But this is all Greek and Latten to you, Molly-If we fhould come to Aberga'nny, you'll be within a day's ride of us; and then we fhall fee wan another, pleafe God-If not, remember me in your prayers, as I fhall do by you in mine; and take care of my kitten, and give my kind farvice to Sall; and this is all at prefent, from your beloved friend and farvent.

Bath, April 26. WINIFRED JENKINS.

Vol. I.

F

To Mrs. GWILLIM, Houfe-keeper, at Brambleton-hall.

T A M aftonished, that Dr. Lewis should take upon him to give away Alderney, without my privity and concurrants-What fignifies my brothers order? My brother is little better than Noncompush. He would give away the shirt off his back, and the teeth out of his head; nay, as for that matter, he would have ruinated the family with his ridiculous charities, if it had not been for my four quarters-What between his willfulnefs and his wafte, his trumps, and his frenzy, I lead the life of an indented flave. Alderney gave four gallons a day, ever fince the calf was fent to market. There is fo much milk out of my dairy, and the prefs must stand still: but I won't loofe a cheefe-paring; and the milk fhall be made good, if the farvents fhould go without butter. If they must needs have butter, let them make it of fheep's milk: but then my wool will fuffer for want of grace; fo that I must be a loser on all fides-----Well, patience is like a ftout Welfh poney; it bears a great deal, and trots a great way; but it will tire at the Before its long, perhaps I may long-run. fhew Matt, that I was not born to be houfhold drudge to my dying day-Gwyn rites from Crickhowel, that the price of flannel is fallen len three-farthings an ell; and that's another good penny out of my pocket-When I go to market to fell, my commodity flinks; but when I want to buy the commonest thing, the owner prick it up under my nofe; and it can't be had for love nor money-----I think every thing runs crofs at Brambletonhall-----You fay the gander has broke the eggs, which is a phinumenon I don't understand; for when the fox carried off the old goofe laft year, he took her place, and hatched the eggs, and partected the goflings like a tender parent-Then you tell me the thunder has foured two barrels of beer in the feller. But how the thunder fhould get there, when the feller was double-locked. I can't comprehend. Howfomever, I won't have the beer thrown out, till I fee it with my own eyes. Perhaps, it will recover-At least it will ferve for vinegar to the farvants. You may leave off the fires in my brother's chamber and mine, as it is unfartain when whe return.----I hope, Gwyllim. you'll take care there is no wafte; and have an eye to the maids, and keep them to their fpinning. I think they may go very well without beer in hot weather-It ferves only to inflame the blood, and fet them a-gog after the men. Water will make them fair, and keep them cool and temperit. Don't forget to put up in the portmantle, that cums with Williams, along with my riding habit, hat, and feather, the viol of purlwater, and the tincktur for my ftomach:

83

F 2

much; being as how I am much troubled with flutterencies. This is all at prefent, from

Yours,

Bath, April 26.

TABITHA BRAMBLE.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR DICK,

I HAVE done with the waters : therefore your advice comes a day too late-----I grant that phylic is no myltery of your making. T know it is a mystery in its own nature; and. like other mysteries, requires a strong gulp of faith to make it go down-Two days ago. I went into the King's Bath, by the advice of our friend Ch----, in order to clear the ftrainer of the fkin, for the benefit of a free perspiration; and the first object that faluted my eye, was a child full of fcrophulous ulcers, carried in the arms of one of the guides, under the very nofes of the bathers. I was fo fhocked at the fight. that I retired immediately with indignation and difgust----Suppose the matter of those ulcers, floating on the water, comes in contact with my fkin, when the pores are all open, I would alk you what must be the confequence?-Good HeaHeaven, the very thought makes my blood run cold! we know not what fores may be running into the water while we are bathing, and what fort of matter we may thus imbibe; the king'sevil, the fourvy, the cancer, and the pox; and, no doubt, the heat will render the virus the To purify mymore volatile and penetrating. felf from all fuch contamination, I went to the Duke of Kingston's private Bath, and there I was almost fuffocated for want of free air, the place was fo finall, and the fteam fo ftifling.

After all, if the intention is no more than to wash the skin, I am convinced that simple element is more effectual than any water impregnated with falt and iron; which, being aftringent, will certainly contract the pores, and leave a kind of cruft upon the furface of the body. But I am now as much afraid of drinking, as of bathing; for, after a long conversation with the Doctor, about the construction of the pump - and the ciftern, it is very far from being clear with me, that the patients in the Pump-room don't fwallow the fcourings of the bathers. T can't help fuspecting, that there is, cr may be, fome regurgitation from the bath into the ciftern of the pump. In that cafe, what a delicate beveridge is every day quaffed by the drinkers; medicated with the fweat, and dirt, and dandriff; and the abominable difcharges of various kinds, from twenty different difeafed bodies, parboiling in the kettle below. In order to avoid this filthy filthy composition, I had recourse to the spring that fupplies the private baths on the Abbeygreen; but I at once perceived fomething extraordinary in the tafte and fmell; and, upon enquiry. I find that the Roman baths in this quarter, were found covered by an old burying ground, belonging to the Abbey; through which, in all probability, the water drains in its paffage: fo that as we drink the decoction of living bodies at the Pump-room, we fwallow the ftrainings of rotten bones and carcafes at the private bath-I vow to God, the very idea turns my ftomach! -determined, as I am, against any farther use of the Bath-waters, this confideration would give me little diffurbance, if I could find any thing more pure, or lefs pernicious, to quench my thirft; but, although the natural fprings of excellent water are feen gushing spontaneous on every fide, from the hills that furround us, the inhabitants in general make use of well-water, fo impregnated with nitre, or alum, or fome other villainous mineral, that it is equally ungrateful to the tafte, and mifchievous to the conflictution. It must be owned, indeed, that here, in Milshamftreet, we have a precarious and fcanty fupply from the hill; which is collected in an open bafon in the Circus, liable to be defiled with dead dogs, cats, rats, and every fpecies of naftinefs. which the raically populace may throw into it. from mere wantonnefs and brutality.

F₃

.

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

,

Well, there is no nation that drinks fo hoggifhly as the English-What passes for wine among us, is not the juice of the grape. It is an adulterous mixture, brewed up of naufeous. ingredients, by dunces, who are bunglers in the art of poilor making; and yet we, and our forefathers, are and have been poiloned by this curfed drench, without tafte or flavour-The only genuine and wholefome beveridge in England, is London porter, and Dorchefter tablebeer; but as for your ale and your gin, your cyder and your perry, and all the trafhy family of made wines. I deteft them as infernal compofitions, contrived for the defiruction of the human fpecies.----But what have I to do with the human species? except a very few friends, I care not if the whole was-

Hark ye, Lewis, my milanthropy increases every day-The longer I live, I find the folly and the fraud of mankind grow more and more intolerable-1 with I had not come from Brambletonhall: after having lived in folitude fo long, I cannot bear the hurry and impertinence of the multitude; befides, every thing is fophifticated in thefe crowded places. Snares are laid for our lives in every thing we eat or drink : the very air we breathe, is loaded with contagion. We cannot even fleep, without risque of infection. I fay, infection-This place is the rendezvous of the difeated-----You won't deny, that many diseases are infectious; even the confumption itfelf, felf, is highly infectious. When a perfon dies of it in Italy, the bed and bedding are deftroyed; the other furniture is exposed to the weather. and the apartment white-washed, before it is occupied by any other living foul. You'll allow. that nothing receives infection looner, or retains it longer, than blankets, feather-beds, and matraffes----'Sdeath! how do I know what miferable objects have been flewing in the bed where I now lie!----I wonder, Dick, you did not put me in mind of fending for my own matrafies -But, if I had not been an afs, I fhould not have needed a remembrancer-There is always fome plaguy reflection that rifes up in judgment against me, and ruffles my spirits-----Therefore, let us change the fubject-

Fa

87

I have other reasons for abridging my ftay at Bath-You know fifter Tabby's complexion -----If Mrs. Tabitha Bramble had been of any other race, I flould certainly have looked upon her as the most-But, the truth is, fhe has found means to intereft my affection; or, rather, fhe is beholden to the force of prejudice, commonly called the ties of blood. Well, this amiable maiden has actually commenced a flirting correspondence with an Irish baronet of fixtyfive. His name is Sir Ulic Mackilligut. He is faid to be much out at elbows; and, I believe, has received falfe intelligence with respect to her Be that as it may, the connection fortune. is exceedingly ridiculous, and begins already to exexcite whifpers. For my part, I have no intention to difpute her free agency : though I fhall ' fall upon fome expedient to undeceive her paramour, as to the point which he has principally in view.' But I don't think her conduct is a proper example for Liddy, who has also attracted the notice of fome coxcombs in the rooms; and Jery tells me, he fuspects a ftrapping fellow, the Knight's nephew, of fome defign upon the girl's heart. I fhall, therefore, keep a ftrict eve over her aunt and her, and even fhift the scene, if I find the matter grow more ferious-You perceive what an agreeable tafk it must be, to a man of my kidney, to have the cure of fuch fouls as thefe-But, hold, you shall not have another peevifh word (till the next occafion) from

Yours.

Bath, April 28.

MATT. BRAMBLE.

F 5

Te

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR KNIGHT,

I THINK those people are unreasonable, who complain that Bath is a contracted circle, in which the fame dull fcenes perpetually revolve, without variation-I am, on the contrary, amazed to find fo fmall a place. fo crowded with entertainment and variety. London itself can hardly exhibit one fpecies of diversion, to which we have not fomething analogous at Bath, over and above those fingular advantages that are peculiar to the place. Here, for example, a man has daily opportunities of feeing the most remarkable characters of the community. He fees them in their natural attitudes and true colours; defcended from their pedestals, and divested of their formal draperies, undifguifed by art and affectation -----Here we have ministers of state, judges. generals, bifhops, projectors, philosophers, wits, poets, players', chemists, fiddlers, and buffoons. If he makes any confiderable ftay in the place, he is fure of meeting with fome particular friend, whom he did not expect to fee; and to me there is nothing more agreeable, than fuch cafual rencounters-Another entertainment, peculiar to Bath, arifes from the general mixture of all degrees affembled in our public rooms, without dif-

HUMPHRY CLINKER,

diffinction of rank or fortune. This is what my uncle reprobates, as a monftrous jumble of heterogeneous principles; a vile mob of noife and impertinence, without decency or fubordination. But this chaos is to me a fource of infinite amufement.

I was extremely diverted, last ball-night, to fee the Mafter of the Ceremonies leading, with great folemnity, to the upper end of the room, an antiquated Abigail, dreffed in her lady's caft clothes; whom he (I fuppofe) miltook for fome countels just arrived at the Bath. The ball was opened by a Scotch lord, with a mulatto heirefs from St. Chriftopher's; and the gay colonel Tinfel danced all the evening with the daughter of an eminent tinman from the borough of Southwark-Yesterday morning, at the Pump room I faw a brockenwinded Wapping landlady fqueeze through a circle of peers, to falute her brandy merchant, who flood by the window, prop'd upon crutches; and a paralytic attorney of Shoelane, in fhuffling up to the bar, kicked the fhins of the chancellor of England, while his lordfhip, in a cut bob, drank a glafs of water at the pump. I cannot account for my being pleafed with thefe incidents, any other way than by faying, they are truly ridiculous in their own nature, and ferve to heighten the humour in the farce of life, which I am determined to enjoy as long as I can.---

Thofe '

1

QL

Those follies, that move my uncle's spleen, excite my laughter. He is as tender as a man without a fkin; who cannot bear the flightest touch without flinching. What tickles another would give him torment; and yet he has what we may call lucid intervals, when he is remark. ably facetious-Indeed, I never knew a hvpochondriac fo apt to be infected with good-humour. He is the most risible misantrope I ever met with. A lucky joke, or any ludicrous incident, will fet him a laughing immoderately, even in one of his most gloomy paroxysms; and, when the laugh is over, he will curfe his own imbecillity. In conversing with strangers, he betrays no marks of difquiet-He is fplenetic with his familiars only; and not even with them, while they keep his attention employed; but when his fpirits are not exerted externally, they feem to recoil and prey upon himfelf---He has renounced the waters with execration; but he begins to find a more efficacious, and, certainly, a much more palatable remedy in the pleafures of focie-He has discovered some old friends, among tv. the invalids of Bath; and, in particular, renewed his acquaintance with the celebrated James Quin, who certainly did not come here to drink water. You cannot doubt, but that I had the ftrongeft curiofity to know this original; and it was gratified by Mr. Bramble, who has had him twice at our house to dinner.

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

So far as I am able to judge. Quin's character is rather more respectable than it has been generally reprefented. His bon mots are in every witling's mouth; but many of them have a rank flavour, which one would be apt to think was derived from a natural großnefs of idea. 1 fuspect, however, that justice has not been done the author. by the collectors of those Quiniana; who have let the best of them flip through their fingers, and only retained fuch as were fuited to the tafte and organs of the multitude. How for he may relax in his hours of jollity, I cannot pretend to fay; but his general conversation is conducted by the niceft rules of propriety; and Mr. James Quin is, certainly, one of the best bred men in the kingdom. He is not only a most agreeable companion; but (as I am credibly informed) a very honeft man; highly fusceptible of friendship, warm, steady, and even generous in his attachments; disdaining flattery, and incapable of meannefs and diffimulation. Were I to judge, however, from Quin's eye alone, I fhould take him to be proud, infolent, and cruel. There is fomething remarkably fevere and forbidding in his afpect; and, I have been told, he was ever disposed to infult his inferiors and dependants.____Perhaps that report has influenced my opinion of his looks-You know we are the fools of prejudice. Howfoever that may be, I have as yet feen nothing but his favourable fide: and my uncle, who frequently confers with him

93

him in a corner, declares he is one of the moft fensible men he ever knew-----He feems to have a reciprocal regard for old Square toes, whom he calls by the familiar name of Matthew, and often reminds of their old tavern-adventures; on the other hand, Matthew's eyes fparkle whenever Quin makes his appearance-Let him be never fo jarring and difcordant, Quin puts him in tune; and, like treble and bafs in the fame concert, they make excellent mufic together-T'other day, the conversation turning upon Shakespeare, I could not help faying, with fome emotion, that I would give an hundred guineas to fee Mr. Quin act the part of Falstaff; upon which, turning to me with a smile, "And I "would give a thoufand, young gentleman, "(faid he) that I could gratify your longing." My uncle and he are perfectly agreed in their estimate of life; which, Ouin fays, would stink in his 'noftrils, if he did not fteep it in claret.

I want to fee this phenomenon in his cups; and have almost prevailed upon uncle to give him a fmall turtle at the Bear. In the mean time, I must entertain you with an incident, that feems to confirm the judgment of those two cynic philofophers. I took the liberty to differ in opinion from Mr. Bramble, when he observed, that the mixture of people in the entertainments of this place was destructive of all order and urbanity; that it rendered the plebeians infusferably arrogant and troublesome, and vulgarized the deportment and fentifentiments of those who moved in the upper fpheres of life. He faid, fuch a prepofterous coalition would bring us into contempt with all our neighbours; and was worfe, in fact, than debafing the gold coin of the nation. I argued. on the contrary, that those plebeians who difcovered fuch eagerness to imitate the dress and equipage of their fuperiors, would likewife, in time, adopt their maxims and their manners, be polified by their conversation, and refined by their example; but when I appealed to Mr. Quin. and afked if he did not think that fuch an unreferved mixture would improve the whole mais? "Yes, (faid he) as a plate of marmalade "would improve a pan of firreverence,"

I owned I was not much conversant in highlife, but I had feen what were called polite affemblies in London and elfewhere; that those of Bath feemed to be as decent as any; and that, upon the whole, the individuals that composed it, would not be found deficient in good manners "But let us have recurfe to exand decorum. "perience, (faid 1)-Jack Holder, who was "intended for a parlon, has fucceeded to an effate "of two thousand a-year, by the death of his "elder brother. He is now at the Bath, driving "about in a phaeton and four, with French horns. "He has treated with turtle and claret at all the "taverns in Bath and Briftol, till his guests are "gorged with good chear: he has bought a "dozen fuits of fine clothes, by the advice of the "Mafter

⁹⁵

"Mafter of the Ceremonies, under whofe tuition "he has entered himfelf; he has loft fome "hundreds at billiards to fharpers, and taken one "of the nymplis of Avon-freet into keeping ; but. "finding all these channels infufficient to drain "him of his current cash, bis counfellor has en-"gaged him to give a general tea-drinking to-"morrow at Wiltfhire's room. In order to give "it the more eclat, every table is to be furnished "with fweat-meats and nofegays; which, how-"ever, are not to be touched till notice is given "by the ringing of a bell, and then the ladies "may help themfelves without reftriction. This "will be no bad way of trying the company's "breeding----"

"I will abide by that experiment, (cried my "uncle) and if I could find a place to fland fecu-"re, without the vortex of the tumult, which I "know will enfue, I would certainly go thither "and enjoy the fcene." Quin proposed that we fhould take our flation in the mufic-gallery; and Holder had got thither bewe took his advice. fore us, with his horns perdue; but we were admitted. The tea-drinking passed as usual; and the company having rifen from the tables, were fauntering in groupes, in expectation of the fignal for attack, when the bell beginning to ring, they flew with eagerness to the defert, and the whole place was instantly in commotion. There was nothing but justling, ferambling, pulling, fnatching, ftruggling, fcolding, and fcreaming. The nofenofegays were torn from one another's hands and bofoms; the glaffes and china went to wreck: the tables and floor were firewed with comfits. Some cried; fome fwore; and the tropes and figures of Billingsgate were used without referve in all their native zeft and flavour;, nor were those flowers of rhetoric unattended with fignificant gefticulations. Some fnapped their fingers; fome forked them out; fome clapped their hands, and fome their back-fides; at length, they fairly proceeded to pulling caps, and every thing feemed to presage a general battle; when Holder ordered his horns to found a charge, with a view to animate the combatants, and inflame the conteft; but this manœuvre produced an effect quite contrary to what he expected. It was a note of reproach that roufed them to an immediate fenfe of their difgraceful fituation. They were afhamed of their absurd deportment, and fuddenly defifted. They gathered up their caps. ruffles. and handkerchiefs; and great part of them retired in filent mortification.

Quin laughed at this adventure; but my uncle's delicacy was hurt. He hung his head in manifeft chagrin, and feemed to repine at the triumph of his judgment—Indeed, his victory was more complete than he imagined; for, as we afterwards learned, the two amazons who fingularized themfelves moft in the action, did not come from the purlieus of Puddle-dock, but from the courtly neighbourhood of St. James's Vol. I. G palace

,

One was a baronefs, and the other a palace. wealthy knight's dowager-----My uncle fpoke not a word, till we had made our retreat good to the coffee-houfe: where, taking off his hat and wiping his forehead, "I blefs God (faid he) "that Mrs. Tabitha Bramble did not take the field "to-day!" "I would pit her for a cool hundred "(cried Quin) against the best flake-bag of the The truth is, nothing could "whole main." have kept her at home but the accident of her having taken phyfic before the knew the nature of the entertainment. She has been for fome days furbishing up an old fuit of black velvet, to make her appearance as Sir Ulic's partner at the next ball.

I have much to fay of this amiable kinfwoman: but fhe has not been properly introduced to your acquaintance. She is remarkably civil to Mr. Ouin; of whole farcaftic humour fhe feems to fland in awe; but her caution is no match for her impertinence. "Mr. Gwynn, (faid fhe the other "day) I was once vaftly entertained with your " playing the Ghoft of Gimlet at Drury-lane, when "you role up through the ftage, with a white "face and red eyes, and spoke of quails upon the "frightful porcofine-Do, pray, spout a little "the Ghoft of Gimlet." "Madam, (faid Quin. "with a glance of ineffable difdain) the Ghoft of "Gimlet is laid, never to rife again-----" Tnfenfible of this check. fhe proceeded: "Well. "to be fure, you looked and talked fo like a real "ghoft; "ghoft; and then the cock crowed fo natural. "I wonder how you could teach him to crow fo "exact, in the very nick of time; but, I fup-"pofe, he's game-An't he game, Mr. "Gwynn ?" "Dunghill, madam." "Well. "dunghill, or not dunghill, he has got fuch a "clear counter-tenor, that I wish I had fuch "another at Brambleton-hall, to wake the maids "of a morning. Do you know where I could "find one of his brood ?" "Probably in the work-"house of St. Giles's parish, madam; but I protest "I know not his particular mew." My uncle. frying with vexation, cried, "Good God, fifter. "how you talk! I have told you twenty times, "that this gentleman's name is not Gwynn .--- " "Hoity toity, brother mine, (fhe replied) no "offence, I hope-Gwynn is an honourable "name, of true old British extraction-I "thought the gentleman had been come of Mrs. "Helen Gwynn, who was of his own profession; "and if fo be that were the cafe, he might be of "king Charles's breed, and have royal blood in "his veins-" "No, madam, (answered Quin, "with great folemnity) my mother was not a "whore of fuch diffinction-True it is. I am "fometimes tempted to believe myself of royal "descent: for my inclinations are often arbitrary "----If I was an abfolute prince, at this in-"ftant, I believe I fhould fend for the head of "your cook in a charger-She has committed "felony on the perfon of that John Dory; which "ie G 2

۱

"is mangled in a cruel manner, and even pre-"fented without fauce-----O tempora! O "mores!"

This good humoured fally turned the converfation into a lefs difagreeable channel——But, left you fhould think my fcribble as tedious as Mrs. Tabby's clack, I fhall not add another word, but that I am, as ufual,

Yours,

Bath, April 30.

J. MELFORD.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR LEWIS,

I RECEIVED your bill upon Wiltfhire, which was punctually honoured; but as I don't chufe to keep fo much cafh by me, in a common lodginghoufe, I have deposited 250 l. in the bank of Bath, and shall take their bills for it in London, when I leave this place, where the feason draws to an end—You must know, that now being a-foot, I am refolved to give Liddy a glimpfe of London. She is one of the best-hearted creatures I ever knew, and gains upon my affection every day—As for Tabby, I have dropt such hints to the Irish baronet, concerning her her fortune, as, I make no doubt, will cool the ardour of his addreffes. Then her pride will take the alarm; and the rancour of stale maidenhood being chafed, we shall hear nothing but flander and abufe of Sir Ulic Mackilligut-This rupture, I foresee, will facilitate our departure from Bath; where, at prefent, Tabby feems to enjoy herfelf with peculiar fatisfaction. For my part, I deteft it fo much, that I should not have been able to ftay fo long in the place if I had not discovered some old friends, whose conversation alleviates my difgust-Going to the coffeehouse one forenoon, I could not help contem. plating the company, with equal furprife and compation------We confisted of thirteen individuals; feven lamed by the gout, rheumatifm, or palfy; three maimed by accident; and the reft either deaf or blind. One hobbled, another hopped, a third dragged his legs after him like a wounded inake, a fourth straddled betwixt a pair of long crutches, like the mummy of a fellon hanging in chains; a fifth was bent into a horizontal polition, like a mounted telescope, shoved in by a couple of chairmen: and a fixth was the buft of a man, fet upright in a wheel-machine, which the waiter moved from place to place.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 101

Being ftruck with fome of their faces, I confulted the fubfcription book; and, perceiving the names of feveral old friends, began to confider the groupe with more attention. At length I difcovered rear-admiral Balderick, the companion

G 3

of

of my youth, whom I had not feen fince he was appointed lieutenant of the Severn. He was metamorphofed into an old man, with a wooden leg and a weather-beaten face; which appeared the more ancient from his gray locks, that were truly venerable-Sitting down at the table. where he was reading a news-paper, I gazed at him for fome minutes, with a mixture of pleafure and regret, which made my heart gufh with tenderness; then, taking him by the hand, "Ah, "Sam, (faid I) forty years ago I little thought "____" I was too much moved to proceed. "An old friend, fure enough! (cried he, fqueez-"ing my hand, and furveying me eagerly "through his glaffes) I know the looming of "the veffel, though flie has been hard ftrained "fince we parted; but I can't heave up the "name-" The moment I told him who I was, he exclaimed, "Ha! Matt, my old fellow-"cruifer, ftill afloat!" And, ftarting up, hugged me in his arms. His transport, however, boded me no good; for, in faluting me, he thrust the fpring of his fpectacles into my eye, and, at the fame time, fet his wooden ftump upon my gouty toe; an attack that made me flied tears in fad earneft-After the hurry of our recognition was over, he pointed out two of our common friends in the room: the buft was what remained of colonel Cockril, who had loft the ufe of his limbs in making an American campaign; and the telescope proved to be my college chum, Sir Re-

٩

Reginald Bentley; who, with his new title, and unexpected inheritance, commenced fox-hunter, without having ferved his apprenticefhip to the myftery; and, in confequence of following the hounds thro' a river, was feized with an inflammation in his bowels, which has contracted him into his prefent attitude.

Our former correspondence was forthwith renewed, with the most hearty expressions of mutual good-will; and as we had met fo unexpectedly, we agreed to dine together that very day at the tavern. My friend Quin, being luckily unengaged, obliged us with his company; and, truly, this was the most happy day. I have paffed thefe twenty years. You and I, Lewis, having been always together, never tafted friendfhip in this high gout, contracted by long absence. I cannot express the half of what I felt at this cafual meeting of three or four companions, who had been fo long feparated, and fo roughly treated by the ftorms of life. It was a renovation of youth; a kind of refuscitation of the dead, that realized those interesting dreams, in which we fometimes retrieve our ancient friends from the grave. Perhaps, my enjoyment was not the lefs pleafing for being mixed with a ftrain of melancholy, produced by the remem- . brauce of past scenes, that conjured up the ideas of fome endearing connections, which the hand of Death has actually diffolved.

١

ì.

The fpirits and good-humour of the company feemed to triumph over the wreck of their con-They had even philosophy enough fitutions to joke upon their own calamities; fuch is the power of friendship, the fovereign cordial of life ____I afterwards found, however, that they were not without their moments, and even hours of disquiet. Each of them apart, in fucceeding conferences, expatiated upon his own particular grievances; and they were all malecontents at bottom-----Over and above their perfonal difafters, they thought themselves unfortunate in the lottery of life. Balderick complained, that all the recompence he had received for his long and hard fervice, was the half-pay of a rear-admiral. The colonel was mortified to fee himfelf overtopped by upftart generals, fome of whom he had once commanded; and, being a man of a liberal turn, could ill put up with a moderate annuity, for which he had fold his commission. As for the baronet, having run himfelf confiderably in debt, on a contested election, he has been obliged to relinquish his feat in parliament, and his feat in the country at the fame time, and put his eftate to nurfe: but his chagrin. which is the effect of his own misconduct, does not affect me half fo much as that of the other two; who have acted honourable and diffinguished parts on the great theatre, and are now reduced to lead a weary life in this flew-pan of idleness and infignificance. They have long left off using the waters.

waters, after having experienced their inefficacy. The diverfions of the place they are not in a condition to enjoy. How then do they make fhift to pafs their time? In the forenoon, they crawl out to the rooms or the coffee-houfe, where they take a hand at whift, or defcant upon the General Advertifer; and their evenings they murder in private parties, among peevifh invalids, and infipid old women——This is the cafe with a good number of individuals, whom Nature feems to have intended for better purpofes.

About a dozen years ago, many decent families, restricted to fmall fortunes, besides those that came hither on the fcore of health, were tempted to fettle at Bath, where they could then live comfortably, and even make a genteel appearance, at a fmall expence: but the madnefs of the times has made the place too hot for them. and they are now obliged to think of other migrations-Some have already fled to the mountains of Wales, and others have retired to Exeter. Thither, no doubt, they will be followed by the flood of luxury and extravagance. which will drive them from place to place to the very Land's End; and there, I suppose, they will be obliged to fhip themfelves to fome other country. Bath is become a mere fink of profligacy and extortion. Every article of houfekeeping is raifed to an enormous price; a circumftance no longer to be wondered at, when we know that every petty retainer of fortune, G 5 piques piques himfelf upon keeping a table, and thinks tis for the honour of his character to wink at the knavery of his fervants, who are in a confederacy with the market-people; and, of confequence, pay whatever they demand. Here is now a mushroom of opulence, who pays a cook feventy guineas a-week for furnishing him with one meal a-day. This portentous frenzy is become fo contagious, that the very rabble and refuse of mankind are infected. I have known a negro-driver, from Jamaica, pay over-night to the mafter of one of the rooms, fixty-five guineas for tea and coffee to the company, and leave Bath next morning, in fuch obfcurity, that not one of his guefts had the flighteft idea of his perfon, or even made the least inquiry about his name. Incidents of this kind are frequent; and every day teems with fresh absurdities, which 'are too grofs to make a thinking man merry .----But I feel the fpleen creeping on me apace; and therefore will indulge you with a ceffation, that you may have no unneceffary caule to curfe your correspondence with,

Dear Dick,

vours ever,

Bath, May 5.

r

MATT. BRAMBLE.

To

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 107

To Mifs LETITIA WILLIS, at Gloucester.

My DEAR LETTY,

I WROTE you at great length by the poft, the twenty-fixth of last month, to which I refer you for an account of our proceedings at Bath; and I expect your answer with impatience. But, having this opportunity of a private hand. I fend you two dozen of Bath rings; fix of the beft of which I defire you will keep for yourfelf, and distribute the rest among the young ladies, our common friends, as you fhall think proper-I don't know how you will approve of the mottoes; fome of them are not much to my own liking; but I was obliged to take fuch as I could find ready manufactured-I am vexed, that neither you nor I have received any further information of a certain perfon-Sure it can't be wilful neglect!-O my dear Willis! I begin to be visited by strange fancies, and to have some melancholy doubts; which, however, it would be ungenerous to harbour without further inquiry-My uncle, who has made me a prefent of a very fine fet of garnets, talks of treating us with a jaunt to London; which, you may imagine, will be highly agreeable: but I like Bath fo well, that I hope he won't think of leaving it till the feafon is quite over; and yet, betwixt friends, fomething thing has happened to my aunt, which will pro. bably fhorten our ftay in this place.

Vesterday, in the forenoon, fhe went by herfelf to a breakfafting in one of the rooms; and, in half an hour, returned in great agitation, haying Chowder along with her in the chair. I believe fome accident must have happened to that unlucky animal, which is the great fource of all her troubles. Dear Letty! what a pity it is, that a woman of her years and difcretion, fhould place her affection upon fuch an ugly, ill-conditioned cur, that fnarls and fnaps at every body. I asked John Thomas, the sootman who attended her, what was the matter? and he did nothing but grin. A famous dog doctor was fent for. and undertook to cure the patient, provided he might carry him home to his own houfe; but his mistress would not part with him out of her own fight-She ordered the cook to warm clothes, which fhe applied to his bowels with her own hand. She gave up all thoughts of going to the ball in the evening; and when Sir Ulic came to drink tea, refused to be feen; fo that he went away to look for another partner. My brother Jery whiftles and dances. My uncle fometimes fhrugs up his fhoulders, and fometimes burfts out a-laughing. My aunt fobs and fcolds by turns; and her woman, Win. Jenkins. ftares and wonders with a foolifh face of curiofity; and, for my part, I am as curious as fhe, but ashamed to ask questions.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 109

Perhaps time will discover the mystery; for if it was any thing that happened in the Rooms, it can't be long concealed ____ All I know is, that last night at supper. Miss Bramble spoke very difdainfully of Sir Ulic Mackilligut, and afked her brother if he intended to keep us fweltering all the fummer at Bath? "No, fister Tabitha, "(faid he, with an arch finile) we fhall retreat "before the Dog days begin; though I make no "doubt, that with a little temperance and "difcretion, our conftitution might be kept cool "enough all the year, even at Bath." As T don't know the meaning of that infinuation, I won't pretend to make any remarks upon it at prefent: hereafter, perhaps, I may be able to explain it more to your fatisfaction-In the mean time I beg you will be panctual in your correspondence, and continue to love your ever faithful

Bath, May 6.

LYDIA MELFORD.

То

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxon.

SO then Mrs. Blackerby's affair has proved a falfe alarm, and I have faved my money? I wifh. however, her declaration had not been fo premature, for though my being thought capable of making her a mother, might have given me fome credit, the reputation of an intrigue with fuch a cracked pitcher does me no honour at all-In my last I told you I had hopes of feeing Quin, in his hours of elevation at the tavern, which is the temple of mirth and good-fellowship; where he, as Prieft of Comus, utters the infpirations of wit and humour-I have had that fatisfaction. I have dined with this club at the Three Tuns, and had the honour to fit him out. At half an hour past eight in the evening, he was carried home with fix good bottles of claret under his belt; and it being then Friday, he gave orders that he fhould not be diffurbed till Sunday at noon-You must not imagine that this dose had any other effect upon his conversation, but that of making it more extravagantly entertaining-----He had loft the ufe of his limbs, indeed. feveral hours before we parted, but he retained all his other faculties in perfection; and as he gave vent to every whimfical idea as it role, I was really aftonifhed at the brillancy of his thoughts, and the force of his expression. Ouin is a real voluptuary in the articles of eating and drinking; and fo confirmed an epicure, in the common acceptation of the term, that he cannot put up with ordinary fare. This is a point of fuch importance with him, that he always takes upon himfelf the charge of catering; and a man admitted to his mefs. is always fure of eating delicate victuals, and drinking excellent wine-He owns himfelf addicted to the delights of the ftomach, and often jokes upon his own fenfuality; but there is nothing felfifh in this appetite-----He finds that good chear unties good company; exhilarates the fpirits, opens the heart. banishes all restraint from conversation, and promotes the happiest purposes of focial life.-But Mr. James Quin is not a subject to be discussed in the compass of one letter; I shall therefore, at present, leave him to his repose, and call another of a very different complexion.

You defire to have further acquaintance with the perfon of our aunt, and promife yourfelf much entertainment from her connexion with Sir Ulic Mackilligut; but in this hope you are baulked already; that connexion is diffolved. The Irifh baronet is an old hound, that, finding her carrion, has quitted the fcent——I have already told you, that Mrs. Tabitha Bramble is a maiden of forty-five. In her perfon, fhe is tall, raw-boned, aukward, flat-chefted, and ftooping; her complexion is fallow and freckled; her eyes are not gray, but greenifh, like thofe of a cat, and

• and generally inflamed; her hair is of a fandy, or rather dufty hue; her forehead low; her nofe Tong, fharp, and, towards the extremity, always red in cool weather; her lips fkinny, her mouth extensive, her teeth ftraggling and loofe, of various colours and conformation; and her long neck fhrivelled into a thoufand wrinkles—In her temper, fhe is proud, ftiff, vain, imperious, prying, malicious, greedy, and uncharitable. In all likelihood, her natural aufterity has been foured by difappointment in love; for her long celibacy is by no means owing to her diflike of matrimony: on the contrary, fhe has left no ftone unturned to avoid the reproachful epithet of old maid.

Before I was born, fhe had gone fuch lengths in the way of flirting with a recruiting officer, that her reputation was a little finged. She afterwards made advances to the curate of the parish, who dropped fome distant hints about the next prefentation to the living, which was in her brother's gift; but finding that was already promised to another, he flew off at a tangent; and Mrs. Tabby, in revenge, found means to deprive him of his cure. Her next lover was lieutenant of a man of war, a relation of the family, who did not understand the refinements of the paffion, and expressed no aversion to grapple with coufin Tabby in the way of marriage; but before matters could be properly adjusted, he went out on a cruife, and was killed in an enga-engagement with a French frigate. Our aunt, though baffled fo often, did not yet defpair fhe laid all her fnares for Dr. Lewis, who is the fider Achates of my uncle. She even fell fick upon the occalion, and prevailed with Matt to interpose in her behalf with his friend; but the Doctor, being a fly cock, would not be caught with chaff, and flatly rejected the proposal: fo that Mrs. Tabitha was content to exert her patience once more, after having endeavoured in vain to effect a rupture betwixt the two friends; and now fhe thinks proper to be very civil to Lewis, who is become necessfary to her in the way of his profession.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. I

These, however, are not the only efforts she has made towards a nearer conjunction with our Her fortune was originally no more than fex. a thousand pounds; but she gained an accession of five hundred by the death of a fifter, and the lieutenant left her three bundred in his will. Thefe fums fhe has more than doubled, by living free of all expence, in her brother's houfe; and dealing in cheefe and Welfh flannel, the produce of his flocks and dairy. At prefent her capital is increased to about four thousand pounds; and her avarice feems to grow every day more and more rapacious: but even this is not fo intolerable, as the perverfenefs of her nature, which keeps the whole family in difquiet and uproar. She is one of those geniuses who find fome dia-Vol. L Η bolibolical enjoyment in being dreaded and detefted by their fellow-creatures.

113

I once told my uncle, I was furprised that a man of his disposition could bear such a domestic plague, when it could be fo eafily removed-----The remark made him fore, because it feemed to tax him with want of refolution-Wrinkling up his nofe, and drawing down his eyebrows. "A young fellow, (faid he) when he "first thrusts his fnout into the world, is apt to "be furprifed at many things, which a man of "experience knows to be ordinary and un-"avoidable-----This precious aunt of yours is "become infenfibly a part of my conftitution-"Damn her! She's a noli me tangere in my flesh. "which I cannot bear to be touched or tampered "with." I made no reply; but fhifted the conversation. He really has an affection for this original, which maintains its ground in defiance of common fense, and in despite of that contempt which he must certainly feel for her character and understanding. Nay. I am convinced, that fhe has likewife a most virulent attachment to his perfon; though her love never fhews itfelf but in the fhape of difcontent; and fhe perfifts in tormenting him out of fheer tendernefs-The only object within doors upon which fhe bestows any marks of affection, in the usual stile. is her dog Chowder; a filthy cur from Newfoundland, which fhe had in a prefent from the wife of a fkipper in Swanfey-----One would imaimagine fhe had diftinguished this beast with her favour on account of his ugliness and ill nature; if it was not, indeed, an inftinctive sympathy between his disposition and her own. Certain it is, the carefles him without ceasing; and even harnafles the family in the fervices of this curfed animal which, indeed, has proved the proximate cause of her breach with Sir Ulic Mackilligut.

You must know, she yesterday wanted to fteal a march of poor Liddy, and went to breakfast in the room without any other companion than her dog, in expectation of meeting with the Baronet, who had agreed to dance with her in the evening-----Chowder no fooner made his appearance in the room than the Mafter of the Ceremonies, incenfed at his prefumption, ran up to drive him away, and threatened him with his foot; but the other feemed to defpife his authority, and difplaying a formidable cafe of long, white, fharp teeth, kept the puny monarch at bay-----While he ftood under fome trepidation, fronting his antagonist, and bawling to the waiter, Sir Ulic Mackilligut came to bis affiftance; and feeming ignorant of the connection betwixt this intruder and his miftrefs, gave the former fuch a kick in the jaws, as fent him howling to the door-Mrs. Tabitha, incenfed at this outrage, ran after him, fqualling in a tone equally difagreeable; while the Baronet followed her on one fide, making apologies for his mistake; and Derrick on the other, making re-H 2 monmonstrances upon the rules and regulations of the place.

Ĵ

Far from being fatisfied with the Knight's excufes, the faid the was fure he was no gentleman; and when the Mafter of the Ceremonies offered to hand her into the chair, fhe rapped him over the knuckles with her fan. My uncle's footman being ftill at the door, fhe and Chowder got into the fame vehicle, and were carried off amidst the jokes of the chairmen and other populace----I had been riding out on Clerkendown, and happened to enter just as the fracas was over-The Baronet, coming up to me with an affected air of chagrin, recounted the adventure; at which I laughed heartily, and then his countenance cleared up. "My dear "foul, (faid he) when I faw a fort of a wild "baift, fnarling with open mouth at the Mafler "of the Ceremonies, like the red cow going to "devour Tom Thumb, I could not do lefs than "go to the affistance of the little man; but I "never dreamt the baift was one of Mrs. Bram." "ble's attendants----O} if I had, he might "have made his breakfast upon Derrick and wel. "come-but, you know, my dear friend. "how natural it is for us Irifhmen to blunder. "and to take the wrong fow by the ear-----"However, I will confess judgment, and ory her "mercy; and, 'tis to be hoped, a penitent fin-"ner may be forgiven." I told him, that as the offence offence was not voluntary of his fide, it was to be hoped he would not find her implacable.

But, in truth; all this concern was diffembled. In his approaches of gallantry to Mrs. Tabitha, he had been milled by a miltake of at least fix thousand pounds, in the calculation of her fortune; and in this particular he was just undeceived. He, therefore, feized the first opportunity of incurring her difpleafure decently, in fuch a manner as would certainly annihilate the correspondence; and he could not have taken a more effectual method, than that of beating her dog. When he prefented himfelf at our door, to pay his respects to the offended fair, he was refused admittance; and given to understand, that he fhould never find her at home for the future. She was not fo inacceffible to Derrick, who . came to demand fatisfaction for the infult fhe had offered to him, even in the verge of his own court. She knew it was convenient to be well with the Mafter of the Ceremonies, while fhe continued to frequent the Rooms; and, having heard he was a poet, began to be afraid of making her appearance in a ballad or lampoon .-----She therefore made excuses for what the had done, imputing it to the flutter of her fpirits; and fubscribed handsomely for his poems: ſo that he was perfectly appealed, and overwhelmed her with a profusion of compliment. He even folicited a reconciliation with Chowder; which, however, the latter declined; and he H 3 de-declared, that if he could find a precedent in the annals of the Bath, which he would carefully examine for that purpose. her favourite fhould be admitted to the next public breakfafting-But, I believe, fhe will not expose herself or him to the risque of a second diforace----Who will fupply the place of Mackilligut in her affections, I cannot forefee; but nothing in the fhape of a man can come amifs. Though the is a violent church-woman. of the most intolerant zeal. I believe in my confcience fhe would have no objection, at prefent, to treat on the fcore of matrimony with an Anabaptift, Quaker, or Jew; and even ratify the treaty, at the expence of her own conversion. But, perhaps, I think too hardly of this kinfwoman: who. I must own, is very little beholden to the good opinion of

Yours,

Bath, May 6.

J. MELFORD.

T٥

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 119

To Dr. LEWIS.

YOU afk me, why I don't take the air ahorseback, during this fine weather?----In which of the avenues of this paradife would you . have me take that exercise? Shall I commit myfelf to the highroads of London or Briftol, to be stifled with dust, or pressed to death in the midit of post-chaises, flying-machines, waggons, and coal-horfes; befides the troops of fine gentlemen that take to the highway to fnew their horsemanship! and the coaches of fine ladies. who go thither to fhew their equipages ? Shall I attempt the Downs, and fatigue myfelf to death in climbing up an eternal afcent, without any hopes of reaching the fummit? Know then, I have made divers desperate leaps at those upper regions; but always fell backward into this vapourpit, exhausted and dispirited by those ineffectual efforts: and here we poor valetudinarians pant and ftruggle, like fo many Chinefe gudgeons, gasping in the bottom of a punch-bowel. Βv Heaven, it is a kind of enchantment! If I do not fpeedily break the fpell, and efcape, I may chance to give up the ghoft in this nauleous flew of corruption-It was but two nights ago, that I had like to have made my public exit, at a minute's warning. One of my greateft weakneffes is that of fuffering myfelf to be over-ruled by the opinion of people, whole judgment I . despife H 4 defpile——I own, with fhame and confusion of face, that importunity of any kind I cannot refift. This want of courage and conftancy is an original flaw in my nature, which you muft have often obferved with compafiion, if not with contempt. I am afraid fome of our boafted virtues may be traced up to this defect.—

Without further preamble, I was perfuaded to go to a ball, on purpose to see Liddy dance a minuet with a young petulant jackanapes, the only fon of a wealthy undertaker from London, whole mother lodges in our neighbourhood, and has contracted an acquaintance with Tabby. T fat a couple of long hours, half ftifled, in the midft of a noifome crowd; and could not help wondering, that fo many hundreds of those that rank as rational creatures, could find entertainment in feeing a fuccession of infipid animals, defcribing the fame dull figure for a whole evening, on an area, not much bigger than a taylor's fhop-board. If there had been any beauty, grace, activity, magnificent drefs, or variety of any kind, howfoever abfurd, to engage the attention. and amuse the fancy, I should not have been furprifed; but there was no fuch object: it was a tirefome repetition of the fame languid, frivolous fcene, performed by actors that feemed to fleep in all their motions-The continual fwimming of those phantoms before my eyes, gave me a fwimming of the head; which was alfo affected by the fouled air, circulating through fuch fuch a number of rotten human bellows——I therefore retreated towards the door, and food in the paffage to the next room, talking to my friend Quin; when an end being put to the minuets, the benches were removed to make way for the countrydances; and the multitude riling at once, the whole atmosphere was put in commotion. Then, all of a fudden, came rushing upon me an Egyptian gale, fo impregnated with peftilential vapours, that my nerves were overpowered, and I dropt fenfeles upon the floor.

You may eafily conceive what a clamour and confusion this accident must have produced. in fuch an affembly-I foon recovered, however, and found myself in an easy chair, supported by my own people-Sifter Tabby, in her great tendernefs, had put me to the torture, fqueezing my head under her arm, and fluffing my nofe with fpirit of hartfhorn, till the whole infide was I no fooner got home, than I fent excoriated. for doctor Ch----, who affured me, I needed not be alarmed, for my fwooning was entirely occafioned by an accidental impression of fetid effluvia upon nerves of uncommon fensibility. I know not how other people's nerves are conftructed ; but one would imagine they must be made of very coarfe materials, to ftand the fhock of fuch a horrid affault. It was, indeed, a compound of villainous smells, in which the most violent ftinks, and the most powerful perfumes, contended for the maftery. Imagine to yourfelf a H₅ high high exalted effence of mingled odours, arifing from putrid gums, impofthumated lungs, four flatulencies, rank arm-pits, fweating feet, runming fores and iffues; plafters, ointments, and embrocations, hungary-water, fpirit of lavender, affafœtida drops, muſk, hartſhorn, and fal volatile; beſides a thouſand frowzy ſteams, which I could not analyſe. Such, O Dick! is the fragrant æther we breathe in the polite afſæmblies of Bath—Such is the atmoſphere I have exchanged for the pure, élaſtic, animating air of the Welſh mountains—O Rus, quando te aſpiciam!—I wonder what the devil poſſefſed me—

But few words are beft: I have taken my refolution-You may well fuppofe I don't intend to entertain the company with a fecond exhibition-I have promifed, in an evil hour, to proceed to London, and that promife shall be performed; but my ftay in the metropolis fhall be brief. I have, for the benefit of my health, projected an expedition to the North, which, I hope, will afford fome agreeable pastime. T have never travelled farther that way than Scarborough; and, I think, it is a reproach upon me, as a British freeholder, to have lived to long without making an excursion to the other fide of the Tweed. Befides. I have fome relations fettled in Yorkshire, to whom it may not be improper to introduce my nephew and his fifter-At prefent, I have nothing to add, but that Tab. Tabby is happily difentangled from the Irifh Baronet; and that I will not fail to make you acquainted, from time to time, with the fequel of our adventures; a mark of confideration, which perhaps, you would willingly difpenfe with in

Your humble fervant,

Bath, May 8. MATT. BRAMBLE.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

A FEW days ago we were terribly alarmed by my uncle's fainting at the ball----He has been ever fince curfing his own folly, for going thither at the request of an impertinent woman. He declares, he will fooner vifit a house infected with the plague, than truft himfelf in fuch a naufeous fpital for the future, for he fwears the accident was occasioned by the stench of the crowd: and that he would never defire a ftronger proof of our being made of very grofs materials, than our having withfood the annoyance. by which he was fo much difcomposed. For my part. I am very thankful for the coarfenels of my organs, being in no danger of ever falling a fa- '

factifice to the delicacy of my nofe. Mr. Bramble is extravagantly delicate in all his fenfations, both of foul and body. I was informed by Dr. Lewis, that he once fought a duel with an officer of the horfe gards, for turning afide to the Park-wall on a neceffary occafion, when he was paffing with a lady under his protection. His blood rifes at every inftance of infolence and cruelty, even where he himfelf is no way concerned; and ingratitude makes his teeth chatter. On the other hand, the recital of a generous, humane, or grateful action, never fails to draw from him tears of approbation, which he is often greatly diftreffed to conceal.

Yefterday, one Paunceford gave tea, on particular invitation .----- This man, after having been long buffeted by Adversity, went abroad; and Fortune, refolved to make him amends for her former coynefs, fet him all at once up to the yery ears in affluence. He has now emerged from obfcurity, and blazes out in all the tinfel of the times. I don't find that he is charged with any practices that the law deems diffioneft, or that his wealth has made him arrogant and inacceffible; on the contrary, he takes great pains to appear affable and gracious. But they fay, he is remarkable for fhrinking from his former friendfhips, which were generally too plain and homefpun to appear amidst his prefent brilliant connexions; and that he feems unealy at fight of fome old benefactors, whom a man of honour would would take pleafure to acknowledge------Be that as it may, he had fo effectually engaged the company at Bath, that when I went with my uncle to the coffee house in the evening, there was not a foul in the room but one perfon, feemingly in years, who fat by the fire, reading one of the papers. Mr. Bramble, taking his ftation close by him, "There is fuch a crowd and "confusion of chairs in the passage to Simpson's, "(faid he) that we could hardly get along-"I with thole minions of fortune would fall upon "more laudable ways of fpending their money "-----l fuppofe, Sir, you like this kind of en-"tertainment as little as I do?" "I can't fay I "have any great relifh for fuch entertainments," answered the other, without taking his eyes off the paper----- "Mr. Serle, (refumed my uncle) "I beg pardon for interrupting you; but I can't "refift the curiofity I have to know if you re-"ceived a card on this occafion?"

The man feemed furprifed at this addrefs, and made fome paufe, as doubtful what anfwer he fhould make. "I know my curiofity is imperti-"nent, (added my uncle) but I have a particular "reafon for afking the favour." "If that be the "cafe, (replied Mr. Serle) I fhall gratify you "without hefitation, by owning, that I have "had no card. But, give me leave, Sir, to afk "in my turn, what reafon you think I have to "expect fuch an invitation from the gentleman "who gives tea?" "I have my own reafons;" (cried

(cried Mr. Bramble, with fome emotion) "and "am convinced more than ever, that this Paunce. "ford is a contemptible fellow." "Sir," (faid the other, laying down the paper) "I have not "the honour to know you, but your difcourfe "is a little myfterious, and feems to require fome "explanation. The perfon you are pleafed to "treat fo cavalierly, is a gentleman of fome con-"fequence in the community; and, for aught "you know, I may alfo have my particular rea-"fons for defending his character—" "If I "was not convinced of the contrary," (obferved the other) "I fhould not have gone fo far—" "Let me tell you, Sir," (faid the ftranger, raifing his voice) "you have gone too far in ha-"zarding fuch reflections—"

Here he was interrupted by my uncle; who afked peevifhly, if he was Don Quixote enough, at this time of day, to throw down his gaunlet as champion for a man who had treated him with fuch ungrateful neglect. "For my part," (added he) "I fhall never quarrel with you again upon "this fubject; and what I have faid now, has "been fuggefted as much by my regard for you, "as by my contempt of him-----" Mr. Serle, then pulling off his fpectacles, eyed uncle very earneftly, faying, in a mitigated tone, "Surely. "I am much obliged-Ah, Mr. Bramble! "I now recollect your features, though I "have not feen you thefe many years." "We "might have been lefs ftrangers to one another," (anfwered

(anfwered the 'fquire) "if our correspondence "had not been interrupted, in confequence of a "mifunderstanding occasioned by this very-"But no matter-----Mr. Serle, I effeem your "character; and my friendship, fuch as it is, "you may freely command." "The offer is too "agreeable to be declined (faid he); I embrace "it very cordially; and, as the first fruits of it, "request that you will change this fubject, "which, with me, is a matter of peculiar de-"licacy."

My uncle owned he was in the right, and the difcourfe took a more general turn. Mr. Serle paffed the evening with us at our lodgings; and appeared to be intelligent, and even entertaining; but his difpofition was rather of a melancholy hue. My uncle fays he is a man of uncommon parts, and unquestioned probity: that his fortune, which was originally finall, has been greatly hurt by a romantic fpirit of generofity, which he has often difplayed, even at the expence of his difcretion, in favour of worthlefs individuals-That he had refcued Paunceford from the loweft diffrefs. when he was bankrupt, both in means and reputation-That he had espoufed his interefts with a degree of enthuliafm, broke with feveral friends, and even drawn his fword against my uncle, who had particular reasons for questioning the moral character of the faid Paunceford: that, without Serle's countenance and affiftance, the other never could have embraced the opportunity, which has raifed him to this pinnacle of wealth: that Paunceford, in the first transports of his fuccefs, had written, from abroad. letters to different correspondents, owning his obligations to Mr. Serle, in the warmest terms of acknowledgement, and declaring he confidered himfelf only as a factor for the occasions of his best friend: that, without doubt. he had made declarations of the fame nature to his benefactor himfelf, though this laft was always filent and referved on the fubject; but for fome years, those tropes and figures of rhetoric had been difused: that, upon his return to England, he had been lavish in his careffes to Mr. Serle, invited him to his house, and preffed him to make it his own: that he had overwhelmed him with general professions, and affected to exprefs the warmeft regard for him, in company of their common acquaintance; fo that every body believed his gratitude was as liberal as his fortune; and fome went fo far as to congratulate Mr. Serle on both.

op-

All this time Paunceford carefully and artfully avoided particular difcuffions with his old patron, who had too much fpirit to drop the moft diftant hint of balancing the account of obligation: that, neverthelefs, a man of his feelings could not but refent this flocking return for all his kindnefs; and, therefore, he withdrew himfelf from the connexion, without coming to the leaft explanation, or fpeaking a fyllable on the fubject to any living living foul; fo that now their correspondence is reduced to a flight falute with the hat, when they chance to meet in any public place; an accident that rarely happens, for their walks lie different ways. Mr. Paunceford lives in a palace, feeds upon dainties, is arrayed in fumptuous apparel, appears in all the pomp of equipage, and paffes his time among the nobles of the land. Serle lodges in Stall-street, up two pair of flairs backwards, walks a foot in a bath rug, eats for twelve fhillings a-week, and drinks water as a prefervative against the gout and gravel-Mark the viciflitude. Paunceford once refided in a garret; where he fublified upon fheep's-trotters and cow-heel, from which commons he was translated to the table of Serle, that ever abounded with good cheer; until want of æconomy and retention, reduced him to a flender annuity in his decline of years, that fcarce affords the bare necessaries of life-Paunceford, however, does him the honour to fpeak of him ftill, with uncommon regard; and to declare what pleafure it would give him to contribute in any fhape to his convenience: "But you know." (he never fails to add) "he's a fly kind of a man-"And then fuch a perfect philosopher, that he "looks upon all fuperfluities with the most "fovereign contempt."

Having given you this fketch of 'fquire Paunceford, I need not make any comment on his character, but leave it at the mercy of your own reflec-

VOL. L.

reflection; from which, I dare fay, it will meet with as little quarter as it has found with

Yours always,

Bath, May 10.

۱

١

J. MELFORD.

To Mrs. MARY JONES, at Brambleton-hall.

DEAR MOLLY,

WE are all upon the ving-Hey for London, girl!-Fecks! we have been long enough here; for we're all turned tipfy turvy----Mistrefs has excarded Sir Ulic for kicking of Chowder; and I have fent O Frizzle away, with a flea in his ear----- I've fhewn him how little I minded his tinfy and his long tail-----A fellor. who would think for to go, for to offer, to take up with a dirty trollop under my nofe----I ketched him in the very fect, coming out of the house-maid's garret .---- But I have gi'en the dirty flut a fiferary. O Molly! the farvants at Bath are devils in garnet-They lite the candle at both ends-Here's nothing but ginketting, and wafting, and thieving, and tricking, and trigging; and then they are never content-They won't fuffer the 'fquire and mistress to ftay any longer; because they have been already above three three weeks in the houfe; and they look for a couple of ginneys a piece at our going away: and this is a perquifite they expect every month in the feafon; being as how no family has a right to ftay longer than four weeks in the fame lodgings; and fo the cuck fwears, fhe will pin the difh clout to mistrefs's tail; and the house-maid vows, she'll put cowitch in master's bed, if fo be he don't discamp without furder ado----I don't blame them for making the most of their market, in the way of vails and parquifites: and I defy the devil to fay I am a tail-carrier, or ever brought a poor farvant into trouble-But then they oft to have fome confcience, in vronging those that be farvants like themselves-For you must no, Molly, I missed three quarters of blond lace, and a remnant of muflin, and my filver thimble; which was the gift of true love: they were all in my workbasket, that I left upon the table in the farvants-hall, when miffreffes bell rung; but if they had been under lock and kay, 'twould have been all the fame; for there are double kays to all the locks in Bath; and they fay as how the very teeth an't fafe in your head, if you fleep with your mouth open____And fo fays I to myself, them things could not go without hands; and fo I'll watch their waters: And fo I did with a vitnefs; for then it was I found Bett confarmed with O Frizzle. And as the cuck had thrown her flufh at me, because I had taken part with Chowder, when when he fit with the turnspit. I refolved to make a clear kitchen, and throw fome of her fat into the fire. I ketched the chare-woman going out with her load in the morning, before fhe thought I was up, and brought her to mistrefs with her whole cargo-Marry, what do'it think fhe had got in the name of God? Her buckets were foaming full of our beft beer. and her lap was fluffed with a cold tongue, part of a buttock of beef, half a turkey, and a fwinging lump of butter, and the matter of ten moulded kandles, that had fcarce ever been lit. The cuck brazened it out, and faid, it was her rite to rummage the pantry; and the was ready for to go before the mare: that he had been her potticary many years, and would never think of hurting a poor farvant, for giving away the fcraps of the kitchen-I went another way to work with madam Betty, because fhe had been faucy, and called me fkandelus names; and faid O Frizzle couldn't abide me, and twenty other odorous fallhoods. I got a varrant from the mare, and her box being fanched by the conftable, my things came out fure enuff; befides a full pound of vax candles, and a nite-cap of miftrefs, that I could fware to on my cruperal oaf-O! then madam Mopflick came upon her merry bones; and as the 'lquire woudn't hare of a purfecution, fhe efcaped a fkewering: but, the longeft

1

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 133 longest day she has to live, she'll remember your humble farvant,

Bath, May 15. WINIFRED JENKINS.

 If the hind fhould come again, before we be gone, pray fend me the fhift and apron, with the vite gallow manky fhoes; which you'll find in my pillober—Sarvice to Saul—

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxon.

YOU are in the right, dear Phillips; I don't expect regular answers to every letter——I know a college-life is too circumfcribed to afford materials for fuch quick returns of communication. For my part, I am continually shifting the scene, and furrounded with new objects; fome of which are striking enough. I shall therefore conclude my journal for your amusement; and though, in all appearance, it will not treat of very important or interesting particulars, it may prove, perhaps, not altogether uninstructive and unentertaining.

The mufic and entertainments of Bath are over for this feason; and all our gay birds of paf-

13

fage

fage have taken their flight to Briftol-well, Tunbridge, Brighthelmstone, Scarborough, Harrowgate, &c. Not a foul is feen in this place, but a few brokenwinded parfons, waddling like fo many crows along the North Parade. There is always a great shew of the clergy at Bath; none of your thin, puny, yellow, hettic figures, exhausted with abstinence and hard study, labouring under the morbi eruditorum; but great overgrown dignitaries and rectors, with rubicund nofes and gouty ankles, or broad bloated faces, dragging along great strag bellies; the emblems of floth and indigestion—

Now we are upon the fubject of parfons. I must tell you a ludicrous adventure, which was atchieved the other day by Tom Eastgate, whom you may remember on the foundation of He had been very affiduous to pin Oueen's. himfelf upon George Prankley, who was a gentleman-commoner of Chrift church, knowing the faid Prankley was heir to a confiderable effate. and would have the advowfon of a good living. the incumbent of which was very old and infirm. He fludied his paffions, and flattered them fo effectually, as to become his companion and counfellor; and at last, obtained of him a promise of the prefentation, when the living fhould fall. Prankley, on his uncle's death, quitted Oxford, and made his first appearance in the fashionable world at London; from whence he came lately to Bath, where he has been exhibiting himfelf among

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 135

among the bucks and gamefters of the place. Eaftgate followed him hither; but he fhould not have quitted him for a moment, at his first emerging into life. He ought to have known he was a fantastic, foolifh, fickle fellow, who would forget his college-attachments the moment they · ceased appealing to his fenses. Tom met with a cold reception from his old friend; and was, moreover, informed, that he had promifed the living to another man, who had a vote in the county, where he proposed to offer himself a candidate at the next general election. He now remembered nothing of Eastgate, but the freedoms he had used to take with him. while Tom had quietly flood his butt, with an eye to the benefice; and those freedoms he began to repeat in common-place farcafms on his perfon and his cloth. with he uttered in the public coffee house, for the entertainment of the company. But he was egregioufly miftaken in giving his own wit credit for that tameness of Eastgate, which had been entirely owing to prudential confiderations. These being now removed, he retorted his repartee with interest, and found no great difficulty in turning the laugh upon the aggreffor; who, lofing his temper, called him names, and asked. If he knew whom he talked to? After much altercation, Prankley. flaking his cane, bid him hold his tongue, otherwife he would dust his caffock for him. "I have no preten-"fions to fuch a valet (faid Tom); but if you " fhould 14

ı

"fhould do me that office, and overheat your-"felf, I have here a good oaken towel at your "fervice."

Prankley was equally incenfed and confounded at this reply. After a moment's paufe, he took him afide towards the window; and, pointing to the clump of firs on Clerken-down, afked in a whifper, if he had fpirit enough to meet him there with a cafe of piftols, at fix o'clock tomorrow morning. Eastgate answered in the affirmative; and, with a fteady countenance, affured him, he would not fail to give him the rendezvous at the hour he mentioned. So faving, he retired: and the challenger flayed fome time in manifest agitation. In the morning, Easteate, who knew his man, and had taken his refolution, went to Prankley's lodgings, and roufed him by five o'clock-----

The 'iquire, in all probability, curfed his punctuality in his heart, but he affected to talk big; and having prepared his artillery over-night, they croff-d the water at the end of the South Parade. In their progrefs up the hill, Prankley often eyed the parfon, in hopes of perceiving fome reluctance in his countenance; but as no fuch marks appeared, he attempted to intimidate him by word of mouth. "If thefe flints do their office (faid "he). I'll do thy bufinefs in a few minutes." "I "defire you will do your beft (replied the other); "for my part, I come not here to triffe. Our "lives are in the hands of God; and one of us "already "already totters on the brink of eternity-----" This remark feemed to make fome imprefion upon the 'fquire, who changed countenance, and with a faultering accent obferved. "That it ill "became a clergyman to be concerned in quar-"rels and blood-fhed-----" "Your infolence to "me (faid Eaftgate) I fhould have bore with "patience, had not you caft the most infa-"mous reflections upon my order, the honour "of which I think myfelf in duty bound to main-"tain, even at the expense of my heart's blood; "and furely it can be no crime to put out of the "world a profligate wretch, without any fenfe "of principle, morality, or religion-" "Thou "may'st take away my life, (cried Prankley, in "great perturbation) but don't go to murder my "character.----What! has't got no confcience?" "My conficience is perfectly quiet" (teplied the other); "and now, Sir, we are upon the fpot "-----Take your ground as near as you pleafe; "prime your piftol; and the Lord, of his infinite "mercy, have compassion upon your miferable "foul!"

This ejaculation he pronounced in a loud folemn tone, with his hat off and his eyes lifted up; then drawing a large horfe-piftol, he prefented, and put himfelf in a pofture of action. Prankley took his diftance, and endeavoured to prime, but his hand fhook with fuch violence, that he found this operation impracticable— His antagonift, feeing how it was with him, I 5 offered

137

,

Eaftgate underftood the hint; and told him. that one day fhould break no fquares; adding. "God forbid that I fhould be the means of hin-"dering you from acting the part of an honeft By virtue of this ceffation, they returned peaceably toge. ther. Prankley forthwith made out the prefentation of the living, and delivered it to Eastgate, telling him at the fame time, he had now fettled his affairs, and was ready to attend him to the Fir-grove; but Tom declared he could not think of lifting his hand against the life of fo great a benefactor-He did more: when they next met at the coffee house, he asked pardon of Mr. Prankley, if in his paffion he had faid any thing to give him offence; and the 'fquire was fo gracious as to forgive him with a cordial shake of the hand, declaring that he did not like to be at variance with an old college-companion-Next

Next day, however, he left Bath abruptly; and then Eastgate told me all these particulars, not a little pleased with the effects of his own fagacity, by which he has secured a living worth 160*l. per annum*.

Of my uncle, I have nothing at prefent to fay; but that we fet out to-morrow for London en famile. He and the ladies, with the maid and Chowder in a coach; I and the man-fervant ahorfeback. The particulars of our journey you fhall have in my next, provided no accident happens to prevent,

Yours ever,

Bath, May 17.

J. Melford.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR DICK,

I SHALL to-morrow fet out for London, where I have befpoke lodgings, at Mrs. Norton's in Goldenfquare. Although I am no admirer of Bath, I fhall leave it with regret; becaufe I muft part with fome old friends, whom, in all probability, I fhall never fee again. I the courfe of coffee-houfe converfation, I had often heard very extraordinary encomiums paffed on the performances of Mr. T——a gentleman refiding in this this place, who paints landscapes for his amufe-As I have no great confidence in the ment tafte and judgment of coffee-houfe connoifieurs. and never received much pleasure from this branch of the art, those general praises made no impreffion at all on my curiofity; but at the request of a particular friend, I went yesterday to fee the pieces, which had been fo warmly commended-I must own I am no judge of painting, though very fond of pictures. I don't imagine that my fenfes would play me fo falfe, as to betray me into admiration of any thing that was very bad; but, true it is, I have often overlooked capital beauties, in pieces of extraordinary merit-----If I am not totally devoid of tafte. however, this young gentleman of Bath is the best landscape-painter now living: I was struck with his performances in fuch a manner, as I had never been by painting before. His trees not only have a richnels of foliage and warmth of colouring, which delights the view; but alfo a certain magnificence in the difpofition, and spirit in the expression, which I cannot describe. His management of the chiaro obscuro, or light and fhadow, especially gleams of fun fhine, is altogether wonderful, both in the contrivance and execution; and he is fo happy in his perspective, and marking his diffances at fea, by a progressive feries of thips, veffels, capes, and promontories, that I could not help thinking, I had a diftant view of thirty leagues upon the back-ground of the

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 141

the picture. If there is any tafte for ingenuity left in a degenerate age, fast finking into barbarism, this artist, I apprehend, will make a capital figure, as foon as his works are known-

Two days ago, I was favoured with a vifit by Mr. Fitz owen; who, with great formality, folicited my vote and intereft at the general election. I ought not have been flocked at the confidence of this man; though it was remarkable, confidering what had paffed between him and me on a former occasion-Thefe vifits are mere matter of form, which a candidate makes to every elector; even to those who, he knows, are engaged in the interest of his competitor, left he should expose himself to the imputation of pride, at a time when it is expected he fhould appear humble. Indeed, I know nothing fo abiect as the behaviour of a man canvafling for a feat in parliament-This 'mean profiration, (to borough electors especially,) has, I imagine, contributed in a great measure to raise that spirit of infolence among the vulgar; which, like the devil, will be found very difficult to lay. Be that as it may, I was in fome confusion at the effrontery of Fitz.owen; but I foon recollected myfelf, and told him, I had not yet determined for whom I fhould give my vote, nor whether I fhould give it for any.----The truth is, I look upon both candidates in the fame light; and fhould think myfelf a traitor to the conftitution of my country, if I voted for either. If every elec-elector would bring the fame confideration home to his conficience, we fhould not have fuch reafon to exclaim against the venality of p---ts. But we are all a pack of venal and corrupted rafcals; fo lost to all fense of honesty, and all tenderness of character, that, in a little time, I am fully perfuaded, nothing will be infamous but virtue and public spirit.

G. H----, who is really an enthufiaft in patriotifm, and reprefented the capital in feveral fucceflive parliaments, declared to me t'other day, with the tears in his eyes, that he had lived above thirty years in the city of London, and dealt in the way of commerce with all the citizens of note in their turns; but that, as he should answer to God, he had never, in the whole course of his life, found above three or four whom he could call thoroughly honeft: a declaration, which was rather mortifying than furprifing to me, who have found fo few men of worth in the course of my acquaintance, that they ferve only as exceptions; which, in the grammarian's phrase, confirm and prove a general canon-I know you will fay, G. H-faw imperfectly through the mift of prejudice, and I am rankled by the fpleen-Perhaps you are partly in the right; for I have perceived that my opinion of mankind, like mercury in the thermometer, rifes and falls according to the variations of the weather.

Pray

HUMPHRY CLINKER, 143

Pray fettle accompts with Barnes; take what money of mine is in his hands, and give him ac-' quittance. If you think Davis has flock or credit enough to do justice to the farm, give him a difcharge for the rent that is due: this will animate his industry; for I know that nothing is fo difcouraging to a farmer, as the thoughts of being in arrears with his landlord. He becomes difpirited, and neglects his labour; and fo the farm goes to wreck. Tabby has been clamouring for fome days about the lamb's fkin, which Williams. the hind, begged of me, when he was laft at Prithee take it back, paying the fellow Bath. the full value of it, that I may have fome peace in my own house; and let him keep his own counfel, if he means to keep his place O! I fhall never prefume to defpife or cenfure any poor man, for fuffering himfelf to be henpecked ; conficious how I myfelf am obliged to truckle to a domeftic dæmon; even though (bleffed be God) fhe is not yoked with me for life, in the matrimonial waggon-She has quarrelled with the fervants of the house about vails; and fuch intolerable foolding enfued on both fides, that I have been fain to appeale the cook and chamber-maid by stealth. Can't you find fome poor gentleman of Wales, to take this precious commodity off the hands of

Yours,

Bath, May 19.

M. BRAMBLE.

To

To Dr. LEWIS.

DOCTER LEWS,

GIVE me leaf to tell you, methinks you mought employ your talons better, than to encourage fervants to pillage their mafters-I find by Gwyllim, that Villiams has got my fkin; for which he is an impotent rafcal. He has not only got my fkin, but, moreover, my buttermilk to fatten his pigs; and, I fuppofe, the next thing he gets, will be my pad to carry his daughter to church and fair: Roger gets this. and Roger gets that; but I'd have you to know. I won't be rogered at this rate by any ragmatical fellow in the kingdom-And I am furprifed. Docter Lews, you would offer to put my affairs in composition with the refuge and skim of the hearth. I have toiled and moyled to a good purpufs, for the advantage of Matt's family, if I can't fafe as much owl as will make me an under petticoat. As for the butter-milk, ne'er a pig in the parish shall thrust his snout in it, with my There's a famous phyfician at the good will. Hot-Well, that prescribes it to his patients, when the cafe is confumptive; and the Scots and Irifh have begun to drink it already, in fuch quantities, that there is not a drop left for the hogs in the whole neighbourhood of Briftol. I'll have our butter-milk barrelled up, and fent twice aweek

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 145

week to Aberginny, where it may be fold for a half-penny the quart; and fo Roger may carry his pigs to another market—I hope, Docter, you will not go to put any more fuch phims in my brother's head, to the prejudice of my pockat; but rather give me fome raifins (which hitherto you have not done) to fubfcribe myfelf

Your humble fervant.

Bath, May 19.

۱

TABITHA BRAMBLE.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

WITHOUT waiting for your anfwer to my laft, I proceed to give you an account of our journey to London, which has not been wholly barren of adventure. Tuefday laft, the 'fquire took his place in a hired coach and four, accompanied by his fifter and mine, and Mrs. Tabby's maid, Winifred Jenkins, whole province it was to fupport Chowder on a cufhion in her lap. I could fcarce refrain from laughing, when I looked into the vehicle, and faw that animal fitting oppofite to my uncle, like any other paffenger. The 'fquire, afhamed of his fituation, blufhed to Vol. I. K the the eyes: and, calling to the postilions to drive on, pulled the glass up in my face. I and his fervant John Thomas, attended them on horseback.

Nothing worth mentioning occurred, till we arrived on the edge of Marlborough Downs. There one of the fore horses fell, in going down hill at a round trot; and the postilion behind. endeavouring to ftop the carriage, pulled it on one fide into a deep rut. where it was fairly overturned. I had rode on about two hundred yards before; but, hearing a loud fcream, galloped back and difmounted, to give what affistance was in my power. When I looked into the coach, I could fee nothing diffinctly, but the nether end of Jenkins, who was kicking her heels and fqualling with great vociferation. All of a fudden, my uncle thrust up his bare pate, and bolted through the window, as nimble as a grafhopper, having made use of poor Win's posteriors as a ftep to rife in his afcent-----The man (who had likewife quitted his horfe) dragged this forlorn damsel, more dead than alive. through the fame opening. Then Mr. Bramble. pulling the door off its hinges with a jerk, laid hold on Liddy's arm. and brought her to the light; very much frighted, but little hurt. Tt fell to my fhare to deliver our aunt Tabitha, who had loft her cap in the ftruggle; and being rather more than half frantic, with rage and terror, was no bad representation of one of the fifter Furies that that guard the gates of hell-She expressed no fort of concern for her brother, who ran about in the cold, without his periwig, and worked with the most astonishing agility, in helping to difentangle the horfes from the carriage: but fhe cried, in a tone of diffraction. "Chowder! "Chowder! my dear Chowder! my poor Chow-"der is certainly killed !"

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 147

This was not the cafe-----Chowder, after having tore my uncle's leg in the confusion of the fall, had retreated under the feat, and from thence the footman drew him by the neck; for which good office he bit his fingers to the bone. The fellow, who is naturally furly, was fo provoked at this affault, that he faluted his ribs with a hearty kick, exclaiming, "Damn the nafty fon "of a bitch, and them he belongs to!" A benediction, which was by no means loft upon the implacable virago his mistrefs.-----Her brother, however, prevailed upon her, to retire into a peafant's houfe, near the fcene of action, where his head and hers were covered, and poor Jenkins had a fit-Our next care was to apply fome flicking-plaister to the wound in his leg, which exhibited the impression of Chowder's teeth: but he never opened his lips against the delinquent-Mrs. Tabby, alarmed at this fcene, "You fay nothing, Matt (cried fhe); but I "know your mind-I know the fpite you "have to that poor unfortunate animal! I know "you intend to take his life away!" "You are K 2 "miftaken

"miftaken, upon my honour! (replied the 'fqui-"re, with a farcaftic fmile) I fhould be inca-"pable of harbouring any fuch cruel defign "against an object fo amiable and inoffensive; "even if he had not the happines to be your "favourite."

, John Thomas was not fo delicate. The fellow, whether really alarmed for his life, or infligated by the defire of revenge, came in, and bluntly demanded, that the dog fhould be put to death: on the supposition, that if ever he should run mad here-after, he, who had been bit by him, would be infected ----- My uncle calmly argued upon the abfurdity of his opinion, obferving, that he himfelf was in the fame predicamept, and would certainly take the precaution he proposed, if he was not fure he ran no rifque of infection. Neverthelefs, Thomas continued obstinate; and, at length, declared, that if the dog was not fhot immediately, he himfelf would be his executioner-This declaration opened the flood-gates of Tabby's eloquence, which would have fhamed the first-rate oratress of Bil-The footman retorted in the fame lingsgate. ftile; and the 'fquire difmiffed him from his fervice, after having prevented me from giving him a good horfe-whipping for his infolence.

The coach being adjusted, another difficulty occurred——Mrs. Tabitha abfolutely refused to enter it again, unlefs another driver could be found to take the place of the postilion; who, she

the affirmed, had overturned the carriage from malice aforethought-___After much dispute, the man refigned his place to a fhabby country fellow, who undertook to go as far as Marlborough, where they could be better 'provided; and at that place we arrived about one o'clock, without farther impediment. Mrs. Bramble, however, found new matter of offence; which, indeed. fhe had a particular genius for extracting at will from almost every incident in life. We had fcarce entered the room at Marlborough, where we ftayed to dine, when the exhibited a formal complaint against the poor fellow who had superceded the postilion. She faid, he was such a beggarly rafcal, that he had ne'er a fhirt to his back; and had the impudence to fhock her fight by fhewing his bare posteriors, for which act of indelicacy he deferved to be fet in the ftocks. Mrs. Winifred Jenkins confirmed the affertion, with refpect to his nakedness, observing, at the fame time, that he had a fkin as fair as alabafter

"This is a heinous offence, indeed; (cried "my uncle) let us hear what the fellow has to "fay in his own vindication." He was accordingly fummoned, and made his appearance, which was equally queer and pathetic. He feemed to be about twenty years of age, of a middling fize, with bandy legs, ftooping fhoul- . ders, high forehead, fandy locks, pinking eyes, flat nofe, and long chin-but his complexion was

К 3

· was of a fickly yellow: his looks denoted famine: and the rags that he wore, could hardly conteal what decency requires to be covered-My uncle, having furveyed him attentively, faid, with an ironical expression in his countenance, "An't you alhamed, fellow, to ride postilion "wirhout a fhirt to cover your backfide from the "view of the ladies in the coach?" "Yes, I "am, : " pleafe your noble honour (anfwered "the man); but necessity has no law, as the "faying is-And more than that, it was an "accident-My breeches cracked behind, after "I had got into the faddle-" "You're an "impudent varlet, (cried Mrs. Tabby) for pre-"fuming to ride before perfons of falhion with-"out a fluirt-----" "I am fo, an' please your "worthy ladythip (faid he); but I'm a poor "Wilt thire lad.----! ha'n't a fhirt in the world, "that I can call my own, nor a rag of clothes, "an' pleafe your ladyfhip, but what you fee-"I have no friend, nor relation upon earth to "help me out-----I have had the fever and ague "these fix months, and spent all I had in the "world upon doctors, and to keep foul and bo-"dy together; and faving your ladyfhip's good "prefence, I hain't broke bread thefe four and "twenty hours-----"

Mrs. Bramble, turning from him, faid, fhe, had never feen fuch a filthy tatterdemalion, and bid him begone; obferving, that he would fill the room full of vermin——Her brother darted a figni-

a fignificant glance at her, as the retired with Liddy into another apartment; and then afked the man if he was known to any perfon in Marl-,borough ?-----When he answered, that the landlord of the inn had known him from his infancy; mine hoft was immediately called, and being interrogated on the fubject, declared that the young fellow's name was Humphry Clinker. That he had been a love-begotten babe, brought up in the work-house, and put out apprentice by the parish to a country black-finith, who died before the boy's time was out: that he had for fome time worked under his oftler, as a helper and extra postilion, till he was taken ill of the ague, which difabled him from getting his bread: that having fold or pawned every thing he had in the world for his cure and fubfiftence, he became fo miferable and fliabby, that he difgraced the stable, and was difmiffed; but that he never heard any thing to the prejudice of his character in other refpects. "So that the fellow being "fick and deftitute, (faid my uncle) you turned "him out to die in the ftreets." "I pay the "noor's rate (replied the other), and I have no "right to maintain idle vagrants, either in fick-"nefs or health: befides, fuch a miferable object "would have brought a difcredit upon my "houfe_____"

"You perceive" (faid the 'fquire, turning to me) "our landlord is a Chriftian of bowels-"Who fhall prefume to cenfare the morals of the "age.

K 4

"age, when the very publicans exhibit fuch "examples of humanity?——Hark ye, Clinker, "you are a most notorious offender——You "frand convicted of fickness, hunger, wretched-"ness and want——But, as it does not belong "to me to punish criminals, I will only take "upon me the task of giving you a word of ad-"vice———Get a shirt with all convenient "dispatch, that your nakedness may not hence-"forward give offence to travelling gentlewo-"men, especially maidens in years——"

So faying, he put a guinea into the hand of the poor fellow, who flood flaring at him in filence, with his mouth wide open, till the landlord pushed him out of the room.

In the afternoon, as our aunt ftept into the coach. fhe observed, with some marks of fatisfaction, that the postilion, who rode next to her, was not a fhabby wretch like the ragamuffin who had drove them into Marlborough. Indeed, the difference was very confpicuous: this was a fmart fellow, with a narrow-brimmed hat. with gold cording, a cut bob, a decent blue jacket, leather breeches, and a clean linen fhirt, puffed above the waist-band. When we arrived at the caftle on Spinhill, where we lay, this new postilion was remarkably affiduous, in bringing in the loofe parcels; and, at length, difplayed the individual countenance of Humphry Clinker. who had metamorphofed himfelf in this manner. by relieving from pawn part of his own clothes. with with the money he had received from Mr. Bramble.

Howfoever pleafed the reft of the company were with fuch a favourable change in the appearance of this poor creature, it foured on the ftomach of Mrs. Tabby, who had not yet digested the affront of his naked skin-She toffed her nofe in difdain, faying, fhe fuppofed her brother had taken him into fayour, becaufe he had infulted her with his obscenity; that a fool and his money were foon parted; but that if Matt intended to take the fellow with him to London, fhe would not go a foot further that way-----My uncle faid nothing with his tongue, though his looks were fufficiently expressive; and next morning Clinker did not appear, fo that we proceeded without further altercation to Salt-hill, where we proposed to dine-----There, the first perfon that came to the fide of the coach, and began to adjust the footboard, was no other than Humphry Clinker-When I handed out Mrs. Bramble, fhe eyed him with a furious look, and paffed into the house-My uncle was embarrafied, and afked him peevifuly what had brought him hither? The fellow faid, his honour had been fo good to him, that he had not the heart to part with him; that he would follow him to the world's end, and ferve him all the days of his life, without fee or reward-

Mr. Bramble did not know whether to chide or laugh at this declaration-He forefaw much much contradiction on the fide of Tabby; and, on the other hand, he could not but be pleafed with the gratitude of Clinker, as well as with the fimplicity of his character----- "Suppose I was Ginclined to take you into my fervice, (faid he) "what are your qualifications? what are you "good for?" "An please your honour, (answered "this original) I can read and write, and do the "bufinels of the stable indifferently well-I can "drefs a horfe, and fhoe him, and bleed and rowel "him; and, as for the practice of fow-gelding, "I won't turn my back on e'er a he in the coun-"ty of Wilts-----Then I can make hogs pud-"dings and hob-nails, mend kettles, and tin fau--" Here uncle burft out a laugh-"ce-pans---ing; and enquired what other accomplishments he was mafter of "I know fomething of "fingle flick, and pfalmody, (proceeded Clinker) "I can play upon the Jew's harp, fing Black-"ev'd Sufan, Arthur o'Bradley, and divers other "fongs; I can dance a Welfh jig, and Nancy "Dawfon; wreftle a fall with any lad of my in-"ches, when I'm in heart; and, under correc-"tion, I can find a hare when your honour "wants a bit of game." "Foregad! thou art a "complete fellow, (cried my uncle, ftill laugh-"ing) I have a good mind to take thee into my "family-Prithee, go and try if thou can'ft "make peace with my fifter-Thou haft given "her much offence by fhewing her thy naked " taik"

Ì

Clinker

HUMPHRY CLINKER, 155

Clinker accordingly followed us into the room, cap in hand, where, addreffing himfelf to Mrs. Tabitha, "May it pleafe your ladyfhip's "worfhip (cried he) to pardon and forgive my "offences, and, with God's affiftance, I fhall "take care that my tail fhall never rife up in "judgment againft me, to offend your ladyfhip "again—Do, pray, good, fweet, beautiful "lady, take compafiton on a poor finner— "God blefs your noble countenance; I am fure "you are too handfome and generous to bear "malice—I will ferve you on my bended "knees, by night and by day, by land and by "water; and all for the love and pleafure of "ferving fuch an excellent lady——"

This compliment and humiliation had fome effect upon Tabby; but fhe made no reply; and Clinker, taking filence for confent, gave his attendance at dinner. The fellow's natural awkwardness and the flutter of his spirits were productive of repeated blunders in the courfe of his attendance-At length, he spilt part of a cuftard upon her right fhoulder; and, ftarring back, trod upon Chowder, who fet up a difmal how1-Poor Humphry was fo difconcerted at this double miltake that he dropt the china difh, which broke into a thousand pieces; then, falling down upon his knees, remained in that posture gaping, with a most ludicrous afpect of diffrefs-Mrs. Bramble flew to the dog,

ł

Clinker, hearing thefe words, and taking them in the literal acceptation, got up in fome hurry, and, feizing a knife from the fide-board. cried, "Not here, an pleafe your ladyfhip-----"It will daub the room-Give him to me and "I'll carry him into the ditch by the road-"fide----" To this propofal he received no other answer, than a hearty box on the ear. that made him ftagger to the other fide of the room. "What! (faid fhe to her brother) am I "to be affronted by every mangy hound that "you pick up in the highway? I infift upon "your fending this rafcallion about his bufinefs "immediately____" "For God's fake, fifter, "compose yourself, (faid my uncle) and confi-"der, that the poor fellow is innocent of any in-"tention to give you offence-" "Innocent "as the babe unborn-" (cried Humphry.) "I fee it plainly, (exclaimed the implacable maiden) "he acts by your direction; and you "are refolved to fupport him in his impudence "-----This is a bad return for all the fervices I "have done you; for nurfing you in your fick-"nefs, managing your family, and keeping you "from

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 157

"from ruining yourfelf by your own impruden-"ce—But now you fhall part with that rafcal or "me, upon the fpot, without farther lofs of ti-"me; and the world fhall fee, whether you have "more regard for your own flefh and blood, or "for a beggarly foundling, taken from the dung-"hill____"

Mr. Bramble's eyes began to gliffen, and his "If stated fairly, (faid he, teeth to chatter. raifing his voice) "the queftion is, whether I "have spirit to shake off an intolerable yoke, by "one effort of refolution, or meannefs enough "to do an act of cruelty and injustice, to gratify "the rancour of a capricious woman-Hark "ye, Mrs. Tabitha Bramble, I will now pro-"pole an alternative in my turn-Either discard "your fourfooted favourite, or give me leave to "bid you eternally adieu-For I am determined. "that he and I shall live no longer under the "fame roof; and now to dinner with what ap-"petite you may----" Thunder ftruck at this declaration, she sat down in a corner; and, after a paule of fome minutes, "Sure I don't under-"ftand you, Matt!" (faid fhe.) "And yet I "fpoke in plain English-" answered the 'fquire, with a peremptory look. "Sir, (refumed this virago, effectually humbled) "it is "your prerogative to command, and my duty to "obey. I can't dispose of the dog in this place; "but if you'll allow him to go in the coach to "Lon-

"London, I give you my word, he shall never "trouble you again-----"

Her brother, entirely difarmed by this mild reply, declared, fhe could afk him nothing in reafon that he would refufe; adding, "I hope, "fifter, you have never found me deficient in na-"tural affection." Mrs. Tabitha immediately rofe, and throwing her arms about his neck, kiffed him on the cheek: he returned her embrace with great emotion. Liddy fobbed, Win. Jepkins cackled, Chowder capered, and Clinker fkipped about, rubbing his hands for joy of this reconciliation.

Concord being thus reftored, we finished our meal with comfort; and in the evening arrived at London, without having met with any other adventure. My aunt feems to be much mended by the hint fhe received from her brother. She has been gracioufly pleafed to remove her difpleafure from Clinker, who is now retained as footman; and in a day or two will make his appearance in a new fuit of livery; but as he is little acquainted with London, we have taken an occafional valet, whom I intend hereafter to hire as my own fervant. We lodge in Golden. fquare, at the houfe of one Mrs. Norton, a decent fort of a woman, who takes great pains to make us all eafy. My uncle propofes to make a circuit of all the remarkable fcenes of this metropolis, for the entertainment of his pupils: but as both you and I are already acquainted with moft most of those he will visit, and with some others he little dreams of, I shall only communicate what will be in some measure new to your observation. Remember me to our jesuitical friends, and believe me ever.

Dear knight,

с,

Yours affectionately,

London, May 21.

J. MELFORD.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR DOCTER,

LONDON is literally new to me; new in its ftreets, houses, and even in its fituation; as the Irifhman faid, "London is now gone out of "town." What I left open fields, producing hay and corn, I now find covered with freets. and fquares, and palaces, and churches. I am credibly informed, that in the fpace of feven years, eleven thousand new houses have been built in one quarter of Westminster, exclusive of what is daily added to other parts of this unwieldy metropolis. Pimlicoa and Knightfbridge are now almost joined to Chelsea and Kensington; and if this infatuation continues for half a century, I suppose the whole county of Middlefex will be covered with brick.

It must be allowed, indeed, for the credit of the prefent age, that London and Westminster are much better paved and lighted than they were formerly. The new streets are spacious, regular, and airy; and the houses generally convenient. The bridge at Blackfriars is a noble monument of tafte and public fpirit----- I wonder how they flumbled upon a work of fuch magnificence and utility. But. notwithstanding these improvements, the capital is become an overgrown monster; which, like a dropfical head, will in time leave the body and extremities without nourifhment and fupport. The abfurdity will appear in its full force, when we confider, that one fixth part of the natives of this whole extensive kingdom, is crowded within the bills of mortality. What wonder that our villages are depopulated, and our farms in want of day-labourers? The abolition of fmall farms, is but one caufe of the decreafe of population. Indeed, the incredible increase of horses and black cattle, to answer the purposes of luxury, requires a prodigious quantity of hay and grafs. which are raifed and managed without much labour; but a number of hands will always be wanted for the different branches of agriculture. whether the farms be large or fmall. The tide of luxury has fwept all the inhabitants from the open country-The pooreft 'fquire. as well as the richelt peer, must have his house in town, and make , figure with an extraordinary number of domeffics. The plough-boys, cow-herds, and lower hinds, are debauched and feduced by the appearance and difcourfe of those coxcombs in livery, when they make their fummer excursions. They defert their dirt and drudgery, and swarm up to London, in hopes of getting into fervice, where they can live luxuriously and wear fine clothes, without being obliged to work; for idleness is natural to man—Great numbers of these, being disappointed in their expectation, become thieves and sharpers; and London being an immense wilderness, in which there is neither watch nor ward of any fignification, nor any order or police, affords them lurking-places as well as prey.

of

There are many caufes that contribute to the daily increase of this enormous mass; but they may be all refolved into the grand fource of luxury and corruption-About five and twenty years ago, very few, even of the most opulent citizens of London, kept any equipage, or even any fervants in livery. Their tables produced nothing but plain boiled and roafted, with a bottle of port and a tankard of beer. At prefent, every trader in any degree of credit, every broker and attorney, maintains a couple of footmen, a coachman, and postilion. He has his town-houfe, and his country-houfe, his coach, and his poftchaife. His wife and daughters appear in the richeft stuffs, bespangled with diamonds. They frequent the court, the opera, Vol. L L the the theatre, and the mafquerade. They hold aflemblies at their own houfes: they make fumptnous entertainments, and treat with the richeft wines of Bourdeaux, Burgundy, and Champagne. The fubftantial tradefman, who wont to pais his evenings at the ale-houfe for four-pence halfpenny, now fpends three fhillings at the tayern, while his wife keeps card tables at home; fhe must likewise have fine clothes, her chaise, or pad, with country lodgings, and go three times a-week to public diversions. Every clerk, apprentice, and even waiter of tavern or coffeehouse, maintains a gelding by himself, or in partnership, and assumes the air and apparel of a petit maitre-The gayeft places of public entertainment are filled with fashionable figures: which, upon enquiry, will be journeymen taylors, ferving-men, and abigails, difguifed like their betters.

In fhort, there is no diffinction or fubordination left——The different departments of life are jumbled together——The hod-carrier, the low mechanic, the tapfter, the publican, the fhopkeeper, the pettifogger, the citizen, and courtier, all tread upon the kibes of one another: actuated by the dæmons of profligacy and licentioufnefs, they are feen every where, rambling, riding, rolling, rufhing, juftling, mixing, bouncing, cracking, and crafhing in one vile ferment of flupidity and corruption——All is tumult and hurry; one would imagine they were im-

٩.

impelled by fome diforder of the brain, that will not fuffer them to be at reft. The foot-paffengers run along as if they were purfuet by bailiffs. The porters and chairmen trot with their burdens. People, who keep their own equipages, drive through the ftreets at full fpeed. Even citizens, phyficians, and apothecaries, glide in their chariots like lightning. The hackney coachmen make their horfes fmoke, and the pavement flakes under them; and I have actually feen a waggon pafs through Piccadilly at the hand-gallop. In a word, the whole nation feems to be running out of their wits.

The diversions of the times are not ill fuited to the genius of this incongruous monfter, called the public. Give it noife, confusion, glare, and glitter, it has no idea of elegance and propriety ------What are the amufements at Ranelagh? One half of the company are following one another's tails, in an eternal circle; like fo many blind affes in an olive-mill; where they can neither difcourfe, diftinguifh, nor be diftinguifhed: while the other half are drinking hot water. under the denomination of tea, till nine or ten o'clock at night, to keep them awake for the reft of the evening. As for the orchestra, the vocal mufic efpecially, it is well for the performers that they cannot be heard diffinctly. Vauxhall is a composition of baubles, overcharged with paltry ornaments, ill conceived, and poorly executed; without any unity of L 2 defign.

delign, or propriety of disposition. It is an unnatural affembly of objects, fantaffically illuminated in broken maffes; feemingly contrived to dazzle the eyes and divert the imagination of the vulgar-Here a wooden lion, there a ftone ftatue; in one place, a range of things like coffee house boxes, covered a top; in another, a parcel of ale-houle benches; in a third, a puppet-shew representation of a tin cascade; in a fourth, a gloomy cave of a circular from, like a fepulchral vault half lighted; in a fifth, a fcanty flip of grafs plat, that would not afford pasture fufficient for an afs's colt. The walks, which Nature feems to have intended for folitude, fhade, and filence, are filled with crowds of noify people, fucking up the nocturnal rheums of an aguifh climate: and through these gay scenes. a few lamps glimmer like fo many farthing candles.

When I fee a number of well-dreffed people, of both fexes, fitting on the covered benches, exposed to the eyes of the mob; and, which is worfe, to the cold, raw, night-air, devouring fliced beef, and fwilling port, and punch, and cyder, I can't help compassion their temerity, while I despise their want of taste and decorum; but, when they courfe along those damp and gloomy walks, or crowd together upon the wet gravel, without any other cover than the cope of heaven, listening to a forg, which one half of them cannot possibly hear, how can I help

t

help supposing they are actually possessed by a fpirit, more abfurd, and pernicious than any thing we meet with in the precincts of Bedlam? In all probability, the proprietors of this, and other public gardens of inferior note, in the fkirts of the metropolis, are, in fome shape, connected with the faculty of physic, and the company of undertakers; for, confidering that eagerness in the purfuit of what is called pleafure, which now predominates through every rank and denomination of life, I am perfuaded, that more gouts, rheumatisms, catarrhs, and confumptions are caught in these nocturnal pastimes, fub dio, than from all the rifques and accidents to which a life of toil and danger is exposed.

Thefe, and other obfervations, which I have made in this excursion, will shorten my stay in London, and fend me back with a double relifh to my folitude and mountains; but I shall return by a different route from that which brought me I have feen fome old friends, who to town conftantly refided in this virtuous metropolis, but they are fo changed in manners, and disposition, that we hardly know or care for one another-In our journey from Bath, my fifter Tabby provoked me into a transport of passion; during which, like a man who has drank himfelf potvaliant. I talked to her in fuch a flile of authority and refolution, as produced a most bleffed effect. She and her dog have been remarkably quiet and orderly, ever fince this expostulation. How

L 3

How long this agreeable calm will laft, Heaven above knows——I flatter myfelf the exercife of travelling has been of fervice to my health; a circumftance, which encourages me to proceed in my projected expedition to the North. But I muft. in the mean time, for the benefit and amufement of my pupils, explore the depths of this chaos; this mifhapen and monftrous capital, without head or tail, members or proportion.

Thomas was fo infolent to my fifter on the road, that I was obliged to turn him off abruptly, betwixt Chippenham and Marlborough, where our coach was overturned. The fellow was always fullen and felfifh; but, if he fhould return to the country, you may give him a character for honefty and fobriety; and provided he behaves with proper refpect to the family, let him have a couple of guineas in the name of

Yours always,

London May 29.

MATT. BRAMBLE.

To Miss LÆTITIA WILLIS, at Gloucester.

MY DEAR LETTY,

INEXPRESSIBLE was the pleafure I received from yours of the 25th. which was last night put into my hands by Mrs. Brentwood, the milliner, from Gloucester-I rejoice to hear that my worthy governess is in good health, and, ftill more, that fhe no longer retains any difpleafure towards her poor Liddy, I am forry you have loft the fociety of the agreeable mifs Vaughan; but, I hope, you won't have caufe much longer to regret the departure of your fchool companions, as I make no doubt but your parents will, in a little time, bring you into the world, where you are fo well qualified to make a diftinguished figure. When that is the case, I flatter myfelf you and I fhall meet again, and be happy together; and even improve the friendfhip which we contracted in our tender years-This at least I can promife-It shall not be for the want of my utmost endeavours, if our intimacy does not continue for life.

About five days ago we arrived in London, after an eafy journey from Bath; during which, however, we were overturned, and met with fome other little incidents, which had like to have occafioned a mifunderstanding betwixt my uncle and aunt; but now, thank God, they are

L 4

hap-

happily reconciled; we live in harmony together, and every day make parties to fee the wonders of this vaft metropolis, which, however, I cannot pretend to defcribe; for I have not as yet feen one hundredth part of its curiofities, and I am quite in a maze of admiration.

The cities of London and Westminster are fpread out into an incredible extent. The freets, fquares, rows, lanes, and alleys, are innumerable. Palaces, public buildings, and churches, rife in every quarter; and among these last, St. Paul's appears with the most astonishing pre-eminence. They fay it is not fo large as St. Peter's at Rome; but, for my own part, I can have no idea of any earthly temple more grand and magnificent.

But even these superb objects are not to ftriking as the crouds of people that fwarm in the I at first imagined, that some great asftreets. fembly was just difmiffed, and wanted to stand afide till the multitude fhould pafs; but this human tide continues to flow, without interruption or abatement, from morn till night. Then there is fuch an infinity of gay equipages, coaches, chariots, chaifes, and other carriages, continually rolling and fhifting before your eyes, that one's head grows giddy looking at them; and the imagination is quite confounded with fplendor and variety. Nor is the prospect by water lefs grand and aftonifhing than that by land: you fee three flupendous bridges, joining the oppofite banks banks of a broad, deep, and rapid river; fo vaft, fo ftately, fo elegant, that they feem to be the work of the giants; betwixt them, the whole furface of the Thames is covered with fmall vefiels, barges, boats, and wherries, paffing to and fro; and below the three bridges, fuch a prodigious forest of masts, for miles together, that you would think all the fhips in the universe were here affembled, All that you read of wealth and grandeur, in the Arabian Nights' Entertainment, and the Perfian Tales, concerning Bagdad, Diarbekir, Damafcus, Ifpahan, and Samarkand, is here realized.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 169

١

Ranelagh looks like the inchanted palace of a genie, adorned with the most exquisite performances of painting, carving, and gilding, enlightened with a thousand golden lamps, that emulate the noon-day fun; crowded with the great, the rich, the gay, the happy, and the fair; glittering with cloth of gold and filver, lace, embroidery, and precious frones. While these exulting fons and daughters of felicity tread this round of pleasure, or regale in different parties, and separate lodges, with fine imperial tea and other delicious refreshments, their ears are entertained with the most ravishing delights of music, both instrumental and vocal. There I heard the famous Tenducci. a thing from Italy----It looks for all the world like a man, though they fay it is not. The voice, to be fure, is neither man's nor woman's; but it is more melodious than ei-L 5 ther:

ł

ther; and it warbled fo divinely, that, while I liftened, I really thought myfelf in paradife.

At nine o'clock, in a charming moon light evening, we embarked at Ranelagh for Vauxhall, in a wherry, fo light and flender, that we looked like fo many fairies failing in a nut-fhell. Μv uncle, being apprehenfive of catching cold upon the water, went round in the coach, and my aunt would have accompanied him, but he would not fuffer me to go by water if fhe went by land; and therefore the favoured us with her company, as the perceived I had a curiofity to make this agreeable voyage-----After all, the vefiel was fufficiently loaded; for, befides the waterman, there was my brother Jery, and a friend of his, one Mr. Barton, a country gentle. man, of a good fortune, who had dined at our houfe-The pleafure of this little excursion was, however, damped, by my being [fadly frighted at our landing; where there was a terrible confusion of wherries, and a crowd of people bawling, and fwearing, and quarrelling; nav. a parcel of ugly-looking fellows came running into the water, and laid hold on our boat with great violence, to pull it afhore; nor would they quit their hold till my brother ftruck one of them over the head with his cane. But this flutter was fully recompended by the pleafures of Vauxhall; which I no fooner entered, than I was dazzled and confounded with the variety of beauties that rufhed all at once upon my eye. Image

Image to yourfelf, my dear Letty, a spacious garden, part laid out in delightful walks, bounded with high hedges and trees, and paved with gravel; part exhibiting a wonderful affem. blage of the most picturesque and striking objects, pavilions, lodges, groves, grottoes, lawns, temples, and cascades: porticoes, colonades, and rotundos; adorned with pillars, flatues, and painting: the whole illuminated with an infinite number of lamps, disposed in different figures of funs, ftars, and conftellations; the place crowded with the gayeft company, ranging through those blifsful fhades, or fupping in different lodges, on cold collations, enlivened with mirth, freedom, and good humour, and animated by an excellent band of mufic. Among the vocal performers I had the happiness to hear the celebrated Mrs-, whofe voice was fo loud and fo fhrill, that it made my head ake through excels of pleafure.

In about half an hour after we arrived we were joined by my uncle, who did not feem to relifh the place. People of experience and infirmity, my dear Letty, fee with very different eyes from thofe that fuch as you and I make ufe of-Our evening's entertainment was interrupted by an unlucky accident. In one of the remoteft walks we were furprifed with a fudden fhower, that fet the whole company a running, and drove us in heaps, one upon another, into the rotunda; where my uncle, finding himfelf wet, began to be very peevifh and urgent to be gone. My brother brother went to look for the coach, and found it with much difficulty; but as it could not hold us all. Mr. Barton staid behind. It was fome time before the carriage could be brought up to the gate, in the confusion, notwithstanding the utmost endeavours of our new footman. Humphry Clinker, who loft his fcratchperiwig, and got a broken head in the fcuffle. The moment we were feated, my aunt pulled off my uncle's fhoes, and carefully wrapped his poor feet in her capuchin; then the gave him a mouthful of cordial, which fhe always keeps in her pocket, and his clothes were fhifted as foon as we arrived at lodgings; fo that, bleffed be God, he efcaped a fevere cold, of which he was in great terror,

As for Mr. Barton, I must tell you in confidence, he was a little particular; but, perhaps, I mistake his complaifance; and I wish I may, for his fake——You know the condition of my poor heart; which, in spite of hard usage— And yet I ought not to complain: nor will I, till farther information.

Befides Ranelagh and Vauxball, I have been at Mrs. Cornelys' affembly, which, for the rooms, the company, the dreffes, and decorations, furpaffes all defcription; but as I have no great turn for card-playing, I have not yet entered thoroughly into the fpirit of the place: Indeed I am ftill fuch a country-hoyden, that I could hardly find patience to be put in a condition to appear, yet I was not above fix hours under

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

Lady Grifkin is a perfon of fashion, to whom we have the honour to be related. She keeps a fmall rout at her own houfe, never exceeding ten or a dozen card-tables, but these are frequented by the beft company in town-She has been ' fo obliging as to introduce my aunt and me to fome of her particular friends of quality, who treat us with the most familiar good humour: we have once dined with her, and fhe takes the trouble to direct us in all our motions. I am fo happy as to have gained her good-will to fuch a degree, that the fometimes adjusts my cap with her own hands: and fhe has given me a kind invitation to flay with her all the winter. This. however, has been cruelly declined by my uncle, who feems to be (I know not how) prejudiced against the good lady; for, whenever my aunt happens to speak in her commendation, I observe that he makes wry faces, though he fays nothing nothing-Perhaps, indeed, thefe grimaces may be the effect of pain arifing from the gout and rheumatifm, with which he is fadly diftreffed-To me, however, he is always good-natured and generous, even beyond my wifh. Since we came hither, he has made me a prefent of a fuit of clothes, with trimmings and laces, which coft more money than I fhall mention; and Jery. at his defire, has given me my mother's diamond drops, which are ordered to be fet a-new; fo that it won't be his fault if I do not glitter among the ftars of the fourth or fifth magnitude. E with my weak head may not grow giddy in the midft of all this gallantry and diffipation; though, as yet, I can fafely declare, I could gladly give up all these tumultuous pleasures, for country folitude, and a happy retreat with those we love: among whom, my dear Willis will always.poffefs the first place in the breast of her ever affectionate,

173

London, May 31.

LYDIA MELFORD.

To

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

.

I SEND you this letter, franked by our old friend Barton; who is as much altered as it was possible for a man of his kidney to be----Inflead of the carelefs, indolent floven we knew at Oxford, I found him a bufy talkative politician: a petit maitre in his drefs, and a ceremonies courtier in his manners. He has not gall enough in his conftitution to be inflamed with the rancour of party, fo as to deal in fcurrilous invectives: but, fince he obtained a place, he is become a warm partizan of the ministry, and sees every thing through fuch an exaggerating medium. as to me, who am happily of no party, is altogether incomprehenfible-Without all doubt. the fumes of faction not only diffurb the faculty of reason, but also pervert the organs of fense; and I would lay an hundred guineas to ten, that if Barton on one fide, and the most confcientious patriot in the opposition on the other, were to draw, upon honour, the picture of the k---or m____, you and I, who are still uninfected, and unbiafed, would find both painters equally diftant from the truth. One thing, however, must be allowed for the honour of Barton, he never breaks out into illiberal abufe, far lefs endeayours.

deavours, by infamous calumnies, to blaft the moral character of any individual, on the other fide.

Ever fince we came hither, he has been remarkably affiduous in his attention to our family: an attention, which, in a man of his indolence and avocations, I fhould have thought altogether odd, and even unnatural, had not I perceived that my fifter Liddy has made fome impreffion upon his heart. I can't fay that I have any objection to his trying his fortune in this purfuit; if an opulent eftate, and a great flock of good-nature are fufficient qualifications in a hufband, to render the marriage-ftate happy for life, the may be happy with Barton: but; I imagine, there is fomething elfe required to engage and fecure the affection of a woman of fenfe and delicacy: fomething which Nature has denied our friend-Liddy feems to be of the fame opinion. When he addreffes himfelf to her in difcourfe, fhe feems to liften with reluctance and industriously avoids all particular communication; but in proportion to her coynefs, our aunt is coming. Mrs. Tabitha goes more than half way to meet his advances; fhe miftakes. or affects to miltake, the meaning of his courtefy. which is rather formal and fulfome; the returns his compliments with hyperbolical intereft, fhe perfecutes him with her civilities at table. fhe appeals to him for ever in conversation, fhe fighs, and flirts, and ogles, and by her hideous affectation tion and impertinence, drives the poor courtier to the very extremity of his complaifance:' in fhort, fhe feems to have undertaken the fiege of Barton's heart, and carries on her approaches in fuch a defperate manner, that I don't know whether he will not be obliged to capitulate. In the mean time, his averfion to this inamorata ftruggling with his acquired affability, and his natural fear of giving offence, throws him into a kind of diffrefs which is extremely ridiculous.

ŧ

N.

Two days ago, he perfuaded my uncle and me to accompany him to St. James's, where he undertook to make us acquainted with the perfons of all the great men in the kingdom: and, indeed, there was a great affemblage of diftinguished characters, for it was a high feftival at court. Our conductor performed his promife with great punctuality. He pointed out almost every individual of both fexes, and generally introduced them to our notice, with a flourish of panegyric-Seeing the King approach. "There comes (faid he) the most ami-"able fovereign that ever fwayed the fceptre of "England ; the delicie humani generis; Au-"gustus, in patronizing merit; Titus Vespasian, "in generofity; Trajau, in beneficence; and "Marçus Aurelius, in philosophy." "A verv "honeft, kind-hearted gentleman (added my un-"cle); he's too good for the times. A king of "England fhould have a fpice of the devil in his · Vol. I. M "com-

"composition." Barton then turning to the Duke of C----, proceeded-----"You know "the duke; that illustrious hero, who trod re-"bellion under his feet, and fecured us in possef-"fion of every thing we ought to hold dear, as "Englishmen and Christians. Mark what an "eye, how penetrating, yet pacific! what dig-"nity in his mien! what humanity in his afpect "-----Even malice must own, that he is one of "the greatest officers in Christendom." 46 T "think he be (faid Mr. Bramble); but who are "thefe young gentlemen that ftand befide him?" "Those! (cried our friend) those are his royal "nephews; the princes of the blood. Sweet "young princes! the facred pledges of the Pro-"teftant line; fo fpirited, fo fenfible, fo prince-"ly-" "Yes; very fenfible! very fpirited! "(faid my uncle interrupting him) but fee the "queen! ha, there's the queen-There's the "queen! let me fee____Let me fee____Where "are my glaffes? ha! there's meaning in that "eye-There's fentiment-There's expref-"fion. Well, Mr. Barton, what figure do you "call next?" The next perfon he pointed out was the favourite yearl; who ftood folitary by one of the windows-"Behold yon northern "ftar, (lays he) shorn of his beams-----", "What! the Caledonian luminary, that lately "blazed fo bright in our hemisphere! methinks, "at prefent, it glimmers through a fog; like Sa-"turn without his ring, bleak and dim, and " diftant

١.

"diftant-----Ha, there's the other great pheno-"menon, the grand penfionary, that weather-"cock of patriotifm that yeers about in every "point of the political compass, and ftill feels the "wind of popularity in his tail. He too, like a "portentous comet, has rifen again above the "court horizon; but how long he will continue "to afcend, it is not easy to foretel, confidering "his great eccentricity-----Who are those two When "fatellites that attend his motions?" Barton told him their names, "To their charac-"ters (faid Mr. Bramble) I am no ftranger. "One of them, without a drop of red blood in "his veins, has a cold, intoxicating vapour in his "head; and rancour enough in his heart to in-" oculate and affect a whole nation. The other "is (I hear) intended for a fhare in the ad-n, "and the penfionary vouches for his being duly "qualified-----The only inftance I ever heard of "his fagacity, was his deferting his former pa-"tron, when he found him declining in power, "and in difgrace with the people. Without "principle, talent, or intelligence, he is ungra-"cious as a hog, greedy as a vulture, and thie-"vifh as a jackdaw; but, it must be owned, he "is no hypocrite. He pretends to no virtue, "and takes no pains to difguise his character-"His ministry will be attended with one advan-"tage, no man will be difappointed by his "breach of promife, as no mortal ever trufted "to his word. I wonder how lord-first M 2 "difcovered

.

"difcovered this happy genius, and for what "purpose lord-has now adopted him: but "one would think, that as amber has a power "to attract dirt, and ftraws, and choff, a mi-"nifter is endued with the fame kind of faculty, "to lick up every knave and blockhead in his "way----" His eulogium was interrupted by the arrival of the old duke of N----; who, fqueezing into the circle with a bufy face of importance, thurst his head into every countenance, as if he had been in fearch of fomebody, to whom he wanted to impart fomething of great confequence-My uncle, who had been formerly known to him, bowed as he paffed, and the duke, feeing himfelf faluted fo respectfully by a well-dreffed perfon, was not flow in returning the courtefy ----- He even came up, and, taking him cordially by the hand, "My dear "friend, Mr. A....., (fays he) I am rejoiced "to fee you----How long have you been come "from abroad?----How did you leave our good "friends, the Dutch? The king of Pruffia don't "think of another war, ah?---He's a great "king; a great conqueror! a very great con-"queror: Your Alexanders and Hannibals were "nothing at all to him, Sir-Corporals! drum-"mers ! drofs ! mere trafh-Damned trafh. of breath, my uncle took the opportunity to tell him he had not been out of England, that his name was Bramble, and that he had the honour

to

to fit in the last parliament but one of the late king, as reprefentative for the borough of Dym-"Odfo! (cried the duke) I rememkymraig. "ber you perfectly well, my dear Mr. Bramble "----You was always a good and loyal fub-"ject-a stanch friend to administration-"I made your brother an Irifh bifhop----" "Pardon me, my lord, (faid the 'fquire) I once "had a brother, but he was a captain in the ar-"Ha! (fuid his grace) he was "mv----" "fo-He was, indeed! But who was the "bilhop then? Bifhop Blackberry-Sure it "was bilhop Blackberry-Perhaps fome rela-"tion of yours-" "Very likely, my lord "(replied my uncle); the Blackberry is the fruit "of the Bramble-But, I believe, the Bifhop "is not a berry of our bufh-" "No more "he is----No more he is, ha, ha, ha! (ex-"claimed the duke) there you gave me a fcratch, "good Mr. Bramble, ha, ha, ha!-----Well, I "fhall be glad to fee you at Lincoln's-inn-fields "-You know the way-Times are alter-"ed. Though I have loft the power, I retain "the inclination-Your very humble fervant, "good Mr. Blackberry-" So faying, he fhoved to another corner of the room. "What "a fine old gentleman! (cried Mr. Barton) what "fpirits! what a memory !----- He never forgets "an old friend." "He does me too much ho-"nour, (obferved our 'fquire) to rank me among "the number-Whilft I fat in parliament, I Mз "never

"never voted with the ministry but three times, "when my confcience told me they were in the "right: however, if he ftill keeps levce, I will "carry my nephew thither, that he may fee, and "learn to avoid the scene; for, I think, an Eng-"lifh gentleman never appears to fuch difadvan-"tage, as at the levee of a minister-Of his "grace I fhall fay nothing at prefent, but that "for thirty years he was the conftant and com-"mon butt of ridicule and execration. He was "generally laughed at as an ape in politics, who-"fe office and influence ferved only to render his "folly the more notorious; and the opposition "curfed him, as the indefatigable drudge of a "first-mover, who was justly stiled and stigma-"tized as the father of corruption: but this ridi-"culous ape, this venal drudge, no fooner loft " the places he was fo ill qualified to fill, and un-"furled the banners of faction, than he was me-"tamorphofed into a pattern of public virtue; "the very people who reviled him before, now "extolled him to the fkies, as a wife, experienc-"ed statesman, chief pillar of the Protestant fuc-"ceffion, and cornerstone of English liberty. I "fhould be glad to know how Mr. Barton re-" conciles these contradictions, without obliging "us to refign all title to the privilege of com-"mon fenfe." "My dear Sir, (answered Barton) "I don't pretend to juffify the extravagations of "the multitude; who I fuppofe were as wild in "their former cenfure, as in their prefent praife: * but "but I fhall be very glad to attend you on "Thursday next to his grace's levee; where, "I'm afraid, we shall not be crowded with com-"pany; for, you know, there's a wide dif-"ference between his present office of president "of the council, and his former post of first lord "commissioner of the treasury."

This communicative friend having announced all the remarkable characters of both fexes, that appeared at court, we refolved to adjourn, and retired. At the foot of the ftair cafe, there was a crowd of lacqueys and chairmen, and in the midft of them ftood Humphry Clinker, exalted upon a ftool, with his hat in one hand, and a paper in the other, in the act of holding forth to the people——Before we could enquire into the meaning of this exhibition, he perceived his mafter, thruft the paper into his pocket, defcended from his elevation, bolted through the crowd, and brought up the carriage to the gate.

My uncle faid nothing till we were feated, when, after having looked at me earneftly for fome time, he burft out a laughing, and afked me if I knew upon what fubject Clinker was holding forth to the mob?——"If (faid he) the "fellow is turned mountebank, I muft turn him "out of my fervice, otherwife he'll make Merry "Andrews of us all——" I obferved that, in all probability, he had ftudied medicine under his mafter, who was a farrier.——

M4.

At

,

At dinner, the 'fquire afked him, if he had ever practifed phyfic? "Yes, an pleafe your ho-"nour. (faid he) among brute beafts; but I "never meddle with rational creatures." « T "know not whether you rank in that clafs the "audience you was haranguing in the court at St. "James's, but I should be glad to know what "kind of powders you was distributing; and "whether you had a good fale-----" "Sale, "Sir! (cried Clinker) I hope I fhall never be "bale enough to fell for gold and filver, what "freely comes of God's grace. I diffributed "nothing, an like your honour, but a word of "advice to my fellows in fervitude and fin." "Advice! concerning what?" " Concerning "profane fwearing, an pleafe your honour; fo "horrid and fhocking, that it made my hair fland "on end." "Nay, if thou canft cure them of "that difeafe, I fhall think thee a wonderful doc-"tor indeed " "Why not cure them, my "good mafter? the hearts of those poor people "are not fo ftubborn as your honour feems to "think-Make them first sensible that you "have nothing in view but their good, then they "will liften with patience, and eafily be convinc-"ed of the fin and folly of a practice that affords "neither profit nor pleasure-" At this remark, our uncle changed colour, and looked round the company, confcious thas his own withers were not altogether unwrung. " But, "Clinker, (fays he) if you fhould have elo-"duence

"quence enough to perfuade the vulgar, to re-"fign those tropes and figures of rhetoric, the-"re will be little or nothing left to diffinguish "their conversation from that of their betters." "But then your honour knows, their conversa-"tion will be void of offence; and, at the day "of judgment, there will be no diffinction of "perfons."

Humphry going down ftairs to fetch up a bottle of wine, my uncle congratulated his fifter upon having fuch a reformer in the family; when Mrs. Tabitha declared, he was a fober civilized fellow; very respectful, and very industrious; and, fhe believed, a good Christian into the bargain. One would think. Clinker must really have fome very extraordinary talent, to ingratiate himfelf in this manner with a virago of her character, fo fortified against him with prejudice and refentment; but the truth is. fince the adventure of Salt-hill, Mrs. Tabby feems to be entirely changed. She has left off fcolding they fervants, an exercife which was grown habitual, and even feemed neceffary to her conftitution: and is become fo indifferent to Chowder, as to part with him in a prefent to lady Grifkin, who proposes to bring the breed of him into faihion. Her ladyship is the widow of Sir Timothy Grifkin, a diftant relation of our family. She enjoys a jointure of five hundred pounds a-year, and makes fhift to fpend three times that fum. Her character before marriage was a little equi-M 5 vocal:

vocal: but at prefent fhe lives in the bon ton, keeps card-tables, gives private fuppers to felect friends, and is visited by persons of the first fashion-She has been remarkably civil to us all, and cultivates my uncle with the most particular regard; but the more fhe ftroaks him, the more his briltles feen to rife---- To her compliments he makes very laconic and dry returns -----T'other day, fhe fent us a pottle of fine firawherries, which he did not receive without figns of difgust, muttering from the Æneid, timeo Danaos et Dona ferentes. She has twice called for Liddy, of a forenoon, to take an airing in the coach; but Mrs. Tabby was always fo alert, (I suppose by his direction) that she never could have the niece without her aunt's company .---- I have endeavoured to found Squaretoes on this fubject; but he carefully avoids all explanation.

I have now, dear Phillips, filled a whole fheet; and if you have read it to an end, I dare fay, you are as tired as

Your humble fervant,

London, June 2.

J. MELFORD.

۰ To

HUMPHRY CLINKER, 187

To Dr. LEWIS.

ł

YES, Doctor, I have feen the British Mufeum; which is a noble collection, and even flupendous, if we confider it was made by a private man, a phyfician. who was obliged to make his own fortune at the fame time: but great as the collection is, it would appear more firiking if it was arranged in one fpacious faloon, inftead of being divided into different apartments, which it does not entirely fill-I could wifh the feries of medals was connected, and the whole of the animal, vegetable, and mineral kingdoms compleated, by adding to each, at the public expence, those articles that are wanting. It would likewife be a great improvement, with respect to the library, if the deficiencies were made up, by purchasing all the books of character that are not to be found already in the collection-They might be claffed in centuries, according to the dates of their publication, and catalogues printed of them and the manufcripts, for the information of those that want to confult, or compile from fuch authorities. I could alfo wifh, for the honour of the nation, that there was a complete apparatus for a course of mathematics, mechanics, and experimental philosophy; and a good falary fettled upon an able profeffor, who fhould give regular lectures on thefe fubjects.

But

Ż

But this is all idle fpeculation, which will never he reduced to practice----Confidering the temper of the times, it is a wonder to fee any inftitution whatfoever eftablished, for the benefit of the public. The fpirit of party is rifen to a kind of phrenzy, unknown to former ages, or rather degenerated to a total extinction of honefty and candour-You know I have obferved, for fome time, that the public papers are become the infamous vehicles of the most cruel and perfidious defamation: every rancorous knave----every desperate incendiary, that can afford to fpend half a crown or three fhillings, may fkulk behind the prefs of a news-monger, and have a ftab at the first character in the kingdom, without running the leaft hazard of detection, or punifhment.

I have made acquaintance with a Mr. Barton, ' whom Jery knew at Oxford; a good fort of a man, though most ridiculously warped in his political principles; but his partiality is the lefs offensive, as it never appears in the ftile of fcurrility and abuse. He is a member of parliament. and a retainer to the court; and his whole converfation turns upon the virtues and perfections of the ministers, who are his patrons. T'other day, when he was bedaubing one of those worthies, with the most fulsome praise. I told him I had feen the fame nobleman characterized very differently, in one of the daily-papers; indeed, fo ftigmatized, that if one half of what was faid of him

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 189

۰.

him was true, he must be not only unfit to rule. but even unfit to live; that those impeachments had been repeated again and again, with the addition of fresh matter: and that as he had taken no fleps towards his own vindication, I began to think there was fome foundation for the char-"And pray, Sir, (faid Mr. Barton) what ge. "fteps would you have him take!----Suppofe "you fhould profecute the publisher, who foreens "the anonymous acculer, and bring him to the "pillory for a libel; this is fo far from being "counted a punifiment, in terrorem, that it will "probably make his fortune. The multitude im-"mediately take him into their protection, as a "martyr to the caufe of defamation, which they "have always espouled-They pay his fine, "they contribute to the increase of his ftock, his "fhop is crowded with cuftomers, and the fale "of his paper rifes in proportion to the fcandal "it contains. All this time the profecutor is in-"veighed against as a tyrant and oppressor, for "having chosen to proceed by the way of in-"formation, which is deemed a grievance: but "if he lays an action for damages, he must prove "the damage, and I leave you to judge, whether "a gentleman's character may not be brought "into contempt, and all his views in life blafted "with calumny, without his being able to fpe-"cify the particulars of the damage he has ful-"tained.

"This

"This fpirit of defamation is a kind of here." "fv. that thrives under perfecution. The liber-"ty of the press is a term of great efficacy; and, "like that of the Protestant religion, has often "ferved the purposes of sedition-A minister, "therefore, must arm himself with patience, and "ever mischief they may do in other respects. "they certainly contribute in one particular, to "the advantage of government; for those defa-"matory articles have multiplied papers in fuch a "manner, and augmented their fale to fuch a "degree, that the duty upon flamps and advertife-"ments has made a very confiderable addition to "the revenue." Certain it is, a gentleman's honour is a very delicate fubject to be handled by a jury, composed of men, who cannot be supposed remarkable either for fentiment or impartia. lity-In fuch a cafe, indeed, the defendant is tried, not only by his peers, but alfo by his party, and I really think, that of all patriots, he is the most resolute, who exposes himself to fuch detraction, for the fake of his country-If. from the ignorance or partiality of juries, a gentleman can have no redrefs from law, for being defamed in a pamphlet or news-paper, I know but one other method of proceeding against the publisher, which is attended with some rifque. but has been practifed fuccefsfully, more than once, in my remembrance-A regiment of horfe was represented, in one of the news-papers, pers, as having mifbehaved at Dettingen; captain of that regiment broke the publisher's bones, telling him, at the fame time, if he went to law, he fhould certainly have the like faluta. tion from every officer of the corps. Governor -----took the fame fatisfaction on the ribs of an author, who traduced him by name in a periodical paper.----I know a low fellow of the fame clafs, who, being turned out of Venice for his impudence and fourrility, retired to Lugano. a town of the Grifons, (a free people, God wot) where he found a printing prefs, from whence he fquirted his filth at fome respectable characters in the republic, which he had been obliged to abandon. Some of thefe, finding him out of the reach of legal chaffifement, employed certain useful instruments, such as may be found in all countries, to give him the baffinado; which, being repeated more than once, effectually ftopt the current of his abufe.

.1

As for the liberty of the prefs, like every other privilege, it must be reftrained within certain bounds; for if it is carried to a breach of law, religion, and charity, it becomes one of the greatest evils that ever annoyed the community. If the lowest ruffian may stab your good name with impunity in England, will you be fo uncandid as to exclaim against Italy for the practice of common all affination? To what purpose is our property fecured, if our moral character is left defenceles? People thus baited, grow despects.

fperate; and the defpair of being able to preferve one's character, untainted by fuch vermin, produces a total neglect of fame; fo that one of the chief incitements to the practice of virtue is effectually deftroyed.

Mr. Barton's laft confideration, refpecting the ftamp-duty, is equally wife and laudable with another maxim which has been long adopted by, our financiers, namely, to connive at drunken. nefs, riot, and diffipation, becaufe they enhance the receipt of the excife; not reflecting, that in providing this temporary convenience, they are deftroying the morals, health, and induftry of the people-----Notwithstanding my contempt for those who flatter a minister, I think there is fomething fiill more defpicable in flatter. ing a mob. When I fee a man of birth. education, and fortune, put himfelf on a level with the dregs of the people, mingle with low mechanics, feed with them at the fame board, and drink with them in the fame cup, flatter their prejudices, harangue in praise of their virtues. expose themselves to the belchings of their beer. the fumes of their tobacco, the groffnefs of their familiarity, and the impertinence of their converfation, I cannot help despising him, as a man guilty of the vileft profitution, in order to effect a purpole equally felfish and illiberal.

I fhould renounce politics the more willingly, if I could find other topics of converfation, difcuffed with more modefty and candour; but the dædæmon of party feems to have usurped every department of life. Even the world of literature and tafte is divided into the most virulent factions, which revile, decry, and traduce the works of one another. Yesterday, I went to return an afternoon's visit to a gentleman of my acquaintance, at whole house I found one of the authors of the prefent age, who has written with fome fuccefs-As I had read one or two of his performances, which gave me pleafure, I was glad of this opportunity to know his perfon; but his discourse, and deportment destroyed all the impreffions which his writings had made in his favour. He took upon him to decide dogmatically upon every subject, without deigning to shew the least cause for his differing from the general opinions of mankind, as if it had been our duty to acquiesce in the ipfe dixit of this new Pythagoras. He rejudged the characters of all the principal authors, who had died within a century of the prefent time; and, in this revision. paid no fort of regard to the reputation thy had acquired-Milton was harfh and profaic; Dryden, languid and verbofe; Butler and Swift, without humour; Congreve, without wit; and Pope deflitute of any fort of poetical merit-As for his cotemporaries, he could not bear to hear one of them mentioned with any degree of applause____They were all dunces, pedants, plagiaries, quacks, and impostors; and you could not name a fingle performance, but what VOL. I. was N

.

was tame, flupid, and infipid. It muft be owned, that this writer had nothing to charge his conficience with, on the fide of flattery; for, I underftand, he was never known to praife one line that was written, even by those with whom he lived on terms of good fellowsfhip. This arrogance and prefumption, in depreciating authors, for whose reputation the company may be interested, is such an infult upon the understanding, as I could not bear without wincing.

I defired to know his reafons for decrying fome works, which had afforded me uncommon pleasure; and, as demonstration did not seem to be his talent. I diffented from his opinion with great freedom. Having been spoiled by the deference and humility of his hearers, he did not bear contradiction with much temper; and the dispute might have grown warm, had it not been interrupted by the entrance of a rival bard, at whole appearance he always quits the place-----They are of different cabals, and have been at open war these twenty years-----If the other was dogmatical, this genius was declamatory: he did not discourse, but harangue; and his orations were equally tedious and turgid. He too pronounced ex cathedra upon the characters of his cotemporaries; and though he fcruples not to deal out praise, even lavishly, to the lowest reptile in Grub-street who will either flatter him in private, or mount the public roftrum as his panegyrift, he damns all the other writers writers of the age, with the utmost infolence and rancour-One is a blunderbufs, as being a native of Ireland; another, a half-ftarved loufe of literature, from the banks of the Tweed; a third, an afs, becaufe he enjoys a penfion from the government; a fourth, the very angel of dulnefs; because he succeeded in a species of writing in which this Ariftarchus had failed; a fifth, who prefumed to make firictures upon one of his performances, he holds as a bug in criticifm, whole ftench is more offenfive than his fting-In fhort, except himfelf and his myrmidons, there is not a man of genius or learning in the three kingdoms. As for the fuccefs of those, who have written without the pale of this confederacy, he imputes it entirely to want of tafte in the public; not confidering, that to the approbation of that very tafteless public, he himfelf owes all the confequence he has in life.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 195

Those originals are not fit for conversation. If they would maintain the advantage they have gained by their writing, they should never appear but upon paper—For my part, I am shocked to find a man have sublime ideas in his head, and nothing but illiberal fentiments in his heart—The human foul will be generally found most defective in the article of candour— I am inclined to think, no mind was ever wholly exempt from envy; which, perhaps, may have been implanted, as an instinct effential to our nature. I am afraid we fometimes palliate N 2

ł

this vice, under the fpecious name of emulation. I have known a perfon remarkably generous, humane, moderate, and apparently felf denying, who could not hear even a friend commended, without betraying marks of uneafinefs; as if that commendation had implied an odious comparifon to his prejudice, and every wreath of praife added to the other's character, was a garland plucked from his own temples. This is a malignant fpecies of jealoufy, of which I ftand acquitted in my own conficence—Whether it is a vice, or an infirmity, I leave you to inquire.

There is another point, which I would much rather fee determined; whether the world was always as contemptible, as it appears to me at prefent?——If the morals of mankind have not contracted an extraordinary degree of depravity, within thefe thirty years, then muft I be infected with the common vice of old men, difficilis, querulus, laudator temporis acti; or, which is more probable, the impetuous purfuits and avocations of youth have formerly hindered me from obferving those rotton parts of human nature, which now appear fo offenfively to my obfervation.

We have been at court, and 'change, and every where; and every where we find food for fpleen, and fubject for ridicule——My new fervant, Humphry Clinker, turns out a great original; and Tabby is a changed creature——

She

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 197

She has parted with Chowder; and does nothing but finile, like Malvolio in the play —_____I'll be hanged if fhe is not acting a part which is not natural to her difpolition, for fome purpose which I have not yet difcovered.

With refpect to the characters of mankind, my curiofity is quite fatisfied: I have done with the fcience of men, and muft now endeavour to amufe myfelf with the novelty of things. I am, at prefent, by a violent effort of the mind, forced from my natural bias; but this power ceafing to act, I shall return to my folitude with redoubled velocity. Every thing I fee, and hear, and feel, in this great refervoir of folly, knavery, and fophification, contributes to inhance the value of a country life, in the fentiments of

Yours always,

London June 2.

MATT. BRAMBLE.

Τo

To Mrs. MARY JONES, at Brambleton-hall.

DEAR MARY JONES,

LADY Grifkin's botler, Mr. Crumb, having got 'fquire Barton to frank me a kiver, I would not neglect to let you know how it is with me, and the reft of the family.

I could not rite by John Thomas, for becaufe he went away in a huff, at a minute's warning. He and Chowder could not agree, and fo they fitt upon the road, and Chowder bitt his thumb, and he fwore he would do him a mifchief, and he fpoke faucy to miftrefs, whereby the 'fquire turned him off in gudgeon; and by God's providence we picked up another footman, called Umphry Klinker; a good fole as ever broke bread; which fhews that a fcalded cat may prove a good moufer, and a hound be ftanch, thof he has got narro hare on his buttocks; but the proudeft nofe may be bro't to the grine-ftone, by ficknefs and misfortunes.

O Molly! what fhall I fay of London? All the towns that ever I beheld in my born-days, are no more than Welfh barrows and crumlecks to this wonderful fitty! Even Bath itfelf is but a fillitch, in the naam of God—One would think there's no end of the ftreets, but the land's end. Then there's fuch a power of people, going hurry fkurry! Such a racket of coxes! Such a noife. a noife, and hali balloo! So many firange fites to be feen! O gracious! my poor Welfh brain has been fpinning like a top ever fince I came hither! And I have feen the Park, and the paleafs of Saint Gimfes, and the king's and the queen's magisterial pursing, and the fweet young princes, and the hillyfents, and pye-bald afs, and all the reft of the royal family.

Last week I went with mistress to the Tower. to fee the crowns and wild beaftis; and there was a monstracious lion, with teeth half a quarter long; and a gentleman bid me not go near him, if I wasn't a maid; being as how he would roar, and tear, and play the dickens-Now I had no mind to go near him; for I cannot abide fuch dangerous honeymils, not I-----but mistrefs would go; and the beaft kept fuch a roaring and bouncing, that I tho't he would have broke his cage and devoured us all; and the gentleman tittered forfooth; but I'll go to death upon it, I will, that my lady is as good a firchin, as the child unborn; and, therefore, either the gentleman told a fib, or the lion oft to be fet in the flocks for bearing falle witnefs again his neighbour; for the commandment fayeth, Thou fualt not bear falle witnefs against thy neighbour.

I was afterwards of a party at Sadler's wells, where I faw fuch tumbling and dancing upon ropes and wires, that I was frightened, and ready to go into a fit----I tho't it was all inchantment; and, believing myfelf bewitched, began for

N 4

for to cry-You knows as how the witches in Wales fly upon broom-flicks, but here was flying without any broom-flicks, or thing in the varfal world, and firing of piftols in the air, and blowing of trumpets, and fwinging, and rolling of wheel-barrows upon a wire, (God blefs us!) no thicker than a fewing-thread; that, to be fure, they must deal with the devil !----- A fine gentleman, with a pig's-tail, and a golden ford by his fide, came to comfit me, and offered for to treat me with a pint of wind: but I would not flay; and fo, in going through the dark paffage, he began to fhew his cloven futt, and went for to be rude; my fellow-farvant, Umphry Klinker, bid him be fivil, and he gave the young man a dowfe in the chops; but, I fackins, Mr. Klinker wa'n't long in his debt-with a good oaken fapling he dufted his doublet, for all his golden cheefe-toafter; and, fipping me under his arm, carried me huom, I nofe not how, being I was in fuch a fluftration-But. thank God! I'm now vaned from all fuch vanities; for what are all those rarities and vagaries to the glory that fhail be revealed hereafter? O Molly! let not your poor heart be puffed up with vanity.

I had almost forgot to tell you, that I have had my hair cut and pippered, and finged, and bolftered, and buckled, in the newest fashion, by a French freezer—Parley vow Francey Vec madmanfell—I now carries my head higher higher than arrow private gentlewoman of Vales. Laft night, coming huom from the meeting, I was taken by lamp-light for an imminent poulterer's daughter, a great beauty——But as I was faying, this is all vanity and vexation of fpirit——The pleafures of London are no better than fower whey and ftale cyder, when compared to the joys of the new Gerufalem.

Dear Mary Jones! An' please God when 1 return, I'll bring you a new cap, with a turkey fhell coom, and a pychoufe fermon, that was preached in the Tabernacle; and I pray of all love, you will mind your vriting and your fpelling; for, craving your pardon, Molly, it made me suet to disseyffer your last fcrabble, which was delivered by the hind at Bath-O, voman! voman! if thou had'ft but the least confumption of what pleasure we fcullers have, when we can cunfter the crabbidft buck off hand, and spell the ethnitch vords without lucking at the primmer. As for Mr. Klinker, he is qualified to be clerk to a parifh-But I'll fay no more-Remember me to Saul-poor fole ! it goes to my hart to think fhe don't yet know her letters____But all in God's good time____ It shall go hard, but I will bring her the A B C in gingerbread; and that, you nofe, will be learning to her tafte.

Miftrefs

Mistrefs fays, we are going a long gurney to the North; but go where we will, I shall ever be,

Dear Mary Jones,

Yours with true infection.

London, June 3.

WIN. JENKINS.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jelus College, Oxon.

DEAR WAT,

I MENTIONED in my laft, my uncle's defign of going to the duke of N——'s levee; , which defign has been executed accordingly. His grace has been fo long accuftomed to this kind of homage, that tho' the place he now fills does not imply the tenth part of the influence, which he exerted in his former office, he has given his friends to underftand, that they cannot oblige him in any thing more, than in contributing to fupport the fluadow of that power which he no longer retains in fubftance; and therefore he has ftill public days, on which they appear at his levee.

My uncle and I went thither with Mr. Barton, who, being one of the duke's adherents, undertook took to be our introducer____The room was pretty well filled with people, in a great variety of drefs; but there was no more than one gown and caffock, tho' I was told his grace had, while he was minister, preferred almost every individual that now filled the bench of bifhops in the house of lords; but, in all probability, the gratitude of the clergy is like their charity, which fhuns the light-----Mr. Barton was immediate-Iv accosted by a perfon, well stricken in years, tall, and raw-boned, with a hook nofe, and an arch leer, that indicated, at least, as much cunning as fagacity. Our conductor faluted him, by the name of captain C----, and afterwards informed us he was a man of fhrewd parts, whom the government occasionally employed in fecret fervices-But I have had the hiftory of him more at large, from another quarter-He had been, many years ago, concerned in fraudulent practices, as a merchant, in France; and being convicted of fome of them, was fent to the gallies, from whence he was delivered by the interest of the late duke of Ormond, to whom he had recommended himfelf in letter, as his name fake and relation-He was, in the fequel, employed by our ministry as a spy; and in the war of 1740, traverfed all Spain, as well as France, in the difguife of a capuchin, at the extreme hazard of his life, in as much as the court of Madrid had actually got fcent of him, and given orders to apprehend him at St. Sebaftian's, from from whence he had fortunately retired but a few hours before the order arrived. This and other hair breadth 'scapes he pleaded fo effectually as a merit with the English ministry, that they allowed him a comfortable penfion, which he now enjoys in his old age-----He has ftill accefs to all the ministers, and is faid to be confulted by them on many fubjects, as a man of uncommon understanding and great experience-He is, in fact, a fellow of fome parts, and invincible affurance; and, in his difcourfe, he affumes fuch an air of felf-fufficiency, as may very well impose upon fome of the shallow politicians, who now labour at the helm of administra-But, if he is not belied, this is not the tion. only imposture of which he is guilty-They fay. he is at bottom not only a Roman-Catholic, but really a prieft: and while he pretends to disclose to our flate-pilots all the fprings that move the cabinet of Verfailles, he is actually picking up intelligence for the fervice of the French minifter -Be that as it may, captain C-entered into conversation with us in the most familiar manner, and treated the duke's character without any ceremony-"This wife-acre (faid he) is "fill a-bed; and, I think, the beft thing he can "do. is to fleep on till Chriftmas; for, when he "gets up, he does nothing but expose his own " folly.-----Since Granville was turned out, the-"re has been no minister in this nation worth "the meal that whitened his periwig-

They

"They are fo ignorant, they fcarce know a crab "from a cauliflower: and then they are fuch "dunces, that there's no making them com-"prehend the plainest proposition-In the be-"ginning of the war, this poor half-witted crea-"ture told me, in a great fright, that thirty thou-"fand French had marched from Acadie to Cape "Briton"-----" Where did they find transports?" (faid 1). "Transports! (cried he) I tell you, "they marched by land ----- " "By land to the "ifland of Cape Breton!" "What! is Cape Bre-"ton a ifland?" Certainly. "Ha! are you fure "of that?" When I pointed it out in the map, he examined it earneftly with his fpectacles; then taking me in his arms, "My dear C----! "(cried he) you always bring us good news-"Egad! I'll go directly, and tell the king that "Cape Breton is an ifland-----"

"withstanding his gray beard, is a green horn "-----He has been feveral years refident at Lon-"don. and is ftill ignorant of our political revolu-This vifit is intended for the prime mi-"tions. "nister of England; but you'll see how this wife "duke will receive it as a mark of attachment "to his own perfor-" Certain it is, the duke feemed eager to acknowledge the compliment-----A door opening, he fuddenly bolted out, with a fhaving cloth under his chin, his face frothed up to the eyes with foap lather; and, running up to the ambaffador, grinned hideous in his face----- "My dear Mahomet! (faid he) "God love your long beard, I hope the dey will "make you a horfe-tail at the next promotion, "ha, ha, ha! ---- Have but a moment's patien-So faying, he retreated into his den, leaving the Turk in some confusion. After a short pause, however, he faid fomething to his interpreter, the meaning of which I had great curiofity to know, as he turned up his eyes while he fpoke. expreffing aftonifhment, mixed with devotion-We were gratified by means of the communica. tive captain C---- who conversed with the dragoman as an old acquaintance. Ibrahim, the ambaffador, who had miftaken his grace for the minister's fool, was no sooner undeceived by the interpreter, than he exclaimed to this effect-----"Holy prophet! I don't wonder that this nation "profpers, feeing it is governed by the counfel "of

"of ideots; a feries of men, whom all good muf-"felmen revere as the organs of immediate infpi-"ration!" Ibrahim was favoured with a particular audience of fhort duration; after which the duke conducted him to the door, and then returned to diffuse his gracious looks among the crowd of his worfhippers.

As Mr. Barton advanced to prefent me to his grace, it was my fortune to attract his notice. before I was announced-He forthwith met me more than half way, and feizing me by the hand, "My dear Sir Francis! (cried he) this is "fo kind-----I vow to God! I am fo obliged-----"Such attention to a poor broken minister-----"Well-Prav when does your excellency "fet fail?----For God's fake have a care of "vour health, and eat stewed prunes in the paf-"fage-----Next to your own precious health. "pray, my dear excellency, take care of the "Five Nations-Our good friends the Five "Nations-----The Toryrories, the Maccolmacks, "the Out-o'the ways, the Crickets, and the Kick-"fhaws-Let 'em have plenty of blankets. "and flinkubus, and wampum; and your excel-"lency won't fail to fcour the kettle, and boil "the chain, and bury the tree, and plant the hat-"chet-Ha, ha, ha!" When he had uttered this rhapfody, with his usual precipitation, Mr. Barton gave him to understand, that I was neither Sir Francis, nor St. Francis; but fimple Mr. Melford, nephew to Mr. Bramble; who, ftepftepping forward, made his bow at the fame ""Odfo! no more it is Sir Francis----time "(faid this wife ftatesman) Mr. Melford, I'm "glad to fee you-----I fent you an engineer to "fortify your dock------Mr. Bramble-----your "fervant Mr. Bramble-How d'ye, good "Mr. Bramble? Your nephew is a pretty young "fellow-Faith and troth, a very pretty fel-"low !-----His father is my old friend-----How "does he hold it? Still troubled with that "damned diforder, ha?" "No, my lord, (re-"plied my uncle) all his troubles are over-----"He has been dead these fifteen years." "Dead! "how-Yes, faith! now I remember: he is "dead, fure enough-Well, and how-"does the young gentleman ftand for Haverford "Weft? or-___a-__what d've-___My dear "Mr. Milfordhaven, I'll do you all the fervice-in "my power-I hope I have fome credit "left-----" My uncle then gave him to underftand, that I was ftill a minor; and that we had no intention to trouble him at prefent for any favour whatfoever-"'I came hither with my "nephew (added he) to pay our respects to "your grace; and I may venture to fay that his "views and mine are at least as difinterested as "those of any individual in this affembly." "My "dear Mr. Brambleberry! you do me infinite "honour-I fhall always rejoice to fee you "and your hopeful nephew, Mr. Milfordhaven-"My credit, fuch as it is, you may command-

"I

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 200

"I with we had more friends of your kid-"ney------"

Then, turning to captain C----, "Ha, "C----! (faid he) what news, C----? How "does the world wag? ha!" "The world "wags much after the old fashion, my lord: "(anfwered the captain) the politicians of Lon-"don and Weftminster, have begun again to wag "their tongues against your grace; and your "fhort-lived popularity wags like a feather. "which the next puff of antiministerial calumny "will blow away !-----" "A pack of rafcals "(cried the duke)-----Tories, Jacobites, rebels; "one half of them would wag their heels at Tv-"burn if they had their deferts-----" So faying, he wheeled about; and, going round the levee, fpoke to every individual, with the most courteous familiarity; but he fcarce ever opened his mouth without making fome blunder, in relation to the perfon or bufinefs of the party with whom he converfed; fo that he really looked like a comedian hired to burlefque the character of a minister-At length, a person of a very prepoffelling appearance coming in, his grace ran up, and, hugging him in his arms, with the appellation of. "My dear Ch-s!" led him forthwith into the inner apartment, or Sanctum Sanctorum of this political temple." " That "(faid captain C-----) is my friend C----"T----, almost the only man of parts who has " any concern in the prefent administration-VOL. I. "In- \mathbf{O}

¢

"Indeed, he would have no concern at all in the "matter, if the ministry did not find it absolutely "necessary to make use of his talents upon fome "particular occafions———As for the common "bufine's of the nation, it is carried on in a con-"fant routine by the clerks of the different of-"fices, otherwife the wheels of government "would be wholly ftopt amidft the abrupt fuc-"ceffion of minifters, every one more ignorant "than his predeceffor-I am thinking what " a fine hovel we fhould be in, if all the clerks of "the treasury, of the secretaries, the war-office, "and the admiralty. fhould take it in their heads "to throw up their places in imitation of the "great penfioner.----But, to return to C-----"T____: he certainly knows more than all the "ministry and all the opposition, if their heads "were laid together, and talks like an angel on, "really be a great man, if he had any confiften. "cy or stability of character-Then it must "be owned, he wants courage, otherwife he "would never allow himfelf to be cowed by "the great political bully, for whofe under-"ftanding he has juftly a very great contempt. "I have feen him as much afraid of that over. "bearing Hector, as ever a fchool-boy was of "his pedagogue; and yet this Hector, I fhrewd-"ly fuspect, is no more than a craven at bot-"tom-Befides this defect, C- has another, "which he is at too little pains to hide-----"There's

"There's no faith to be given to his affertions, "and no truft to be put in his promifes-----"However, to give the devil his due, he's very "good natured; and even friendly, when close "urged in the way of folicitation-As for "principle, that's out of the queftion-In a "word, he is a wit and an orator, extremely en-"tertaining, and he fhines very often at the ex-"pence even of those ministers to whom he is a "retainer-This is a mark of great impruden-"ce, by which he has made them all his ene-"mies, whatever face they may have put upon "the matter: and fooner or later he'll have cau-"fe to with he had been able to keep his own "counfel-----I have feveral times cantioned him "on this fubject; but 'tis all preaching to the "defart-His vanity runs away with his difcre-" tion-----" I could not help thinking the captain himself might have been the better for fome hints of the fame nature,-----His panegyric. excluding principle and veracity, puts me in mind of a contest I once over-heard, in the way of altercation, betwixt two apple-women in Spring-Garden-One of those viragos having hinted fomething to the prejudice of the other's moral character, her antagonist, fetting her hands in her fides, replied-"Speak out, huffy-----"I fcorn your malice-I own I'm both a "whore and a thief; and what more have you "to fay ?----Damn you, what more have you "to fay? bating that, which all the world knows, 4 T 0 2

"I challenge you to fay black is the white of "my eye-" We did not wait for Mr. T-'s coming forth; but after captain C---- had characterized all the originals in waiting, we adjourned to a coffee house, where we had buttered muffins and tea to breakfast, the faid captain still favouring us with his company-Nav. my uncle was fo diverted with his anecdotes. that he asked him to dinner, and treated him with a fine turbot, to which he did ample juffice-----That fame evening I fpent at the tayern with fome friends, one of whom let me into C----'s character, which Mr. Bramble no fooner underflood, then he expressed fome concern for the connection he had made, and refolved to difengage himfelf from it without ceremony.

We are become members of the Society for the Encouragement of the Arts, and have affifted , at fome of their deliberations, which were conducted with equal fpirit and fagacity——My uncle is extremely fond of the infitution, which will certainly be productive of great advantages to the public, if, from its democratical form, it does not degenerate into cabal and corruption— You are already acquainted with his averfion to the influence of the multitude, which, he affirms, is incompatible with excellence, and fubverfive of order——Indeed his deteftation of the mob has been heightened by fear, ever fince he fainted in the room at Bath; and this apprehenfion has prevented him from going to the Little Theatre in the Hay market, and other places of entertainment, to which, however, I have had the honour to attend the ladies.

in

It grates old Square-Toes to reflect, that it is not in his power to enjoy even the most elegant diversions of the capital, without the participation of the vulgar; for they now thrust themfelves into all assemblies, from a ridotto at St. James's, to a hop at Rotherhithe.

I have lately feen our old acquaintance Dick Ivy, who we imagined had died of dram drinking; but he is lately emerged from the Fleet, by means of a pamphlet which he wrote and publifhed againft the government with fome fuccefs. The fale of this performance enabled him to appear in clean linen, and he is now going about foliciting fubfcriptions for his Poems; but his breeches are not yet in the most decent order.

Dick certainly deferves fome countenance for his intrepidity and perfeverance——It is not in the power of difappointment, nor even of damnation, to drive him to defpair——After fome unfuccefsful effays in the way of poetry, he commenced brandy-merchant, and I believe his whole ftock ran out through his own bowels; then he conforted with a milk-woman, who kept a cellar in Petty France: but he could not make his quarters good; he was diflodged and driven up ftairs into the kennel by a corporal in the fecond regiment of foot-guards——He was afterwards the laureat of Blackfriárs, from whence there

1

03 was 213

ı.

t

was a natural transition to the Fleet-As he had formerly mifcarried in panegyric, he now turned his thoughts to fatire, and really feems to have fome talent for abufe. If he can hold out till the meeting of the parliament, and be prepared for another charge, in all probability Dick. will mount the pillory, or obtain a penfion, in either of which events his fortune will be made -----Mean while he has acquired fome degree of confideration with the refpectable writers of the age; and as I have fubfcribed for his works, he did me the favour t'other night to introduce me to a fociety of those geniuses: but I found them exceedingly formal and referved .- They feemed afraid and jealous of one another, and fat in a flate of mutual repulsion, like fo many particles of vapour, each furrounded by its own electrified atmosphere. Dick, who has more vivacity than judgment, tried more than once to enliven the conversation; fometimes making an effort at wit, fometimes letting off a pun, and fometimes difcharging a conundrum; nay, at length he flarted a difpute upon the hackney. ed comparison betwixt blank verse and rhyme, and the professors opened with great clamour; but, inftead of keeping to the fubject, they launched out into tedious differtations on the poetry of the ancients; and one of them, who had been a school-master, displayed his whole knowledge of profody, gleaned from Difputer and Ruddiman. At last, I ventured to fay, I did did not fee how the fubject in queftion could be at all elucidated by the practice of the ancients, who certainly had neither blank verie nor rhyme in their poems, which were measured by feet, whereas ours are reckoned by the number of fyllables——This remark feemed to give umbrage to the pedant, who forthwith involved himfelf in a cloud of Greek and Latin quotations, which nobody attempted to difpel——A confufed hum of infipid obfervations and comments enfued; and, upon the whole, I never paffed a duller evening in my life——Yet, without all doubt, fome of them were men of learning, wit, and ingenuity.

As they are afraid of making free with one another, they fhould bring each his butt, or whet-ftone, along with him, for the entertainment of the company—My uncle fays he never defires to meet with more than one wit at a time—One wit, like a knuckle of ham in foup, gives a zeft and flavour to the difh; but more than one ferves only to fpoil the pottage— And now I'm afraid I have given you an unconfcionable mefs, without any flavour at all; for which, I fuppofe, you will beftow your benedictions upon

Your friend and fervant,

London, June 5:

5

J. MELFORD.

To

04

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR LEWIS,

VOUR fable of the monkey and the pig, is what the Italians call ben trovata : but I fhall not repeat it to my apothecary, who is a proud Scotfman, very thin fkinned, and, for aught I know, may have his degree in his pocket-----A right Scotfman has always two firings to his bow, and is in utrumque paratus-Certain it is, I have not 'scaped a scouring; but, I believe, by means of that fcouring, I have 'fcaped fomething worfe, perhaps a tedious fit of the gout or rheumatilm; for my appetite began to flagg, and I had certain croakings in the bowels which boded me no good----Nay, I am not yet quite free of these remembrances, which warn me to be gone from this centre of infection-----

What temptation can a man of my turn and temperament have, to live in a place where every corner teems with fresh objects of detestation and difgust? What kind of taste and organs must those people have, who really prefer the adulterate enjoyments of the town to the genuine pleasures of a country retreat? Most people, I know, are originally feduced by vanity, ambition, and childish curiosity; which cannot be gratified, but in the busy baunts of men: but, in in the course of this gratification, their very organs of fense are perverted, and they become habitually lost to every relish of what is genuine and excellent in its own nature.

Shall I ftate the difference between my town grievances, and my country comforts? At Brambleton-hall, I have elbow-room within doors and breathe a clear, elastic, falutary air-I enjoy refreshing fleep, which is never disturbed by horrid noise, nor interrupted, but in a morning, by the fweet twitter of the martlet at my window-I drink the virgin lymph, pure and cryftalline as it gufhes from the rock, or the fparkling beverage, home-brewed from malt of my own making; or I indulge with cyder, which my own orchard affords; or with claret of the best growth, imported for my own use. by a correspondent on whose integrity I can depend; my bread is fweet and nourifhing, made from my own wheat, ground in my own mill, and baked in my own oven; my table is, in a great measure, furnished from my own ground; my five year old mutton, fed on the fragrant her. bage of the mountains, that might vie with venifon in juice and flavour; my delicious veal, fattened with nothing but the mother's milk, that fills the difh with gravy; my poultry from the barn-door, that never knew confinement, but when they were at rooft; my rabbits panting from the warren; my game fresh from the moors; my trout and falmon ftruggling from the ftream;

.

0 5

ftream: oviters from their native banks; and herrings, with other fea fifth, I can eat in four hours after they are taken-My fallads. roots. and pot herbs, my own garden yields in plenty and perfection; the produce of the natural foil, prepared by moderate cultivation. The fame foil affords all the different fruits which England may call her own, fo that my defert is every day fresh-gathered from the tree; my dairy flows with nectarious tides of milk and cream, from whence we derive abundance of excellent butter, curds, and cheefe; and the refuse fattens my pigs, that are defined for hams and bacon-I go to bed betimes, and rife with the fun-----I make thift to pais the hours without wearinefs or regret, and am not destitute of amusements within doors, when the weather will not permit me to go abroad-I read, and chat, and playat billiards, cards, or back-gammon-Without doors, I fuperinted my farm, and execute plans of improvement, the effects of which I enjoy with unfpeakable delight-Nor do I take lefs pleafure in feeing my tenants thrive under mv aufpices, and the poor live comfortably by the employment which I provide-----You know I have one or two fenfible friends, to whom I can open all my heart; a bleffing which, perhaps, I might have fought in vain among the crowded fcenes of life; there are a few others of more humble parts, whom I efteem for their integrity: and their conversation I find inoffensive, though not not very entertaining. Finally, I live in the midft of honeft men, and trufty dependants, who, I flatter myfelf, have a difinterefted attachment to my perfor-You, yourfelf, my dear Docter, can vouch for the truth of thefe affertions.

am pent up in frowzy lodgings, where there is not room enough to fwing a cat; and I breathe the fleams of endless putrefaction: and these would, undoubtedly, produce a pestilence, if they were not qualified by the groß acid of fea coal, which is itfelf a pernicious nuifance to lungs of any delicacy of texture: but even this boafted corrector cannot prevent those languid, fallow looks, that diffinguish the inhabitants of London from those ruddy swains that lead a country-life-I go to bed after , midnight, jaded and reftlefs from the diffipations of the day-I ftart every hour from my fleep. at the horrid noife of the watchmen bawling the hour through every fireet, and thundering at every door; a fet of ufeless fellows, who ferve no other purpole but that of diffurbing the repofe of the inhabitants; and by five o'clock I ftart out of bed, in confequence of the ftill more dreadful alarm made by the country carts, and noify ruffics bellowing green peafe under my window. If I would drink water, I must quaff the maukish contents of an open aqueduct, exposed to all manner of defilement; or swallow that which comes from the river Thames, imprepregnated with all the filth of London and Weftminfter—Human excrement is the leaft offenfive part of the concrete, which is composed of all the drugs, minerals, and poifons, used in mechanics, and manufactures, enriched with the putrefying carcafes of beafts and men; and mixed with the fcourings of all the wafh-tubs, kennels, and common fewers, within the bills of mortality.

This is the agreeable potation, extolled by the Londoners, as the fineft water in the universe -----As to the intoxicating potion, fold for wine, it is a vile, unpalatable, and pernicious fophiltication, balderdafhed with cyder, corn-fpirit, and the juice of floes. In an action at law, laid against a carman for having staved a cask of port. it appeared from the evidence of the cooper. that there were not above five gallons of reak wine in the whole pipe, which held above a hundred, and even that had been brewed and adulterated by the merchant at Oporto. The bread I eat in London, is a deleterious paste, mixed up with chalk, alum and bone-afhes; infipid to the tafte, and destructive to the constitu-The good people are not ignorant of this tion. adulteration; but they prefer it to wholesome bread, because it is whiter than the meal of corn: thus they facrifice their tafte and their health, and the lives of their tender infants, to a most absurd gratification of a mis-judging eye; and the miller, or the baker, is obliged to poiſon fon them and their families, in order to live by his profession. The fame monstrous depravity appears in their veal, which is bleached by repeated bleedings, and other villainous arts, till there is not a drop of juice less in the body, and the poor animal is paralytic before it dies; so void of all taste, nourishment, and favour, that a man might dine as comfortably on a white fricassive of kid-skin gloves, or chip hats from Leghorn.

As they have discharged the natural colour from their bread, their butchers meat, and poultrv. their cutlets, ragouts, fricaffees, and fauces of all kinds; fo they infift upon having the complexion of their pot-herbs mended, even at the hazard of their lives. Perhaps, you will hardly believe they can be fo mad as to boil their greens with brafs halfpence, in order to improve their colour; and yet nothing is more true-Indeed. without this improvement in the colour, they have no perfonal merit. They are produced in an artificial foil, and tafte of nothing but the dunghils. from whence they fpring. My cabbage. cauliflower, and 'fparagus in the country, are as much superior in flavour to those that are fold in Covent Garden, as my heath-mutton is to that of St. James's market; which, in fact, is neither lamb nor mutton, but fomething betwixt the two, gorged in the rank fens of Lincoln and Effex, pale, coarfe, and frowzy-As for the pork, it is an abominable carnivorous animal, fed with with horfe flesh and diffillers grains; and the poultry is all rotten, in confequence of a fever, occasioned by the infamous practice of fewing up the gut, that they may be the sooner fattened in coops, in confequence of this cruel retention.

Of the fifh, I need fay nothing in this hot weather, but that it comes fixty, fourscore, and a hundred miles by land carriage; a circumstance fufficient, without any comment, to turn a Dutchman's ftomach, even if his nole was not faluted in every alley with the fweet flavour of fre/h mackarel, felling by retail-This is not the feafon for oysters; nevertheless it may not be amifs to mention, that the right Colchefter are kept in flime-pits, occafionally overflowed by the fea; and that the green colour, fo much admired by the voluptuaries of this metropolis, is occasioned by the vitriolic fcum, which rifes. on the furface of the ftagnant and ftinking water ----Our rabbits are bred and fed in the poulterer's cellar, where they have neither air nor exercife, confequently they must be firm in flesh, and delicious in flavour; and there is no game to be had for love or money.

It must be owned, that Covent Garden affords fome good fruit; which, however, is always engrossed by a few individuals of over-grown fortune, at an exorbitant price; fo that little elfe than the refuse of the market falls to the fhare of the community; and that is distributed by fuch filthy hands, as I cannot look at without lothing.

Τt

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 223

It was but vefterday that I faw a dirty barrowbunter in the freet, cleaning her dufty fruit with her own fpittle; and, who knows but fome fine lady of St. James's parish might admit into her delicate mouth those very cherries, which had been rolled and moiftened between the filthy, and, perhaps, ulcerated chops of a St. Giles's huckfter-I need not dwell upon the palid, contaminated mash, which they call strawberries: foiled and toffed by greafy paws through twenty baskets crusted with dirt; and then presented with the worft milk, thickened with the worft flour, into a bad likeness of cream: but the milk itfelf fhould not pafs unanalyfed, the produce of faded cabbage leaves and four draff, lowered with hot water, frothed with bruifed fnails, carried through the ftreets in open pails, exposed to foul rinfings, difcharged from doors and windows, spittle, fnot, and tobacco-quids from foot-passengers, over-flowings from mud-carts, fpatterings from coach-wheels, dirt and trafh chucked into it by roguifh boys for the joke's fake, the fpewings of infants, who have flabbered in the tinmeasure, which is thrown back in that condition among the milk, for the benefit of the next cuftomer; and, finally, the vermin that drops from the rags of the nafty drab that yends this precious mixture, under the respectable denomination of milk-maid.

I fhall conclude this catalogue of London dainties, with that table-beer, guildlefs of hops and malt malt, vapid and nauseous; much fitter to facilitate the operation of a vomit, than to quench thirft and promote digeftion; the tallowy, rancid mafs called butter, manufactured with candleprease and kitchen stuff; and their fresh eggs. imported from France and Scotland.----Now. all thefe enormities might be remedied with a very little attention to the article of police, or civil regulation; but the wife patriots of London have taken it into their heads, that all regulation is inconfiftent with liberty; and that every man ought to live in his own way, without refiraint -Nav, as there is not fenfe enough left among them, to be difcomposed by the nuisances I have mentioned, they may, for aught I care. wallow in the mire of their own pollution.

A companionable man will, undoubtedly, put up with many inconveniencies for the fake of enjoying agreeable fociety. A facetious friend of mine ufed to fay, the wine could not be bad, where the company was agreeable; a maxim which, however, ought to be taken cum grans falis: but what is the fociety of London, that I fhould be tempted, for its fake, to mortify my fenfes, and compound with fuch uncleannefs as my foul abhors? All the people I fee, are too much engroffed by fchemes of intereft or ambition, to have any room left for fentiment or friendfhip—Even in fome of my old acquaintance, those fchemes and purfuits have obliterated all traces of our former connexion—

Con-

Conversation is reduced to party-disputes, and illiberal altercation _____ Social commerce, to formal vifits and card-playing-If you pick up a diverting original by accident, it may be dangerous to amufe yourfelf with his oddities-----He is generally a tartar at bottom: a fharper, a fpy, or a lunatic. Every perfon you deal with endeavours to over reach you in the way of bufinefs; you are preyed upon by idle mendicants, who beg in the phrase of borrowing, and live upon the fpoils of the stranger-Your tra-desmen are without conscience, your friends without affection, and your dependants without fidelity.-----

My letter would swell into a treatife, were I to particularize every caufe of offence that fills up the measure of my aversion to this, and every other crowded city--Thank Heaven! I am not fo far fucked into the vortex, but that I can difengage myfelf without any great effort of philofophy-From this wild uproar of knavery, folly, and impertinence, I shall fly with double relish to the ferenity of retirement, the cordial effusions of unreferved friendship, the hospitality and protection of the rural gods; in a word, the jucunda oblivia vite, which Horace himfelf had not taste enough to enjoy.-----

I have agreed for a good travelling coach and four, at a guinea a day, for three months certain; and next week we intend to begin our journey to the North, hoping ftill to be with you by the latter

VOL. I.

.

' 226 THE EXPEDITION OF

latter end of October—I fhall continue to write from every ftage where we make any confiderable; helt, as often as any thing occurs, which I think can afford you the leaft amufement. In the mean time, I must beg you will superintend the æconomy of Barnes, with respect to my hay and corn harvests; assured that my ground produces nothing but what you may free. Iy call your own—On any other terms I should be assured to subscribe myself

Your unvariable friend, No. 107 London, June 8. MATT. BRAMBLE.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus, College, Oxon.

' DEAR PHILLIPS,

IN my laft, I mentioned my having fpent an evening with a fociety of authors, who feemed to be jealous and afraid of one another. My uncle was not at all furprifed to hear me fay I was difappointed in their conversation. "A. man "may be very entertaining and inftructive upon "paper, (faid he) and exceedingly dull in com-"mon difcourfe. I have observed, that those "who fhine most in private company, are but "fe"fecondary ftars in the conftellation of genius-"A finall flock of ideas is more eafily managed, "and fooner difplayed, than a great quantity "crowded together. There is very feldom any "thing extraordinary in the appearance and ad-"drefs of a good writer, whereas a dull author "generally diffinguifhes himfelf by fome oddity "or extravagance. For this reafon, I fancy, "that an affembly of Grubs muft be very di-"verting."

My curiofity being excited by this hint, I confulted my friend Dick Ivy, who undertook to gratify it the very next day, which was Sunday laft.-----He carried me to dine with S-----. whom you and I have long known by his writings.-----He lives in the fkirts of the town, and every Sunday his house is open to all unfortunate brothers of the quill, whom he treats with beef, pudding, and potatoes, port, punch, and Calvert's entire butt-beer .----- He has fixed upon the first day of the week for the exercise of his hospitality, because some of his guests could not enjoy it on any other, for reasons that I need I was civilly received in a plain. not explain. vet decent habitation, which opened backwards into a very pleafant garden, kept in excellent . order; and, indeed, I faw none of the outward figns of authorship, either in the house or the landlord, who is one of those few writers of the. age that frand upon their own foundation, without patronage, and above dependence. If there was nothing characteristic in the entertainer, the company made ample amends for his want of fingularity.

P 2

was

At two in the afternoon, I found myself one of ten mels-mates feated at table; and, I question. if the whole kingdom could produce fuch another affemblage of originals. Among their peculiarities, I do not mention those of dress, which may be purely accidental. What firuck me were oddities originally produced by affectation. and afterwards confirmed by habit. One of them wore spectacles at dinner, and another, his hat flapped; though (as Ivy told me) the first was noted for having a feaman's eye, when a bailiff was in the wind; and the other was never known to labour under any weaknefs or defect of vision, except about five years ago, when he was complimented with a couple of black eyes . by a player, with whom he had quarrelled in his drink. A third wore a laced flocking, and made use of crutches, because, once in his life, he had been laid up with a broken leg, though no man could leap over a flick with more agility. A fourth had contracted fuch an antipathy to the country, that he infifted upon fitting with his back towards the window that looked into the garden, and when a difh of cauliflower was fet upon the table, he fnuffed up volatile falts to keep him from fainting; yet this delicate perfon was the fon of a cottager, born under a hedge. and had many years run wild among affes on a com-

-

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 220

common. A fifth affected diffraction-----When fpoke to, he always answered from the purpose ---- fometimes he fuddenly ftarted up, and rapped out a dreadful oath-fometimes he burft fighed-----and then he hiffed like fifty ferpents.

At first, I really thought he was mad, and, as he fat near me, began to be under fome apprehensions for my own fafety, when our landlord, perceiving me alarmed, affured me aloud that I had nothing to fear. "The gentleman "(faid he) is trying to act a part, for which he "is by no means qualified-----if he had all the "inclination in the world, it is not in his power "to be mad. His fpirits are too flat to be kind-"led into frenzy." "Tis no bad p-p-puff, how-"ow-ever (observed a person in a tarnished laced "coat): aff-ffected m-madnefs w-will p-pafs for "w-wit w-with nine-ninet-teen out of t-twen-"ty."____" And affected futtering for hu-"mour: replied our landlord; though, God "knows, there is no affinity betwixt them." It feems, this wag, after having made fome abortive attempts in plain speaking, had recourse to this defect, by means of which he frequently extorted the laugh of the company, without the leaft expence of genius; and that imperfection, which he had at first counterfeited, was now become fo habitual, that he could not lay it afide.

A certain winking genius, who wore yellow gloves at dinner, had, on his first introduction, taken taken fuch offence at S-----, becaufe he looked and talked, and ate and drank like any other man, that he fooke contemptuoufly of his understanding ever after, and never would repeat his vifit. until he had exhibited the following proof of his Wat Wyvil, the poet, having made caprice. fome unfuccefsful advances towards an intimacy with S----, at last gave him to understand, by a third perfon, that he had written a poem in his praife, and a fatire against his perfon; that if he would admit him to his house, the first should be immediately fent to prefs; but that if he perfifted in declining his friendfhip, he would publifh the fatire without delay. S---- replied, that he looked upon Wyvil's panegyric, as in effect, a fuecies of infamy, and would refent it accordingly with a good cudgel; but if he published the latire, he might deferve his compassion, and . had nothing to fear from his revenge. Wvvil having confidered the alternative. refolved to mortify S---- by printing the panegyric, for which he received a found drubbing. Then he fwore the peace against the aggressor, who, in order to avoid a profecution at law, admitted him to his good graces. It was the fingularity in S----'s conduct on this occasion, that reconciled him to the yellow-gloved philosopher, who owned he had fome genius, and from that period cultivated his acquaintance.

P 3

1.5

Curious to know upon what subjects the feveral talents of my fellow-guests were employed,

1

ployed, I applied to my communicative friend Dick lvy, who gave me to understand, that most of them were, or had been, understrappers, or journeymen, to more creditable authors, for whom they translated, collated, and compiled, in the bufinefs of book-making; and that all of them had, at different times. laboured in the fervice of our landlord, though they had now fet up for themselves in various departments of lite-Not only their talents, but also their rature. nations and dialects were fo various, that our conversation refembled the confusion of tongues at Babel.

We had the Irifh brogue, the Scotch accent, and foreign idiom, twanged off by the most discordant vociferation; for, as they all spoke together, no man had any chance to be heard, unlefs he could bawl louder than his fellows. It must be owned, however, there was nothing pedantic in their discourse; they carefully avoided all learned difquifitions, and endeavoured to be facetious; nor did their endeavours always mifcarry ---- fome droll repartee paffed, and much laughter was excited; and if any individual loft his temper to far as to transgrets the bounds of decorum, he was effectually checked by the malter of the feaft, who exerted a fort of paternal authority over this irritable tribe.

The most learned philosopher of the whole collection, who had been expelled the univerfity for atheifm, has made great progrefs in a refuta-

P 4

refutation of lord Bolingbroke's metaphyfical works, which is faid to be equally ingenious and orthodox; but, in the mean time, he has been prefented to the grand jury as a public nuifance, for having blafphemed in an alehoufe on the Lord's day. The Scotchman gives lectures on the pronunciation of the Englifh language, which he is now publifhing by fubfcription.

The Irifhman is a political writer, and goes by the name of my Lord Potatoe. He wrote a pamphlet in vindication of a minister, hoping his zeal would be rewarded with fome place or penfion: but finding himfelf neglected in that quarter, he whilpered about that the pamphlet was written by the minister himself, and he published an answer to his own production. In this he addreffed the author, under title of your lord-(hip, with fuch folemnity, that the public fwallowed the deceit, and bought up the whole impreffion. The wife politicians of the metropolis declared they were both mafterly performances, and chuckled over the flimfy reveries of an ignorant garretteer, as the profound speculations of a veteran statesman, acquainted with all the fecrets of the cabinet. The imposiure was detected in the fequel, and our Hibernian pamphleteer retains no part of his assumed importance, but the bare title of my lord, and the upper part of the table at the potatoe-ordinary in Shoe-lane.

Opposite to me fat a Piedmontese, who had obliged the public with a humorous fatire, intitul-

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

tituled, The Balance of the English Poets, a performance which evinced the great modelty and tafte of the author, and, in particular, his intimacy with the elegancies of the English language. The fage, who laboured under the $\alpha\lambda_{ec}\varphi_{c}\beta_{icc}$, or horror of green fields, had just finished a treatise on practical agriculture, though, in fact, he had never seen corn growing in his life, and was so ignorant of grain, that our entertainer, in the face of the whole company, made him own, that a plate of hominy was the best ricepudding he had ever eat.

The flutterer had almost finished his travels through Europe and part of Afia, without ever budging beyond the liberties of the King's Bench, except in term-time, with a tipftaff for his companion; and as for little Tim Cropdale, the most facetious member of the whole fociety, he had happily wound up the cataftrophe of a virgin tragedy, from the exhibition of which he promifed himfelf a large fund of profit and reputation. Tim had made fhift to live many years by writing novels, at the rate of five pounds a volume; but that branch of bufinefs is now engroffed by female authors, who publish merely for the propagation of virtue, with fo much eafe, and spirit, and delicacy, and knowledge of the human heart, and all in the ferene tranquillity of high life, that the reader is not only inchanted by their genius, but reformed by their morality.

233

After dinner, we adjourned into the garden, where, I observed, Mr. S----- gave a short feparate audience to every individual in a fmall remote filbert walk, from whence most of them dropped off one after another, without further ceremony; but they were replaced by fresh recruits of the fame clan, who came to make an afternoon's vifit; and, among others, a fprace bookfeller, called Birkin, who rode his own gelding, and made his appearance in a pair of new jemmy boots, with musify fpurs of plate. It was not without reafon that this midwife of the mufes used to exercise a horseback. for he was too fat to walk a-foot, and he underwent fome farcaims from Tim Cropdale, on his unweildv fize and inaptitude for motion. Birkin, who took umbrage at this poor author's perulance, in prefuming to joke upon a man fo much richer than himfelf, told him, he was not fo unweildv but that he could move the marshalfea court for a writ, and even overtake him with it, if he did not very fpeedily come and fettle accounts with him, respecting the expence of publishing his last Ode to the king of Prussia, of which he had fold but three, and one of them was to Whitefield the Methodift. Tim affected to receive this intimation with good humour, faying, he expected in a post or two, from Potsdam, a poem of thanks from his Pruffian majefty, who knew very well how to pay poets in their own coin; but, in the mean time, he proposed, that Mr. Birkin

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

Birkin and he fhould run three times round the garden for a bowl of punch, to be drank at Afhley's in the evening, and he would run boots againft flockings. The bookfeller, who valued himfelf upon his mettle, was perfuaded to accept the challenge, and he forthwith refigned his boots to Cropdale, who, when he had put them on, was no bad reprefentation of Captain Pittol in the play.

Every thing being adjusted, they started together with great impetuofity, and in the fecond round, Birkin had clearly the advantage, larding the lean earth as he puff'd along. Cropdale had no mind to contest the victory further, but, in a twinkling, difappeared through the backdoor of the garden, which opened into a private lane, that had communication with the high road -----The fpectators immediately began to hallo. "Stole away !" and Birkin fet off in purfuit of him with great eagernefs; but he had not advanced twenty yards in the lane, when a thorn running into his foot, fent him hopping back into the garden, roaring with pain, and fwearing with vexation. When he was delivered from this annovance by the Scotchman, who had been bred to furgery, he looked about him wildly, exclaiming, "Sure, the fellow won't be fuch "a rogue as to run clear away with my boots!" Our landlord, having reconnoitred the floes he had left, which, indeed, hardly deferved that name, "Pray, (faid he) Mr. Birkin, wa'n't your "boots

235

"boots made of calf.fkin?" "Calf.fkin or cow-"fkin, (replied the other) I'll find a flip of "fheep.fkin that will do his bufinefs.——I left "twenty pounds by his farce, which you per-"fuaded me to buy.——I am out of pocket five "pounds by his damn'd Ode; and now this pair "of boots, bran new, coft me thirty fhillings, "as per receipt.——But this affair of the boots "is felony——tranfportation.——I'll have the "dog indicted at the old Bailey——I will, Mr. "S——. I will be revenged, even though I "fhould lofe my debt in confequence of his con-"viction."

Mir. S----- faid nothing at prefent, but accommodated him with a pair of fhoes: then ordered his fervant to rub him down, and comfort him with a glass of rum-punch, which feemed, in a great measure, to cool the rage of his "After all, (faid our landlord) indignation. "this is no more than a humbug in the way of "wit, though it deferves a more respectable "epithet, when confidered as an effort of inven-Tim being, I suppose, out of credit "tion. " with the cordwainer, fell upon this ingenious "expedient to fupply the want of fhoes, know-"ing that Mr. Birkin, who loves humour, would "himfelf relifh the joke upon a little recollection. "Cropdale literally lives by his wit, which he "has exercifed upon all his friends in their turns. "He once borrowed my poney for five or fix "days to go to Salifbury, and fold him in "Smith"Smithfield at his return. This was a joke of "fuch a ferious nature, that in the first transports "of my paffion, I had fome thoughts of profe-" cuting him for horse-stealing; and even when my "resentment had in some measure subsided, as he "industrioufly avoided me, I vowed, I would take "fatisfaction on his ribs with the first opportunity. "One day, feeing him at fome diffance in the "freet. coming towards me, I began to prepare "my cane for action, and walked in the fliadow of "a porter, that he might not perceive me foon "enough to make his escape; but, in the very "instant I had lifted up the instrument of correc-"tion. I found Tim Cropdale metamorphofed "into a miferable blind wretch, feeling his way "with a long flick from poft to poft, and rolling "about two bald unlighted orbs inftead of eyes. "I was exceedingly flocked at having fo nar-"rowly escaped the concern and difgrace that "would have attended fuch a mifapplication of "vengeance; but, next day, Tim prevailed upon "a friend of mine to come and folicit my forgi-"venefs, and offer his note, payable in fix weeks, "for the price of the poney.-----This gentleman "gave me to understand, that the blind man was "no other than Cropdale, who having feen me "advancing, and gueffing my intent, had imme-"diately converted himfelf into the object afore-"faid.----I was fo diverted at the ingenuity of "the invalion, that I agreed to pardon his offen-"ce, refusing his note, however, that I might "keep

, · '

"keep a profecution for felony hanging over his "head, as a fecurity for his future good be-"haviour—But Timothy would by no means "truft himfelf in my hands till the note was ac-"cepted—then he made his appearance at my "door as a blind beggar, and imposed in fuch a "manner upon my man, who had been his old "acquaintance and pot-companion, that the fel-"low threw the door in his face, and even threat-"ened to give him the bassinado. Hearing a "noise in the hall, I went thither, and immedia-"tely recollecting the figure I had passed in the "freet accossed him by his own name, to the "unspeakable aftonishment of the footman."

Birkin declared he loved a joke as well as another; but afked if any of the company could tell where Mr. Cropdale lodged, that he might fend him a proposal about restitution, before the boots fhould be made away with. "I would willingly "give him a pair of new fhoes, (faid he) and "half a guinea into the bargain, for the boots. "which fitted me like a glove, and I fha'n't be "able to get the fellows of them till the good "weather for riding is over." The fluttering wit declared, that the only fecret which Cropdale ever kept was the place of his lodgings; but, he believed, that, during the heats of fummer, he commonly took his repose upon a bulk, or indulged himfelf, in frefco, with one of the kennel-nymphs, under the portico of St. Martin's church. "Pox on him! (cried the book.

bookfeller) "he might as well have taken my "whip and fpurs—In that cafe, he might have "been tempted to fteal another horfe, and then "he would have rid to the devil of courfe."

After coffee, I took my leave of Mr. S-----, with proper acknowledgements of his civility, and was extremely well pleased with the entertainment of the day, though not yet fatisfied with respect to the nature of this connection betwixt a man of character in the literary world, and a parcel of authorlings, who, in all probability, would never be able to acquire any degree of reputation by their labours. On this head I interrogated my conductor, Dick Ivy, who answered me to this effect: "One would imagi-"ne S----- had fome view to his own intereft, "in giving countenance and affiftance to those "people, whom he knows to be bad men, as "bad writers; but, if he has any fuch view, he "will find himself disappointed: for if he is fo "vain as to imagine he can make them fubfer-"vient to his schemes of profit or ambition, they "are cunning enough to make him their proper-"ty in the mean time. There is not one of the "company you have feen to-day (myfelf ex-"cepted) who does not owe him particular ob-"ligations.____One of them he bailed out of a "fpunging house, and afterwards paid the debt "-----another he translated into his family, and "clothed, when he was turned out half-naked "from goal in confequence of an act for the relief "of

"of infolvent debtors-a third, who was re-"duced to a woolen night-cap, and lived upon "fheep's trotters, up three pair of flairs back-"ward in Butcher row, he took into prefent pay "and free quarters, and enabled him to appear "as a gentleman, without having the fear of "fheriff's officers before his eyes. Those who "are in diffrefs he fupplies with money when he "has it, and with his credit when he is out of " cafh. When they want bufinefs, he either "finds employment for them in his own fervice. "or recommends' them to bookfellers to execute "fome project he has formed for their subfiltence. "They are always welcome to his table, (which, "though plain, is plentiful) and to his good of-"fices as far as they will go; and when they fee "occasion, they make use of his name with the "most petulant familiarity; nay, they do not "even fcruple to arrogate to themfelves the merit "of fome of his performances, and have been "known to fell their own lucubrations as the "produce of his brain. The Scotfman you faw "at dinner once perfonated him at an ale-house in "Weft-Smithfield, and, in the character of S---. "had his head broke by a cow-keeper, for hav-"ing fpoke difrefpectfully of the Christian reli-"gion; but he took the law of him in his own "perfon, and the affailant was fain to give him "ten pounds to withdraw his action."

I obferved, that all this appearance of liberality on the fide of Mr. S------ was eafily accounted counted for, on the fuppofition that they flattered him in private, and engaged his adverfaries in public; and yet I was aftonished, when I recollected that I often had feen this writer virulently abufed in papers, poems, and pamphlets, and not a pen was drawn in his defence.-----"But you will be more aftonifhed (faid he) when "I affure you, those very guest's whom you "faw at his table to day, were the authors "of great part of that abufe; and he himfelf is "well aware of their particular favours, for "they are all eager to detect and betray one "another."- "But this is doing the devil's work "for nothing (cried I). What should induce "them to revile their benefactor without provo-" cation ?" "Envy (answered Dick) is the ge-"neral incitement; but they are galled by an ad-"ditional fcourge of provocation. S---- di-"rects a literary journal, in which their produc-"tions are neceffarily brought to trial; and "though many of them have been treated with "fuch lenity and favour as they little deferved, "yet the flighteft cenfure, fuch as, perhaps, "could not be avoided with any pretensions to "candour and impartiality, has rankled in the "hearts of those authors to such a degree, that "they have taken immediate vengeance on the "critic in anonymous libels, letters, and am-" poons. Indeed, all the writers of the age, "good, bad, and indifferent, from the moment "he affumed this office, became his enemies, "either VOL. I. Q

1

"either profeffed or in petto, except those of his "friends who knew they had nothing to fear "from his ftrictures; and he must be a wifer man "than me, who can tell what advantage or fatis-"faction he derives from having brought fuch a "nest of hornets about his ears."

I owned that was a point which might deferve confideration; but still I expressed a desire to know his real motives for continuing his friendfhip to a fet of rafcals equally ungrateful and infignificant.-----He faid, he did not pretend to affign any reafonable motive; that, if the truth must be told, the man was, in point of conduct. a most incorrigible fool; that, though he pretended to have a knack at hitting off characters. he blundered strangely in the distribution of his favours, which were generally beftowed on the most undeferving of those who had recourse to his affistance; that, indeed, this preference was not fo much owing to want of difcernment as to want of refolution, for he had not fortitude enough to refift the importunity even of the most worthlefs; and, as he did not know the value of money, there was very little merit in parting with it fo eafily; that his pride was gratified in feeing himfelf courted by fuch a number of literary dependants; that, probably, he delighted in hearing them expose and traduce one another; and, finally, from their information, he became acquainted with all the transactions of Grubftreet.

freet, which he had fome thoughts of compiling, for the entertainment of the public.

I have dwelt fo long upon authors, that you will perhaps fuspect I intend to enroll myself among the fraternity; but, if I were actually qualified for the profession, it is at best but a defperate refource against starving, as it affords no provision for old age and infirmity. Salmon, at the age of fourfcore, is now in a garret. compiling matter, at a guinea a fheet, for a modern hiftorian, who, in point of age. might be his grand-child; and Pfalmonazar, after having drudged half a century in the literary-mill, in all the fimplicity and abstinence of an Afiatic, fubfifts upon the charity of a few bookfellers, just fufficient to keep him from the parish-I think Guy, who was himfelf a bookfeller, ought to 0 2 have

.

1

ŧ

have appropriated one wing or ward of his hofpital to the ufe of decayed authors; though, indeed, there is neither hofpital, college, nor work-houfe, within the bills of mortality, large enough to contain the poor of this fociety, compofed, as it is, from the refuse of every other profession.

I know not whether you will find any amufement in this account of an odd race of mortals, whose constitution had, I own, greatly interested the curiosity of

Yours,

London June 10.

J. MELFORD.

To Mifs LÆTITIA WILLIS, at Gloucefter.

My DEAR LETTY,

THERE is fomething on my fpirits, which I fhould not venture to communicate by the poft, but having the opportunity of Mrs Brentwood's return, I feize it eagerly, to difburden my poor heart, which is opprefied with fear and vexation. --O Letty! what a miferable fituation it is, to be without a friend to whom one can apply for counfel and confolation in diftrefs! I hinted in my laft, that one Mr Barton had been very parti-

This infinuation threw me into fuch a flutter, that flie could not but observe my diforder; and, prefuming upon the difcovery, infilted upon my making her the confidante of my paffions. But, although I had not fuch command of myfelf as to conceal the emotion of my heart, I am not fuch a child as to disclose its fecrets to a perfon who would certainly use them to its prejudice. I told her, it was no wonder if I was out of countenance. at her introducing a fubject of converfation fo unfuitable to my years and inexperience: that I believed Mr Barton was a very worthy gentleman, and I was much obliged to him for his good opinion; but the affections were involuntary, and mine, in particular, had as yet made no concellions in his favour. She shook her head with an air of diffrust that made me tremble; and observed, that if my affections were free, they would fubmit to the decifion of prudence, especially when enforced by the authority of those who had a right to direct my conduct. This remark implied a defign to intereft my uncle or my aunt, perhaps my brother. in behalf of Mr Barton's paffion; and I am fadly afraid that my aunt is already gained over. Yesterday in the forenoon, he had been walking with us in the Park, and ftopping in our return at a toy fhop, he prefented her with a very fine fouff-box, and me with a gold etuis, which I refolutely refused, till the commanded me to accept it on pain of her difpleasure : nevertheles. being ftill unfatisfied with refpect to the propriety of receiving this toy, I fignified my doubts to my brother, who faid he would confult my uncle on the fubject, and feemed to think Mr. Barton had been rather premature in his prefents.

Q 3

What will be the refult of this confultation, Heaven knows; but I am afraid it will produce an explanation with Mr Barton,' who will, no doubt, avow his paffion, and follicit their confent to a connection which my foul abhors; for, my deareft Letty, it is not in my power to love Mr Barton, even if my heart was untouched by any other tendernefs. Not that there is any thing difagreeable about his perfon, but there is a total want of that namelefs charm which captivates and controuls the inchanted fpirit—at leaft, leaft, he appears to me to have this defect; but if he had all the engaging qualifications which a man can poffers, they would be excited in vain against that confiancy, which, I flatter myfelf, is the characteristic of my nature. No, my dear Willis, I may be involved in fresh troubles, and I believe I shall, from the importunities of this gentleman and the violence of my relations; but my heart is incapable of change.

You know, I put no faith in dreams; and yet I have been much diffurbed by one that vifited me laft night.-----I thought I was in a church, where a certain perfon, whom you know, was on the point of being married to my aunt; that the clergyman was Mr Barton, and that poor forlorn I flood weeping in a corner, half naked, and without fhoes or flockings .-- Now, I know there is nothing fo childifn as to be moved by those vain illusions; but, nevertheless, in spite of all my reafon, this hath made a ftrong impreffion upon my mind, which begins to be very gloomy. Indeed, I have another more fubstan. tial caufe of affliction-I have fome religious fcruples, my dear friend, which lie heavy on my confcience .- I was perfuated to go to the Tabernacle, where I heard a difcourse that affected me deeply .--- I have prayed fervently to be enlightened, but as yet I am not fenfible of thefe inward motions, those operations of grace, which are the figns of a regenerated fpirit; and therefore I begin to be in terrible apprehenfions about Q 4 about the ftate of my poor foul. Some of our family have had very uncommon acceffions, particularly my aunt and Mrs Jenkins, who fometimes fpeak as if they were really infpired; fo that I am not like to want for either exhortation or example, to purify my thoughts, and recall them from the vanities of this world, which, indeed, I would willingly refign, if it was in my power; but to make this facrifice, I muft be enabled by fuch affiftance from above as hath not yet been indulged to

1

۱

Your unfortunate friend,

June 10.

LYDIA MELFORD.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxón.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

THE moment I received your letter, I began to execute your commission—With the affictance of mine hoft a the Bull and Gate, I difcovered the place to which your fugitive valet had retreated, and taxed him with his difhonesty— —The fellow was in manifest confusion at fight of me, but he denied the charge with great confidence, till I told him, that if he would give ve up the watch which was a family piece, he might keep the money and the clothes, and go to the devil his own way, at his leifure; but if he rejected this propofal, I would deliver him forthwith to the constable, whom I had provided for that purpofe, and he would carry him before the justice without further delay. After fome hefitation, he defired to fpeak with me in the next room, where he produced the watch with all its appendages, and I have delivered it to our landlord, to be fent you by the first fafe conveyance-So much for bufinefs.

I fhall grow vain, upon your faying you find entertainment in my letters; barren, as they certainly are, of incident and importance, becaufe your amusement must arise, not from the matter, but from the manner, which you know is all my own-Animated, therefore, by the approbation of a perfon, whose nice taste and confummate judgment 1 can no longer doubt, I will chearfully proceed with our memoirs-As it is determined we shall fet out next week for Yorkshire. I went to-day in the forenoon with my uncle to fee a carriage, belonging to a coachmaker in our neighbourhood-Turning down a narrow lane, behind Long-acre, we perceived a crowd of people flanding at a door; which, it feems, opened into a kind of methodift meeting, and were informed, that a footman was then holding forth to the congregation within. Curious to fee this phenomenon, we fqueezed

Q 5

ed into the place with much difficulty; and who fhould this preacher be, but the identical Humphry Clinker. He had finished his fermon, and given out a pfalm, the first stave of which ho fung with peculiar graces——But if we were astonished to see Clinker in the pulpit, we were altogether confound at finding all the semales of our family among the audience——There was lady Griskin, Mrs Tabitha Bramble, Mrs Winisfred Jenkins, my fister Liddy, and Mr Barton, and all of them joined in the pfalmody, with strong marks of devotion.

I could hardly keep my gravity on this ludicrous occasion; but old Square-toes was differently affected-The first thing that ftruck him, was the prefumption of his lacquey, whom he commanded to come down, with fuch an air of authority as Humphry did not think proper to . difregard. He descended immediately, and all the people were in commotion. Barton looked exceedingly theepifh, lady Grifkin flirted her fan, Mrs Tabby groaned in fpirit, Liddy changed countenance, and Mrs Jenkins fobbed as if her heart was breaking-My uncle, with a fneer, afked pardon of the ladies for having interrupted their devotion, faying, he had particular bufinefs with the preacher, whom he ordered to call a hackney-coach. This being immediately brought up to the end of the lane, he handed Liddy into it, and my aunt and I following him. we drove home, without taking any further notice of the reft rest of the company, who still remained in silent associations.

Mr Bramble, perceiving Liddy in great trepidation, aflumed a milder afpect, bidding her be under no concern, for he was not at all displeas-"objection (faid he) to your being religiously "inclined: but I don't think my fervant is a pro-"per ghoftly director, for a devotee of your fex "and character-If, in fact, (as I rather be-"lieve) your aunt is not the fole conductrefs of "this machine-----" Mrs Tabitha made no anfwer, but threw up the whites of her eyes. as if in the act of ejaculation-Poor Liddy faid fhe had no right to the title of a devotee; that fhe thought there was no harm in hearing a pious discourse, even if it came from a footman. especially as her aunt was present; but that if fhe had erred from ignorance, fhe hoped he would excuse it, as the could not bear the thoughts of living under his difpleafure. The old gentleman, preffing her hand with a tender fmile, faid fhe was a good girl, and that he did not believe her capable of doing any thing that could give him the leaft umbrage or difguft.

When we arrived at our lodgings, he commanded Mr Clinker to attend him up ftairs, and fpoke to him in thefe words——"Since you are "called upon by the fpirit to preach and to teach, "it is high time to lay alide the livery of an "earthly mafter; and, for my part, I am un-"worthy

"worthy to have an apostle in my fervice----"I hope (faid Humphry) I have not failed in my "duty to your honour-I fhould be a vile "wretch if I did, confidering the mifery from "which your charity and compassion relieved "me-but having an inward admonition of "the fpirit-" "An admonition of the de-"vil----(cried the 'fquire, in a passion) What "admonition, you blockhead ?-----What right "has fuch a fellow as you to fet up for a refor-"mer?" "Begging your honour's pardon, (re-"plied Clinker,) may not the new light of "God's grace fhine upon the poor and the igno-"rant in their humility, as well as upon the "wealthy, and the philosopher in all his pride "of human learning?" "What you imagine to "be the new light of grace, (faid his mafter,) I "take to be a deceitful vapour, glimmering " "through a crack in your upper ftory-In a "word. Mr Clinker, I will have no light in my "family, but what pays the king's taxes, unlefs "it be the light of reafon, which you don't pre-"tend to follow."

"Ah, Sir! (cried Humphry,) the light of "reafon is no more, in comparifon to the light "I mean, than a farthing candle to the fun at "noon______" "Very true, (faid my uncle,) "the one will ferve to fhew you your way, and "the other to dazzle and confound your weak "brain_____Hark.ye, Clinker, you are either an "hypocritical knave, or a wrong-headed enthu-"fiaft;

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 253

"fiast; and, in either cafe, unfit for my fervi-"ce-----If you are a quack in fanctity and "devotion, you will find it an easy matter to "impose upon filly women, and others of craz-"ed understanding, who will contribute lavishly "for your fupport------if you are really fe-"duced by the reveries of a diffurbed imagina-"tion, the fooner you lose your fenses entirely, "the better for yourfelf and the community. In "that case, some charitable person might provide "you with a dark room and clean ftraw in Bed-"lam, where it would not be in your power to "infect others with your fanaticism; whereas, if "you have just reflection enough left to maintain "the character of a chofen vefiel in the meetings "of the godly, you and your hearers will be "mifled by a Will-i'the-wifp, from one error in-"to another, till you are plunged into religious "frenzy, and then, perhaps, you will hang "yourfelf in defpair "" "Which the Lord, "of his infinite mercy, forbid! (exclaimed the "affrighted Clinker) It is very poffible I may be "under the temptation of the devil, who wants "to wreck me on the rocks of fpiritual pride-"Your honour fays, I am either a knave or a "madman: now, as I'll affure your honour I am "no knave, it follows that I must be mad; the-"refore, I befeech your honour, upon my knees, "to take my cafe into confideration, that means "may be used for my recovery-----"

The

The 'fquire could not help fmiling at the poor fellow's fimplicity, and promifed to take care of him, provided he would mind the bufinefs of his place, without running after the new-light of Methodifm: but Mrs Tabitha took offence at his humility, which fhe interpreted into poornefs of fpirit and worldly mindednefs—She upbraided him with the want of courage to fuffer for confcience-fake: fhe obferved, that if he fhould lofe his place for bearing teftimony to the truth, Providence would not fail to find him another, perhaps more advantageous; and, declaring that it could not be very agreeable to live in a family where an inquifition was eftablifhed, retired to another room in great agitation.

My uncle followed her with a fignificant look: then, turning to the preacher, "You hear what "my fifter fays-----If you cannot live with me "upon fuch terms as I have prefcribed, the vi-"nevard of Methodifm lies before you, and the "feems very well difpofed to reward your la-"bour."----"I would not willingly give offence "to any foul upon earth, (answered Humphry): "her ladyfhip has been very good to me, ever "fince we came to London; and furely the has "a heart turned for religious exercises, and both "fhe and lady Grifkin fing pfalms and hymns like "two cherubims: but, at the fame time, I am "bound to love and obey your honour.-----It " becometh not fuch a poor ignorant fellow as "me to hold difpute with gentlemen of rank and "learn"learning.——As for the matter of knowledge, "I am no more than a beaft in comparison of "your honour; therefore I fubmit; and, with "God's grace, I will follow you to the world's "end, if you don't think me too far gone to be "out of confinement."

His mafter promifed to keep him for fome time longer on trial; then defired to know in what manner lady Grifkin and Mr Barton came to join their religious fociety. He told him, that her ladyfhip was the perfon who first carried my aunt and fifter to the Tabernacle, whither he attended them, and had his devotion kindled by Mr W-----'s preaching: that he was confirmed in this new way by the preacher's fermons, which he had bought and fludied with great attention: that his difcourfe and prayers had brought over Mrs Jenkins and the houfemaid to the fame way of thinking; but as for Mr Barton. he had never feen him at fervice before this day, when he came in company with lady Grifkin-Humphry moreover owned, that he had been encouraged to mount the rostrum by the example and fuccefs of a weaver. who was much followed as a powerful minister: that. on his first trial, he found himself under fuch ftrong impulsions, as made him believe he was certainly moved by the fpirit; and that he had affifted in lady Gri'kin's, and feveral private houses, at exercises of devotion.

Mr

Mr Bramble was no fooner informed that her ladythip had acted as the primum mobile of this confederacy, than he concluded the had only made use of Clinker as a tool, subservient to the execution of fome defign, to the true fecret of which he was an utter ftranger-He observed. that her ladyfhip's brain was a perfect mill for projects; and that fhe and Tabby had certainly engaged in fome fecret treaty, the nature of which he could not comprehend. I told him, I thought it was no difficult matter to perceive the drift of Mrs Tabitha, which was to enfnare the . heart of Barton, and that in all likelihood my lady Grifkin acted as her auxiliary : that this fuppolition would account for their endeavours to convert him to Methodifm; an event which would occasion a connection of fouls that might be easily improved into a matrimonial union.

My uncle feemed to be much diverted by the thoughts of this fcheme's fucceeding; but I gave him to underftand that Barton was pre-engaged: that he had the day before made a prefent of an etuis to Liddy, which her aunt had obliged her to receive, with a view, no doubt, to countenance her own accepting of a fnuff box at the fame time: that my fifter having made me acquainted with this incident, I had defired an explanation of Mr Barton, who declared his intentions were honourable, and expressed his hope that I would have no objections to his alliance: that I had thanked him for the honour he intended

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 257

ed our family; but told him, it would be neceffary to confult her uncle and aunt, who were her guardians, and their approbation being ob. tained. I could have no objection to his propofal; though I was perfuaded that no violence would be offered to my fifter's inclinations, in a tranfaction that fo nearly interefted the happinefs of her future life: that he had billured me, he fhould never think of availing himfelf of a guardians authority, unless he could render his addreffes agreeable to the young lady herfelf; and that he would immediately demand permittion of Mr. and Mrs. Bramble to make Liddy a tender of his hand and fortune.

The 'fquire was not infenfible to the advantages of fuch a match, and declared he would promote it with all his influence; but when I took notice that there feemed to be an averfion on the fide of Liddy, he faid he would found her on the fubject; and if her relunctance was fuch as would not be eafily overcome, he would civilly decline the propofal of Mr. Barton: for he thought that, in the choice of a hufband, a young woman ought not to facrifice the feelings of her heart for any confideration upon earth----- "Liddy is "not fo desperate (faid he) as to worship fortune "at fuch an expence." I take it for granted this whole affair will end in imoke; though there feems to be a ftorm brewing in the quarter of Mrs. Tabby, who fat with all the fullen dignity of filence at dinner, feemingly pregnant with VOL.I. R com-

complaint and expofulation. As fhe hath certainly marked Barton for her own prey, fhe cannot poffibly favour his fuit to Liddy, and therefore I expect fomething extraordinary will attend his declaring himfelf my fifter's admirer. This declaration will certainly be made in form, as foon as the lover can pick up refolution enough to fland the brunt of Mrs. Tabby's difappointment; for he is, without doubt, aware of her defigns upon his perfor.——The particulars of the denouement you fhall know in due feafon: mean while I am always yours,

London, June 10.

J. MELFORD.

To Dr. LEWIS.

DEAR LEWIS,

THE deceitful calm was of fhort duration. I am plunged again in a fea of vexation, and the complaints in my ftomach and bowels are returned; fo that I fuppofe I fhall be difabled from profecuting the excursion I had planned—What the devil had I to do, to come a plague hunting with a leasth of females in my train? Yesterday my precious fifter (who, by the bye, has been for for fome time a professed Methodist) came into my apartment, attended by Mr. Barton, and defired an audience with a very ftately air-"Brother, (faid fhe) this gentleman has fome-"thing to propole, which I flatter myfelf, will "be the more acceptable, as it will rid you of a "troublefome companion." Then Mr. Barton proceeded to this effect-"I am, indeed, ex-"tremely ambitious of being allied to your fa-"mily, Mr. Bramble, and I hope you will fee "for authority, (faid Tabby, interrupting him "with fome warmth) I know of none that he "has a right to use on this occasion-If I pay "him the compliment of making him acquainted "with the ftep I intend to take, it is all he can "expect in reason-This is as much as I believe "he would do by me, if he intended to change "his own fituation in life-In a word, brother, "I am fo fenfible of Mr. Barton's extraordinary "merit, that I have been prevailed upon to alter "my refolution of living a fingle life, and to put "my happinels in his hands, by vefting him "with a legal title to my perfon and fortune. "fuch as they are. The bufinefs at prefent, is "to have the writings drawn, and I fhall be "obliged to you, if you will recommend a "lawyer to me for that purpole.____"

You may guels what an effect this ouverture had upon me, who, from the information of my nephew, expected that Barton was to make a formal declaration of his paffion for Liddy; I could not help gazing in filent aftonishment, alternately at Tabby and her fuppofed admirer, which last hung his head in the most aukward confusion for a few minutes, and then retired, on pretence of being fuddenly feized with a vertigo .---- Mrs. Tabitha affected much concern. and would have had him make use of a bed in the houfe; but he infifted upon going home, that he might have recourse to some drops, which he kept for fuch emergencies, and his inamorata acquiefced.-In the mean time I was exceedingly puzzled at this adventure, (tho' I fuspected the truth) and did not know in what manner to demean myfelf towards Mrs. Tabitha, when Jery came in and told me, he had just feen Mr. Barton alight from his chariot at lady Grifkin's door .---This incident feemed to threaten a vifit from her ladyfhip. with which we were honoured accordingly, in lefs than half an hour-"I find (faid "fhe) there has been a match of crofs purpofes "among you, good folks; and I'm come to fet "you to rights-" So faying, fhe prefented me with the following billet:

R 2

"Dear Sir,

"I no fooner recollected myfelf from the ex-"treme confusion I was thrown into, by that "unlucky mistake of your fister, than I thought "it my duty to assure you, that my devoirs to "Mrs. Bramble never exceeded the bounds of or-"dinary

"dinary civility, and that my heart is unalterab-"ly fixed upon Mifs Liddy Melford, as I had the "honour to declare to her brother, when he "queftioned me upon that fubject .- Lady Grifkin "has been to good as to charge herfelf, not on-"ly with the delivery of this note, but alfo "with the talk of undeceiving Mrs. Bramble, for "whom I have the most profound respect and "veneration, though my affection being other-"wife engaged, is no longer in the power of, "Sir,

> "Your very humble fervant, "RALPH BARTON."

Having caft my eyes over this billet, I told her ladyship that I would no longer retard the friendly office she had undertaken: and I and Jery forthwith retired into another room. There we foon perceived the conversation grow very warm betwixt the two ladies; and, at length, could diffinctly hear certain terms of altercation, which we could no longer delay interrupting, with any regard to decorum. When we entered the scene of contention, we found Liddy had joined the difputants, and ftood trembling betwixt them, as if the had been afraid they would have proceeded to fomething more practical than words-Lady Grifkin's face was like the full moon in a ftorm of wind, glaring, fiery, and portentous; while Tabby looked grim and ghaftly, with an afpect breathing difcord and dif-

Ra

difmay.----Our appearance put a ftop to their mutual revilings; but her ladyihip turning to me, "Coufin, (faid fhe,) I can't help faying I have "met with a very ungrateful return from this la-"dy, for the pains I have taken to ferve her fa-"mily.____" "My family is much obliged to "your ladyfhip, (cried Tabby, with a kind of "hysterical giggle) but we have no right to the "good offices of fuch an honourable go between." "But, for all that, good Mrs. Tabitha Bramble, "(refumed the other) I fhall be content with the "reflection, that virtue is its own reward; "and it fhall not be my fault, if you continue to "make yourfelf ridiculous-Mr. Bramble, who "has no little intereft of his own to ferve, will, "no doubt, contribute all in his power to pro-"mote a match betwixt Mr. Barton and his niece, "which will be equally honourable and advanta-"geous; and, I dare fay, Mifs Liddy herfelf "will have no objection to a measure fo well cal-"culated to make her happy in life."-----"I beg "your ladyfhip's pardon, (exclaimed Liddy, with "great vivacity) I have nothing but mifery to "expect from fuch a measure; and I hope my "guardians will have too much compassion, to "barter my peace of mind for any confideration "of interest or fortune."-----"Upon my word, "Mifs Liddy! (faid fhe) you have profited by "the example of your good aunt-I com-"prehend your meaning, and will explain it "when I have a proper opportunity-In the 46 mean

"mean time, I fhall take my leave — Madam, "your most obedient, and devoted humble fer-"vant," faid she, advancing close up to my fister, and courtefying fo low, that I thought she intended to squat herself down on the floor— This falutation Tabby returned with equal folemnity; and the expression of the two faces, while they continued in this attitude, would be no bad subject for a pencil like that of the incomparable Hogarth, if any such should ever appear again, in these times of dulness and degeneracy.

Jery accompanied her ladyfhip to her houfe, that he might have an opportunity to reftore the etuis to Barton, and advife him to give up his fuit, which was fo difagreeable to his fifter, againft whom, however, he returned much iritated.—Lady Grifkin had affured him, that Liddy's heart was pre-occupied; and immediately the idea of Wilfon recurring to his imagination, his family-pride took the alarm—He denounced vengeance againft that adventurer, and was difpofed to be very peremptory with his fifter; but I defired he would fupprefs his refentment, until I fhould have talked with her in private.

The poor girl, when I earneftly prefied her on this head, owned, with a flood of tears, that Wilfon had actually come to the Hot-Well at Briflol, and even introduced himfelf into our lodgings as a Jew pedlar; but that nothing had paffed betwixt them further, than her begging him to withdraw immediately, if he had any regard R 4. for for her peace of mind: that he had difappeared accordingly, after having attempted to prevail upon my fifter's maid to deliver a letter; which however, fhe refufed to receive, though fhe had confented to carry a meffage, importing that he was a gentleman of a good family, and that in a very little time, he would avow his paffion in that character—She confeffed, that although he had not kept his word in that particular, he was not yet altogether indifferent to her affection; but folemnly promifed, fhe would never carry on any correspondence with him, or any other admirer, for the future, without the privity and approbation of her brother and me.

By this declaration, fhe made her own peace with Jery; but the hot-headed boy is more than ever incenfed against Wilson, whom he now confiders as an impostor, that harbours fome in- , famous defign upon the honour of his family-----As for Barton, he was not a little mortified to find his prefent returned. and his addreffes fo unfavourably received; but he is not a man to be deeply affected by fuch difappointments; and I know not whether he is not as well pleafed at being difcarded by Liddy, as he would have been with a permission to profecute his pretenfions, at the rifque of being every day exposed to the revenge or machinations of Tabby, who is not to be flighted with impunity.----I had not much time to moralize on these occurrences; for the houfe was vifited by a conftable and his gang,

۱

For my own part, I made no doubt of the fellow's being mistaken for fome other perfon, and I went directly to the justice, in order to procure his difcharge; but there I found the matter much more ferious than I expected ------ Poor Clinker flood trembling at the bar, furrounded by thief-takers; and, at a little diftance, a thick. fquat fellow, a postillion, his accuser, who had feized him in the ftreet, and fwore positively to his perfon, that the faid Clinker had, on the 15th day of March last. on Blackheath, robbed a gentleman in a post-chaife, which he (the postillion) drove------This deposition was sufficient to justify his commitment, and he was fent accordingly to Clerkenwell prifon, whither Jery accompanied him in the coach, in order to recommend him properly to the keeper, that he may want for no convenience which the place affords.

R 5

265

The spectators, who assembled to see this high-wayman, were fagacious enough to difcern fomething very villainous in his aspect; which (begging their pardon) is the very picture of fimplicity; and the justice himself put a very unfavourable construction upon some of his anfwers, which, he faid, favoured of the ambiguity and equivocation of an old offender; but, in my opinion, it would have been more just and humane to impute them to the confusion into which we may suppose a poor country lad to be thrown on fuch an occasion. I am still perfuaded he is innocent; and, in this perfuation, I can do no lefs than use my utmost endeavours that he may not be opprefied _____ I fhall, to morrow, fend my nephew to wait on the gentleman who was robbed, and beg he will have the humanity to' go and fee the prifoner; that, in cafe he fhould find him quite different from the perfon of the highwayman, he may bear testimony in his behalf----Howfoever it may fare with Clinker. this curfed affair will be to me productive of intolerable chagrin-I have already caught a dreadful cold, by rushing into the open air from the juffice's parlour, where I had been flewing in the crowd; and though I fhould not be laid up with the gout, as I believe I shall, I must ftay at London for fome weeks, till this poor devil comes to his trial at Rochefter; fo that, in all probability, my Northern expedition is blown up.

łf

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 267

If you can find any thing in your philosophical budget, to confole me in the midft of these distresses and apprehensions, pray let it be communicated to

Your unfortunate friend,

London, June 12. MATT. BRAMBLE.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR WAT,

THE farce is finished, and another piece of a graver caft brought upon the ftage.-----Our aunt made a desperate attack upon Barton, who had no other way of faving himfelf, but by leaving her in possession of the field, and avowing his pretensions to Liddy, by whom he has been rejected in his turn. Lady. Grifkin acted as his advocate and agent on this occasion, with fuch zeal as embroiled her with Mrs. Tabitha, and a high fcene of altercation paffed betwixt thefe two religionists, which might have come to action, had not my uncle interpofed. They are, however, reconciled, in confequence of an event which hath involved us all in trouble and disquiet. You must know, the poor preacher, Hum?

All things confidered, the poor fellow cannot poffibly be guilty, and yet, I believe, he runs fome rifque of being hanged.----Upon his examination, he answered with such hesitation and referve, as perfuaded most of the people, who crowded the place, that he was really a knave, and the juffice's remarks confirmed their opinion. Exclusive of my uncle and myself, there was only one perfon who feemed inclined to favour the culprit-He was a young man, well dreffed, and from the manner in which he crofsexamined the evidence, we took it for granted," that he was a fludent in one of the inns of court -----He freely checked the justice for fome uncharitable inferences he made to the prejudice of the prifoner, and even ventured to difpute with his worfhip on certain points of law.

My uncle, provoked at the unconnected and dubious anfwers of Clinker, who feemed in danger of falling a facrifice to his own fimplicity, exclaimed, "In the name of God, if you are in-"nocent, fay fo," "No. (cried he) God for-"bid that I fhould call myfelf innocent, while "my confcience is burdened with fin." "What "then, you did commit this robbery?", refumHUMPHRY CLINKER. 260

ed his mafter. "No, fure, (faid he) bleffed be "the Lord, I'm free of that guilt."

Here the justice interposed, observing, 'that the man seemed inclined to make a discovery by turning king's evidence, and desired the clerk to take his confession; upon which Humphry declared, that he looked upon confession to be a popission fraud, invented by the whore of Babylon. The Templar affirmed, that the poor fellow was non compos; and exhorted the justice to discharge him as lunatic. "You know very well (ad-"ded he) that the robbery in question was not "committed by the prisoner."

The thief-takers grinned at one another; and Mr. Justice Buzzard replied with great emotion, "Mr. Martin, I defire you will mind your own "bufinefs; I fhall convince you one of thefe days "that I understand mine." In fhort, there was no remedy; the mittimus was made out, and poor Clinker fent to prifon in a hackney coach. guarded by the conftable, and accompanied by your humble fervant. By the way, I was not a little furprifed to hear this retainer to justice bid the prifoner to keep up his fpirits, for that he did not at all doubt, but that he would get off for a few weeks confinement-He faid, his worfhip knew very well that Clinker was innocent of the fact, and that the real highwayman, who robbed the chaife, was no other than that very individual Mr. Martin, who had pleaded fo ftrenuoufly for honeft Humphry.

Con-

١

Confounded at this information, I afked, "Why "then is he fuffered to go about at his liberty, "and this poor innocent fellow treated as a male-"factor?" "We have exact intelligence of all "Mr. Martin's tranfactions; (faid $h\epsilon$) but as yet "there is not evidence fufficient for his convic-"tion; and as for this young man, the juffice "could do no lefs than commit him, as the pos-"tillion fwore point blank to his identity." "So "if this rafcally poftillion fhould perfift in the "falfity to which he has fworn, (faid I) this in-"nocent lad may be brought to the gallows."

The conftable obferved, that he would have time enough to prepare for his trial and might prove an alibi; or, perhaps, Martin might be apprehended and convicted for another fact; in which cafe, he might be prevailed upon to take this affair upon himfelf; or, finally, if thefe chances fhould fail, and the evidence fiand good against Clinker, the jury might recommend him to mercy, in confideration of his youth, especially if this fhould appear to be the first fact of which he had been guilty.

Humphry owned he could not pretend to recollect where he had been on the day when the robbery was committed, much lefs prove a circumftance of that kind fo far back as fix months, though he knew he had been fick of the fever and ague, which, however, did not prevent him from going about——then, turning up his eyes, he ejaculated, "The Lord's will be done! "if

......

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 2

"if it be my fate to fuffer, I hope I fhall not "difgrace the faith, of which, though unworthy, "I make profession."

When I expressed my surprise, that the accufer should persist in charging Clinker, without taking the leaft notice of the real robber, who ftood before him, and to whom, indeed, Humphry bore not the fmallest reffemblance: the constable (who was himself a thief-taker) gave me to understand, that Mr. Martin was the best qualified for bufinefs of all the gentlemen on the road he had ever known; that he had always acted on his own bottom, whithout partner or correspondent. and never went to work, but when he was cool and fober; that his courage and prefence of mind never failed him: that his address was genteel, and his behaviour void of all cruelty and infolence; that he never encumbered himfelf with watches or trinkets, nor even with bank-notes, but always dealt for ready money. and that in the current coin of the kingdom; and that he could difguife himfelf and his horfe in fuch a manner, that, after the action. it was impoflible to recognize either the one or the "paramount in all the roads within fifty miles of "London above fifteen months, and has done more "bufinefs in that time, than all the reft of the "profession put together; for those who pass "through his hands are fo delicately dealt with, "that they have no defire to give him the leaft " dis-

271

. I 1

"difturbance; but for all that, his race is almost "run—he is now fluttering about justice, like "a moth about a candle—there are fo many "lime-twigs laid in his way, that I'll bet a cool "hundred, he fwings before Christmas."

Shall I own to you, that this portrait, drawn by a ruffian, heightened by what I myfelf had observed in his deportment, has interested me warmly in the fate of poor Martin, whom Nature feems to have intended for a ufeful and honourable member of that community upon which he now preys for fubfistence? It feems he lived fome time as a clerk to a timber merchant, whofe daughter Martin having privately married, was difcarded, and his wife turned out of doors. She did not long furvive her marriage; and Martin, turning fortune-hunter, could not fupply his occasions any other way, than by taking the road, in which he has travelled hitherto with uncommon fuccefs.-----He pays his refpects regularly to Mr. Justice Buzzard, the thief-catchergeneral of this metropolis, and fometimes they fmoke a pipe together very lovingly, when the conversation generally turns upon the nature of evidence------The juffice has given him fair warning to take care of himfelf, and he has received his caution in good part.-----Hitherto he has baffled all the vigilance, art, and activity of Buzzard and his emiffaries, with fuch conduct as would have done honour to the genius of a Cæfar or a Turenne; but he has one weaknefs, which which has proved fatal to all the heroes of his tribe, namely, an indifcreet devotion to the fair fex, and, in all probability, he will be attacked on this defencelefs quarter.

Be that as it may, I faw the body of poor Clinker configned to the gaoler of Clerkenwell, to whole indulgence I recommended him fo effectually, that he received him in the most hofpitable manner, though there was a necessity for equipping him with a fuit of irons, in which he made a very rueful appearance. The poor creature feemed as much affected by my uncle's kindnefs, as by his own misfortune. When I affured him, that nothing fhould be left undone for procuring his enlargement, and making his confinement eafy in the mean time, he fell down on his knees, and kiffing my hand, which he bathed with his tears, "O'fquire! (cried he. "fobbing) what fhall I fay? - I can't--no, I "can't fpeak-my poor heart is burfting with "gratitude to you and my dear-dear-ge-"nerous--noble benefactor ...

١

I proteft, the scene became so pathetic, that I was fain to force myfelf away, and returned to my uncle, who fent me in the afternoon with a compliment to one Mr Mead, the perfon who had been robbed on Blackheath. As I did not find him at home, I left a meffage, in confequence of which he called at our lodgings this morning, and very humanely agreed to visit the prifoner. By this time, lady Grifkin had come VOL. T. to S to make her formal compliments of condolence to Mrs Tabitha, on this domefic calamity: and that prudent maiden, whofe paffion was now cooled, thought proper to receive ner ladyfhip fo civilly, that a reconciliation immediately enfued. Thefe two ladies refolved to comfort the poor prifoner in their own perfons, and Mr Mead and I 'fquired them to Clerkenwell, my uncle being detained at home by fome flight complaints in his ftomach and bowels.

The turnkey, who received us at Clerkenwell', looked remarkably fullen; and when we enquired for Clinker, "I don't care if the devil "had him; (faid he) here has been nothing but "canting and praying fince the fellow entered "the place-Rabbit him! the tap will be ruin-"ed-we han't fold a cask of beer, nor a do-"zen of wine, fince he paid his garnifh-the. "gentlemen get drunk with nothing but your "damned religion .---- For my part, I believe "as how your man deals with the devil.- Two "or three as bold hearts as ever took the air "upon Hounflow, have been blubbering all "night; and if the fellow an't fpeedily removed "by Habeas Corpus, or otherwife, I'll be dam-"n'd if there's a grain of true fpirit left within "thefe walls-we fhan't have a foul to do credit "to the place, or make his exit like a trueborn "Englishman-damn my eyes! there will be no-"thing but fnivelling in the cart-we fhall all "die like fo many pfalm-finging weavers,"

In

In flort, we found that Humphry was, at that very inftant, haranguing the felons in the chapel; and that the gaoler's wife and daughter, together with my aunt's woman. Win. Jenkins, · and our house maid, were among their audience, which we immediately joined. I never faw any thing to ftrongly picturefque as this congregation of felons clanking their chains, in the midft of whom flood orator Clinker, expatiating, in a transport of fervour, on the torments of hell. denounced in fcripture against evil-doers, comprehending murderers, robbers, thieves, and whoremongers. The variety of attention exhibided in the faces of those ragamuffins, formed a groupe that would not have difgraced the pencil of a Raphael. In one it denoted admiration; in another, doubt; in a third, difdain; in a fourth contempt; in a fifth, terror; in a fixth. derifion; and in a feventh, indignation. - As for Mrs Winifred Jenkins, fhe was in tears, overwhelmed with forrow: but whether for her own fins, or the misfortune of Clinker, I cannot pretend to fay. The other females feemed to liften with a mixture of wonder and devotion. The gaoler's wife declared he was a faint in trouble, faying, the withed from her heart, there was fuch another good foul, like him, in every gaol in England.

Mr Mead, having earneftly furveyed the preacher, declared his appearance was fo different from that of the perfon who robbed him on

S 2

Black-

Blackheath, that he could freely make oath he was not the man: But Humphry himfelf was by this time pretty well rid of all apprehenfions of being hanged; for he had been the night before folemnly tried and acquitted by his fellow prifoners, fome of whom he had already converted to Methodifm. He now made proper acknowledgements for the honour of our vifit, and was permitted to kifs the hands of the ladies, who affured him, he might depend upon their friendship and protection. Lady Griskin, in her great zeal, exhorted his fellow-prifoners to profit by the precious opportunity of having fuch a faint in bonds among them, and turn over a new leaf for the benefit of their poor fouls: and, that her admonition might have the greater effect, fhe reinforced it with her bounty.

While fhe and Mrs Tabby returned in the coach with the two maid fervants, I waited on Mr Mead to the houfe of juffice Buzzard, who, having heard his declaration, faid his oath could be of no use at prefent, but that it would be a material evidence for the prisoner at his trial; fo that there feems to be no remedy but patience for poor Clinker; and, indeed, the fame virtue, or medicine, will be necefiary for us all, the 'fquire in particular, who had fet his heart upon his excursion to the northward.

While we were vifiting honeft Humphry in Clerkenwell prifon, my uncle received a much more extraordinary vifit at his own lodgings.

Mr

١,

Mr Martin, of whom I have made fuch honourable mention, defired permiffion to pay him his refpects, and was admitted accordingly. He told him, that having obferved him, at Mr Buzzard's, a good deal diffurbed by what had happened to his fervant, he had come to affure him he had nothing to apprehend for Clinker's life; for, if it was possible that any jury could find him guilty upon fuch evidence, he, Martin himfelf, would produce in court a perfon, whofe deposition would bring him off clear as the fun at noon.-Sure, the fellow would not be fo romantic as to take the robbery upon himfelf!-He faid the poftillion was an infamous fellow, who had been a dabbler in the fame profession, and faved his life at the Oid Bailey by impeaching his companions; that being now reduced to great poverty, he had made this desperate pufh, to fwear away the life of an innocent man, in hopes of having the reward upon his conviction; but that he would find himfelf miferably difappointed, for the justice and his myrmidons were determined to admit of no interloper in this branch of bufinefs; and that he did not at all doubt but that they would find matter enough to ftop the evidence himfelf before the next gaol-. delivery. He affirmed, that all these circumftances were well known to the juffice; and that his feverity to Clinker was no other than a hint to his mafter to make him a present in private.

S 3

vate, as an acknowledgement of his candour and humanity.

This hint, however, was fo unpalatable to Mr Bramble, that he declared, with great warmth, he would rather confine himself for life to London, which he detefted, than be at liberty to leave it to-morrow, in confequence of encouraging corruption in a magistrate. Hear. ing, however, how favourable Mr Mead's report had been for the prifoner, he is refolved to take the advice of counfel in what manner to proceed for his immediate enlargement. I make no doubt, but that in a day or two this troublefome bufinefs may be difcuffed; and in this hope we are preparing for our journey. If our endeavours do not mifcarry, we shall have taken the field before you hear again from

Yours,

London, June 11.

٢

J. MELFORD.

To Dr. LEWIS.

THANK Heaven! dear Lewis, the clouds are differfed, and I have now the cleareft profpect of my fummer campaign, which, I hope, I fhall be able to begin to-morrow. II took the advice of counfel, with refpect to the cafe of Clinker, in whofe favour a lucky incident has intervened. The fellow who accufed him, has had his own battery turned upon himfelf.-Two days ago, he was apprehended for a robbery on the high way, and committed on the evidence of an accomplice .- Clinker, having moved for a writ of habeas corpus, was brought before the lord chief justice, who, in confequence of an affidavit of the gentleman who had been robbed, importing that the faid Clinker was not the perfon who ftopped him on the high-way, as well as in confideration of the poftillion's character and prefent circumftances, was pleafed to order, that my fervant fhould be admitted to bail; and he has been discharged accordingly, to the unfpeakable fatisfaction of our whole family, to which he has recommended himfelf in an extraordinary manner, not only by his obliging de-'portment, but by his talents of preaching, praying, and finging pfalms, which he has exercifed with fuch effect, that even Trbby respects him as a chosen vessel. If there was any thing like affectation or hypocrify in this excels of religion. I would not keep him in my fervice; but. fo far as I can observe, the fellow's character is downright fimplicity, warmed with a kind of enthusiafin, which renders him very fusceptible of gratitude and attachment to his benefactors.

As he is an excellent horfeman, and underftands farriery, I have bought a ftout gelding for his use, that he may attend us on the road, and have an eye to our cattle, in cafe the coachman S 4 fhould fhould not mind his bufinefs. My nephew, who is to ride his own faddle-horfe, has taken, upon trial, a fervant just come from abroad with his former master, Sir William Strollop, who vouches for his honesty. The fellow, whose name is Dutton, feems to be a petitmaitre—He has got a fmattering of French, bows, and grins, and shrugs, and takes shuff à la mode de France, but values himself chiesty upon his skill and dexterity in hair-dreffing—If I am not much deceived by appearance, he is, in all respects, the very contrast of Humphry Clinker.

My fifter has made up matters with lady Grifkin; though, I must own, I should not have been forry to fee that connection entirely destroyed; but Tabby is not of a disposition to forgive Barton, who, I understand, is gone to his feat in Berkshire for the summer feason. T cannot help fuspecting. that in the treaty of peace, which has been lately ratified betwixt those two females, it is flipulated, that her ladyfhip fhall use her best endeavours to provide an agree. able help mate for our fifter Tabitha, who feems to be quite desperate in her matrimonial defigns. Perhaps, the match maker is to have a valuable confideration in the way of brokerage, which fhe will most certainly deferve, if she can find any man in his fenses, who will yoke with Mrs Bramble from motives of affectiou or intereft.

I find

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

I find my fpirits and my health affect each that difcomposes my mind, produces a correfpondent diforder in my body; and my bodily complaints are remarkably mitigated by those confiderations that diffipate the clouds of mental chagrin-The imprisonment of Clinker brought on those symptoms which Imentioned in my laft, and now they are vanished at his dif. charge .- It must be owned, indeed, I took fome of the tincture of ginleng, prepared according to your prefcription, and found it exceedingly grateful to the ftomach; but the pain and fickness continued to return, after short intervals, till the anxiety of my mind was entirely removed, and then I found myfelf perfectly at eafe. We have had fair weather these ten days, to the aftonishment of the Londoners, who think it portentous. If you enjoy the fame indulgence in Wales. I hope Barns has got my hay made. and fafe cocked, by this time. As we shall be in motion for fome weeks, I cannot expect to hear from you as ufual; but I shall continue to write from every place at which we make any halt, that you may know our tract, in cafe it fhould be neceffary to communicate any thing to

Your affured friend,

London, June 14.

MATT. BRAMBLE.

To

28I

٩

To Mrs. MARY JONES, at Brambleton-hall.

DEAR MARY,

HAVING the occasion of my coufin Jenkins of Aberga'ny, I fend you, as a token, a turkey-fhell comb, a kiple of yards of green ribbon, and a farment upon the nothingnefs of good works, which was preached in the Tabernacle; and you will also receive a horn-buck for Saul, whereby fhe may learn her letters; for I'm much confarned about the flate of her poor fole-----and what are all the purfuits of this life to the confarns of that immortal part?----What is life but a veil of affliction ?----- O Mary ! the whole family have been in furch a conftipation! -Mr Clinker has been in trouble, but the gates of hell have not been able to prevail against him.----His virtue is like poor gould, feven times tried in the fire. He was tuck up for a robbery, and had before gustafs Busshard, who made his mittamoufe; and the pore youth was fent to prison upon the false oaf of a willian, that wanted to fware his life away for the looker of cain.

The 'fquire did all in his power, but could not prevent his being put in chains, and confined among common manufactors, where he flud like an innocent fheep in the midft of wolves and tygers.——Lord knows what mought have happened

HUMPHRY CLINKER.

ned to this pychouse young man, if master had not applied to Apias Korkus, who lives with the ould bailiff, and is, they fay, five hundred years ould, (God blefs us !) and a congeror: but, if he be, fure I am he don't deal with the devil, otherwife he wouldn't have fought out Mr Clinker as he did, in fpite of ftone walls, iron bolts, and double locks, that flew open at his command : for Ould Scratch has not a greater enemy upon hearth than Mr Clinker, who is, indeed, a very powerful labourer in the Lord's vineyard. I do no more than yuse the words of my good lady, who has got the infectual calling; and, I truft, that even myfelf, though unworthy, fhall find greafe to be excepted-Mifs Liddy has been touch'd to the quick, but is a little timorfome : howfomever, I make no doubt, but fhe and all of us, will be brought, by the endeavours of Mr Clinker, to produce bleffed . fruit of generation and repentance------As for mafter and the young 'fquire, they have as yet had narro glimpfe of the new light.----I doubt as how their harts are hardened by worldly wifdom. which, as the pyebill faith, is foolifhnefs in the fight of God.

O Mary Jones, pray without feizing for greafe to prepare you for the operations of this wonderful inftrument, which, I hope, will be exorcifed this winter upon you and others at Brambleton-hall.——To-morrow, we are to fet out in a cox and four for Yorkfhire; and I believe, we

283

we fhall travel that way far, and far, and farther than I can tell; but I fhan't go fo far as to forget my friends; and Mary Jones will always be remembered as one of them by her

Humble farvant.

London, June 15.

WIN. JENKINS.

To Mrs. GWILLIM, Houfe-keeper, at Brambleton-hall.

MRS GWILLIM,

I CAN'T help thinking it very ftrange, that I never had an' answer to the letter I wrote you fome weeks ago from Bath, concerning the four bear, the gander, and the maids eating butter. which I won't allow to be wafted-We are now going upon a long gurney to the North, whereby I defire you will redouble your care and circumflexion, that the family may be well manged in our ablence; for, you know, you must render accunt, not only to your earthly mafter, but also to him that is above: and if you are found a good and faithful farvant, great will be your reward in haven. I hope there will be twenty flun of cheefe ready for market by the time I get huom, and as much owl fpun, as will make half a dozen pair of blankets; and that the favings of the butter-milk will fetch me a good good penny before Martinmals, as the two pigs are to be fed for baking with bitchmaft and acrons.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 285

I wrote to doctor Lewis for the fame porpufs, but he never had the good manners to take the least notice of my letter; for which reason, I shall never fayour him with another, though he beshits me on his bended knees. You will do well to keep a watchfull eye over the hind Villiams, who is one of his amiflories, and, I believe, no better than he fhould be at bottom. God forbid that I fhould lack Christian charity; but charity begins at huom, and fure nothing can be a more charitable work than to rid the family of fuch vermin. I do fuppofe, that the brindled cow has been had to the parfon's bull, that old Moll has had another litter of pigs, and that Dick is become a mighty moufer. Pray order every thing for the beft, and be frugal. and keep the maids to their labour .- If I had a private opportunity, I would fend them fome hymns to fing instead of profane ballads; but, as I can't, they and you must be contented with the prayers of

Your affured friend,

London, June 14.

T. BRAMBLE.

To

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR PHILLIPS,

ł

THE very day after I wrote my last. Clinker was fet at liberty-As Martin had foretold, the accufer was himfelf committed for a robbery, upon unquestionable evidence. He had been for fome time in the fnares of the thief-taking fociety; who, refenting his prefumption in attempting to incroach upon their monopoly of impeachment, had him taken up and committed to Newgate, on the deposition of an accomplice, who has been admitted as evidence for the king. The postillion being upon record as an old offender, the chief justice made no fcruple of admitting Clinker to bail, when he perused the affidavit of Mr Mead, importing that the faid Clinker was not the perfon that robbed him on Blackheath; and honeft Humphry was difcharged-When he came home, he expressed great eagernefs to pay his refpects to his mafter, and here his elocution failed him, but his filence was pathetic; he fell down at his feet, and embraced his knees, fliedding a flood of tears, which my uncle did not fee without emotion-He took fnuff in fome confusion; and, putting his hand in his pocket, gave him his bleffing in fomething more fubftantial than words-"Clinker, "(faid

HUMPHRY CLINKER. · 287

"(faid he) I am fo well convinced, both of your "honefty and courage, that I am refolved to "make you my life guard man on the highway."

He was accordingly provided with a cafe of piftols, and a carbine to be flung acrofs his fhoulders; and every other preparation being made, we fet out last Thursday, at seven in the morning; my uncle, with the three women in the coach; Humphry well mounted on a black gelding bought for his ule; myfelf a horfeback. attended by my new valet, Mr Dutton, an exceeding coxcomb, fresh from his travels, whom I have taken upon trial----The fellow wears a folitaire, uses paint, and takes rappee with all the grimace of a French marquis. At prefent, however, he is in a riding drefs, jackboots, leather breeches, a scarlet waistcoat, with gold binding, a laced hat, a hanger, a French pofting-whip in his hand, and his hair en queue.

Before we had gone nine miles. my horfe loft one of his fhoes; fo that I was obliged to ftop at Barnet to have another, while the coach proceeded at an easy pace over the common. About a mile fhort of Hatfield, the postillions, ftopping the carriage, gave notice to Clinker that there were two fufpicious fellows a horfeback, at the end of a lane, who feemed waiting to attack the coach. Humphry forthwith apprifed my uncle, declaring he would ftand by him to the laft drop of his blood; and, unflinging his his carbine, prepared for action. The 'fquire had piffols in the pockets of the coach, and refolved to make use of them directly: but he was effectually prevented by his female companions, who flung themfelves about his neck, and fcreamed in concert-At that inftant, who fhould come up at a hand gallop, but Martin, the highway man, who, advancing to the coach, begged the ladies would compose themselves for a moment; then, defiring Clinker to follow him to the charge, he pulled a piftol out of his bofom, and they rode up together to give battle to the rogues, who, having fired at a great diftance. fled across the common. They were in purfuit of the fugitives when I came up, not a little alarmed at the fhrieks in the coach. where I found my uncle in a violent rage, without his periwig, ftruggling to difentangle himfelf from Tabby and the other two, and fwearing with great vociferation. Before I had time to interpofe. Martin and Clinker returned from the purfuit, and the former paid his compliments with great politenefs, giving us to underftand, that the fellows had scampered off, and that he believed they were a couple of raw 'prentices from London. He commended Clinker for his courage, and faid, if we would give him leave, he would have the honour to accompany us as far as Stevenage, where he had fome bufinefs.

The 'fquire having recollected and adjusted himfelf, was the first to laugh at his own fituation;

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 289

tion; but it was not without difficulty that Tabby's arms could be untwifted from his neck. Liddy's teeth chattered. and Jenkins was threatened with a fit as usual. I had communicated to my uncle the character of Martin, as it was defcribed by the conftable, and he was much ftruck with its fingularity-He could not fuppofe the fellow had any defign on our company, which was fo numerous and well armed; he derefore thanked him, for the fervice he had just done them, faid he would be glad of his company. and afked him to dine with us at Hatfield. This invitation might not have been agreeable to the ladies, had they known the real profession of our guest, but this was a fecret to all, except my uncle and myself-----Mrs Tabitha, however, would by no means confent to proceed with a cafe of loaded piftols in the coach. and they were fortwith difcharged in complaifance to her and the reft of the women.

that looked like highwaymen—He nodded three times diffinctly, as much as to fay, he knows his cue. Then he enquired, if one of thofe men was mounted on a bay mare, and the other on a chefnut gelding, with a white ftreak down his forehead? and being anfwered in the affirmative, he affured me, they had robbed three poftchaifes this very morning—I enquired, in my turn, if Mr Martin was of his acquaintance? and, nodding thrice again, he anfwered, that he had feen the gentleman.

Before we left Hatfield, my uncle, fixing his eyes on Martin with fuch expression as is more eafily conceived than defcribed, asked, if he often travelled that road? and he replied with a look which denoted his understanding the queftion, that he very feldom did business in that part of the country. In a word, this adventurer favoured us with his company to the neighbourhood of Stevenage, where he took his leave of the coach and me in very polite terms, and turned off upon a crofsroad, that led to a villa. ge on the left .-- At fupper, Mrs Tabby was very full in the praise of Mr Martin's good-sense and good-breeding, and feemed to regret that fhe had not a further opportunity to make fome experiment upon his affection. In the morning. my uncle was not a little furprifed to receive. from the waiter, a billet couched in thefe words:

"SIR.

"I could eafily perceive from your looks, "when I had the honour to converse with you "at Hatfield, that my character is not unknown "to you; and, I dare fay, you won't think it "ftrange, that I fhould be glad to change my "present way of life, for any other honest oc-"cupation, let it be ever fo humble, that will "afford me bread in moderation, and fleep in "fafety.----Perhaps you may think I flatter. "when I fay, that from the moment I was wit-"nefs to your generous concern in the caufe of "your fervant, I conceived a particular efteem "and veneration for your perfon; and yet what "I fay is true. I flould think myfelf happy, if "I could be admitted into your protection and "fervice, as house-fteward, clerk, butler, or "bailiff, for either of which places I think my-"felf tolerably well qualified; and, fure I am, "I fhould not be found deficient in gratitude "and fidelity: at the fame time. I am very fen-"fible how much you must deviate from the com-"mon maxims of difcretion, even in putting my "professions to the trial; but I don't look upon "you as a perfon that thinks in the ordinary fli-"le; and the delicacy of my fituation will, I "know, justify this address to a heart warmed "with beneficence and compassion,-Understand-"ing you are going pretty far north, I fhall "take an opportunity to throw myfelf in your "way again, before you reach the borders of T 2 "Scot-

.

"Scotland; and, I hope, by that time, you "will have taken into confideration the truly di-"ftrefsful cafe of,

" Honoured Sir, "Your very humble, "And devoted fervant, "EDWARD MARTIN"

The 'íquire, having perused this letter, put it into my hand, without faying a fyllable; and, when I had read it. we looked at each other in filence. From a certain fparkling in his eyes. I discovered there was more in his heart, than he cared to express with his tongue, in favour of poor Martin; and this was precifely my own feeling, which he did not fail to difcern, by the fame means of communication----- "What shall "we do (faid he) to fave this poor finner from "the gallows, and make him a useful member of "the commonwealth? and yet the proverb fays, "Save a thief from the gallows, and he'll cut "your throat." I told him, I really believed Martin was capable of giving the proverb the lie; and that I flould heartily concur in any ftep he might take in favour of his folicitation. We mutually refolved to deliberate upon the fubject, and, in the mean time, proceeded on our journey. The roads, having been broke up by the heavy rains in the fpring, were fo rough, that although we travelled very flowly, the jolting occafioned fuch pain to my uncle, that he was becobecome exceedingly peevifh when we arrived at this place, which lies about eight miles from the poft-road, between Weatherby and Boroughbridge.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 293

Harrigate-water, fo celebrated for its efficacy in the fourvy and other diftempers. is supplied from a copious foring. in the hollow of a wild common, round which, a good many houfes have been built for the convenience of the drinkers, though few of them are inhabited. Moft of the company lodge at fome diftance, in five feparate inns, fituated in different parts of the common, from whence they go every morning to the well, in their own carriages. The lodgers of each inn form a diffinct fociety, that eat together; and there is a commodious public room, where they breakfast in difhabille, at feparate tables, from eight o'clock till eleven, as they chance or chuse to come in-Here also they drink tea in the afternoon, and play at cards or dance in the evening. One cuftom, however. prevails, which I look upon as a folecifm in politenefs-The ladies treat with tea in their turns: and even girls of fixteen are not exempted from this fhameful impofition-There is a public ball by fubfcription every night at one of the houfes, to which all the company from the others are admitted by tickets; and, indeed, Harrigate treads upon the heels of Bath, in the articles of galety and diffipation-with this difference, however, that here we are more Тз fociable fociable and familiar. One of the inns is already full up to the very garrets, having no lefs than fifty lodgers, and as many fervants. Our family does not exceed thirty-fix; and I fhould be forry to fee the number augmented, as our accommodations won't admit of much increase.

At prefent, the company is more agreeable than one could expect from an accidental affemblage of perfons, who are utter ftrangers to one another.-There feems to be a general disposition among us to maintain good fellowship, and promote the purpoles of humanity, in favour of those who come hither on the fcore of health. I fee feveral faces which we left at Bath, although the majority are of the northern counties. and many come from Scotland for the benefit of these waters-In fuch a variety, there must be fome originals, among whom Mrs Tabitha Bramble is not the most inconfiderable----No place where there is fuch an intercourfe between the fexes, can be difagreeable to a lady of her views and temperament-She has had fome warm difputes at table, with a lame parfon from Northumberland, on the new birth, and the infignificance of moral virtue; and her arguments have been reinforced by an old Scots lawyer, in a tye-periwig, who, though he has loft his teeth, and the ufe of his limbs, can ftill wag his tongue with greath volubility. He has paid her fuch fulfome compliments, upon her piety and learning, as feem to have won her heart :

heart: and fhe, in her turn, treats him with fuch attention as indicates a defign upon his perfon; but, by all accounts, he is too much a fox to be inveigled into any fnare that fhe can lay for bis affection.

We do not propole to ftay long at Harrigate, though, at present, it is our head quarters, from whence we shall make some excursions, to visit two or three of our rich relations, who are fettled in this county. Pray remember me to all our friends of Jefus, and allow me to be ftill

Yours affectionately,

Harrigate, June 23.

I. MELFORD.

To Dr LEWIS.

DEAR DOCTOR.

CONSIDERING the tax we pay for turnpikes, the roads of this country conftitute a most intolerable grievance. Between Newark and Weatherby, I have fuffered more from jolting and fwinging, than ever I felt in the whole course of my life, although the carriage is remarkably commodious and well hung, and the postillions were very careful in driving. I am now fafely housed at the New Inn at Harrigate, whither I came to fatisfy my curiofity, rather than T A than with any view of advantage to my health; and, truly, after having confidered all the parts and particulars of the place, I cannot account for the concourfe of people one finds here, upon any other principle but that of caprice, which feems to be the character of our nation.

Harrigate is a wild common, bare and bleak. without tree or fhrub, or the least figns of culi. vation; and the people who come to drink the water, are crowded together in paltry inns. where the few tolerable rooms are monopolized by the friends and favourites of the houfe, and all the reft of the lodgers are obliged to put up with dirty holes, where there is neither space, air, nor convenience. My apartment is about ten feet fquare; and when the folding hed is down, there is just room sufficient to pass between it and the fire. One might expect, indeed, that there would be no occasion for a fire at midfummer: but here the climate is fo backward. that an afh-tree, which our landlord has planted before my window, is just beginning to put forth its leaves; and 1 am fain to have my bed warmed every night.

As for the water, which is faid to have effected fo many furprifing cures, I have drank it once, and the first draught has cured me of all defire to repeat the medicine.——Some people fay it fmells of rotten eggs, and others compare it to the fcourings of a foul gun.——It is generally fuppofed to be ftrongly impregnated with fulfulphur; and Dr Shaw, in his book upon mineral-waters. fays, he has feen flakes of fulphur floating in the well-Pace tanti viri; I for my part, have never obferved any thing like fulphur. either in or about the well, neither do I find that any brimftone has ever been extracted from the water. As for the fmell, if I may be allowed to judge from my own organs. it is exactly that of bilge-water; and the faline tafte of it feems to declare, that it is nothing elfe than falt-water putrified in the bowels of the earth. I was obliged to hold my nofe with one hand, while I advanced the glafs to my mouth with the other: and after I had made thift to fwallow it, my ftomack could hardly retain what it had received .----- The only effects it produced were ficknefs, griping, and infurmountable difgust-I can hardly mention it without puking .-- The world is ftrangely milled by the affectation of fingularity. I cannot help fuspecting, that this water owes its reputation in a great measure to its being fo strikingly offenfive .- On the fame kind of analogy, a German doctor has introduced hemlock and other poifons, as specifics, into the materia medica.----In am perfuaded, that all the cures afcribed to the Harrigate water, would have been as efficacioufly, and infinitely more agreeably performed, by the internal and external use of sea-water. Sure I am, this last is much lefs naufeous to the tafte and fmell, and much more gentle in its operation as a purge, as well as more extensive in its medical qualities.

T 5

Two days ago, we went acrofs the country to vifit 'fauire Burdock, who married a first coufin of my father, an heirefs, who brought him an eftate of a thousand a-year. This gentleman is a declared opponent of the ministry in parliament; and, having an opulent fortune, piques himfelf upon living in the country, and maintaining old Engli/h hofpitality .----- By the bye, this is a phrase very much used by the English themfelves, both in words and writing; but I never heard of it out of the island, except by way of irony and farcafm. What the hospitality of our forefathers has been I fhould be glad to fee recorded, rather in the memoirs of ftrangers who have vifited our country, and were . the proper objects and judges of fuch hofpitality, than in the difcourfe and lucubrations of the modern English, who seem to describe it from theory and conjecture. Certain it is, we are generally looked upon by foreigners, as a people totally deftitute of this virtue; and I never . was in any country abroad, where I did not meet with perfons of diffinction who complained of having been inhofpitably used in Great-Britain. A gentleman of France. Italy, or Germany, who has entertained and lodged an Englishman at his house, when he afterwards meets with his guest at London, is asked to dinner. at the Saracen's head, the Turk's head, the Boar'shead.

head, or the Bear, eats raw beef and butter, drinks execrable port, and is allowed to pay his fhare of the reckoning.

But to return from this digreffion, which my feeling for the honour of my country obliged a mighty fox-hunter before the Lord; but now he is too fat and unwieldy to leapt ditches and five-bar gates; neverthelefs, he fill keeps a pack of hounds, which are well exercifed; and his huntfman every night entertains him with the adventures of the day's chafe, which he recites in a tone and terms that are extremely curious and fignificant. In the mean time, his broad brawn is fcratch'd by one of his grooms .--- This fellow, it feems, having no inclination to curry any beaft out of the ftable, was at great pains to fcollop his nails in fuch a manner that the blood followed at every ftroke.-----He was in hopes that he would be difinified from this difapreeable office, but the event turned out contrary to his expectation .- His mafter declared he was the best scratcher in the family; and now he will not fuffer any other fervant to draw a nail upon his carcafe.

know the is fentible of her own fuperior affluence.-In a word, the fpeaks well of no living foul, and has not one fingle friend in the world. Her hufband bates her mortally; but, although the brute is fometimes fo very powerful in him that he will have his own way, he generally truckles to her dominion, and dreads, like a fchool boy, the lafh of her tongue. On the other hand, fhe is afraid of provoking him too far, left he fhould make fome desperate effort to fhake off her yoke .--- She, therefore, acquiesces in the proofs he daily gives of his attachment to the liberty of an English freeholder, by faying and doing, at his own table, whatever gratifies the brutality of his difposition, or contributes to the eafe of his perfon. The houfe. though large, is neither elegant nor comfortable.----It looks like a great inn, crowded with travellers, who dine at the landlord's ordinary. where there is a great profusion of victuals and drink, but mine hoft feems to be misplaced; and I would rather dine upon filberts with a hermit, than feed upon venifon with a hog. The footmen might be aptly compared to the waiters of a tavern, if they were more ferviceable and lefs rapacious; but they are generally infolent and inattentive, and fo greedy, that, I think, I can dine better, and for lefs expence, at the Star and Garter in Pall-mall, than at our coufin's caftle in Yorkshire. The 'fquire is not only accommodated with a wife, but he is also bleffed with with an only fon, about two and twenty, juft returned from Italy, a complete fiddler and dillettante; and he flips no opportunity of manifefting the most perfect contempt for his own father.

When we arrived, there was a family of foreigners at the houfe, on an vifit to this virtuofo. with whom they had been acquainted at the Spa: it was the count de Melville, with his lady, on their way to Scotland. Mr Burdock had met with an accident, in confequence of which both the count and I would have retired. but the young gentleman and his mother infifted upon our flaying dinner; and their ferenity feemed to be fo little ruffled by what had happened, that we complied with their invitation. The 'fquire had been brought home over night in his post chaife, fo terribly belaboured about the pate. that he seemed to be in a state of stupefaction. and had ever fince remained speechless. A country apothecary, called Grieve, who lived in a neighbouring village, having been called to his affiftance, had let him blood, and applied a poultice to his head, declaring, that he had no fever nor any other bad fymptom but the lofs of fpeech, if he really had loft that faculty. But the young 'fquire faid this practitioner was an ignorantaccio, that there was a fracture in the cranium, and that there was a necessity for having him trepanned without loss of time. His mother, efpoufing this opinion, had fent an exprefs prefs to York for a furgeon to perform the operation, and he was already come with his 'prentice and instruments. Having examined the patient's head, he began to prepare his dreffings; though Grieve still retained his first opinion that there was no fracture, and was the more confirmed in it as the 'fquire had passed the night in profound fleep, uninterrupted by any catching or convultion. The York furgeon faid he could not tell whether there was a fracture, until he fhould take off the fcalp; but, at any rate, the operation might be of fervice, in giving vent to any blood that might be extravafated, either above or below the dura mater. The lady and her fon were clear for trying the experiment: and Grieve was dismiffed with some marks of contempt, which, perhaps, he owed to the plainness of his appearance. He seemed to be' about the middle age, wore his own black hair without any fort of dreffing; by his garb. one would have taken him for a quaker, but he had none of the ftiffness of that sect, on the contrary, he was very fubmiffive, respectful, and remarkably, taciturn.

Leaving the ladies in an apartment by themfelves, we adjourned to the patient's chamber, where the dreffings and inftruments were difplayed in order upon a pewter difh. The operator, laying afide his coat and periwig, equipped himfelf with a night cap, apron, and fleeves, while his 'prentice and footman, feizing the 'fquir's head.

head, began to place it in a proper posture.____ But mark what followed .--- The patient, bolting upright in the bed, collared each of these afliftants with the grafp of Hercules, exclaiming, in a bellowing tone, "I ha'n't lived fo long in "Yorkfhire to be trepanned by fuch vermin as "yon;" and leaping on the floor, put on his breeches quietly, to the aftonishment of us all. The furgeon still infisted upon the operation, alledging it was now plain that the brain was injured, and defiring the fervants to put him into bed again; but no body would venture to execute his orders, or even to interpofe: when the 'fquire turned him and his affiftants out of doors. and threw his apparatus out at the window. . Having thus afferted his prerogative, and put on his clothes with the help of a valet, the count, with my nephew and me, were introduced by his fon, and received with his usual file of ruffic civility; then turning to fignor Macaroni. with a farcaftic grin, "I tell thee what, Dick. "(faid he) a man's fcull is not to be bored every "time his head is broken; and I'll convince thee "and thy mother, that I know as many tricks "as e'er an old fox in the Weft Riding."

We afterwards underftood he had quarrelled at a public houfe with an excifeman, whom he challenged to a bout at fingle-ftick, in which he had been worfted; and that the fhame of this defeat had tied up his tongue. As for madam, fhe had fluewn no concern for his difafter, and now

١

now heard of his recovery without emotion .--She had taken fome little notice of my fifter and niece, though rather with a view to indulge her own petulance, then out of any fentiment of regard to our 'family.----She faid Liddy was a fright, and ordered her woman to adjust her head before dinner; but fhe would not meddle . with Tabby, whole fpirit, fhe foon perceived, was not to be irritated with impunity. At table, fhe acknowledged me fo far as to fay fhe had heard of my father; though fhe hinted, that he had difobliged her family by making a poor match in Wales. She was difagreeably familiar in her inquiries about our circumstances; and asked, if I intended to bring up my nephew to the law. I told her, that, as he had an independent fortune, he fhould follow no profession but that of a country gentleman; and that I was not without hopes of procuring for him a feat in parliament .----- " Pray, coufin, (faid fhe) what "may his fortune be?" When I answered, that, with what I flould be able to give him, he would have better than two thousand a-year, fhe replied, with a difdainful tofs of her head, that it would be impossible for him to preferve his independence on fuch a paltry provision.

Not a little nettled at this arrogant remark, I told her, I had the honour to fit in parliament with her father, when he had little more than half that income; and I believed there was not a more independent and incorruptible member in the houfe. "Ay; but times are changed. (cried " the 'fquire)-----Country gentlemen now-a-days "live after another fashion.-----My table alone "ftands me in a cool thousand a-quarter, though "I raife my own ftock, import my own liquors, "and have every thing at the first hand.-----"True it is, I keep open house, and receive all "comers, for the honour of Old England." "If "that be the cafe, (faid I) 'tis a wonder you "can maintain it at fo fmall an expence; but "every private gentleman is not expected to "keep a caravansera for the accommodation of "travellers: indeed, if every individual lived in "the fame ftile, you would not have fuch a "number of guefts at your table; of confequence "your hospitality would not shine so bright for "the glory of the Weft Riding." The young 'fquire, tickled by this ironical obfervation, exclaimed, "O che burla !"-His mother eyed me in filence with a fupercilious air; and the father of the feaft, taking a bumper of October, "My "fervice to you, cousin Bramble, (faid he) I "have always heard there was fomething keen "and biting in the air of the Welch mountains."

the

I was much pleafed with the count de Melville, who is fenfible, eafy, and polite; and the countefs is the most amiable woman I ever beheld. In the afternoon they took leave of their entertainers, and the young gentleman, mounting his horfe, undertook to conduct their coach through the park, while one of their fer-Vol. I. V vants vants rode round to give notice to the reft. whom they had left at a public house on the The moment their backs were turned. road the centorious dæmon took poffession of our Yorkshire landlady and our fister Tabitha .-----The former obferved, that the countefs was a good fort of a body, but totally ignorant of good breeding, confequently awkward in her addrefs. The 'fquire faid he did not pretend to the breeding of any thing but colts; but that the jade would be very handfome, if fhe was a little more in flesh. "Handsome! (cried Tab-"by) fhe has indeed a pair of black eyes with-"out any meaning; but then there is not a good "feature in her face." "I know not what you " call good features in Wales, (replied our land-"lord); but they'll pafs in Yorkshire." Then turning to Liddy, he added. "What fay you, "my pretty Redftreak ?-----what is your opini-"on of the countefs?" "I think, (cried Liddy. "with great emotion) fhe's an angel." Tabby chid her for talking with fuch freedom in company; and the lady of the house faid, in a contemptuous tone. fhe fupposed Mis had been brought up at fome country boardingfchool.

Our converfation was fuddenly interrupted by the young gentleman, who galloped into the yard all aghaft, exclaiming, that the coach was attacked by a great number of highwaymen. My nephew and I rufhing out, found his own and his fervant's horfe ready fuddled in the ftable, with with piftols in the caps.----We mounted in- . ftantly, ordering Clinker and Dutton to follow with all pollible expedition ; but notwithftanding all the speed we could make, the action was over before we arrived, and the count with his lady, fafe lodged at the houfe of Grieve, who had fignalized himfelf in a very remarkable manner on this occasion. At the turning of a lane, that led to the village where the count's fervants remained, a couple of robbers a horfeback fuddenly appeared, with their piftols advanced: one kept the coachman in awe, and the other demanded the count's money, while the young 'fquire went off at full speed, without ever cafting a look behind. The count defiring the thief to withdraw his piftol, as the lady was in great terror, delivered his purfe without making the leaft resistance: but not fatisfied with this booty, which was pretty confiderable, the rafcal infifted upon rifling her of her ear rings and necklace, and the countefs fcreamed with affright. Her hufband, exafperated at the violence with which fhe was threatened, wrefted the piftol out of the fellow's hand, and turning it upon him, inapped it in his face; but the robber knowing there was no charge in it, drew another from his bosom, and in all probability would have killed him on the fpot, had not his life been faved by a wonderful interpofition. Grieve, the apothecary, chancing to pais that very instant, ran up to the coach, and with a V 2 crah.

crab-flick, which was all the weapon he had, brought the fellow to the ground with the firft blow; then feizing his piftol, prefented it to his colleague, who fired his piece at random, and fled without further opposition. The other was fecured by the affiftance of the count and the coachman; and his legs being tied unter the belly of his own horfe, Grieve conducted him to the village, whither also the carriage proceeded. It was with great difficulty the countefs could be kept from fwooning; but at last fhe was happily conveyed to the house of the apothecary, who went into the fhop to prepare fome drops for her, while his wife and daughter administered to her in another apartment.

I found the count ftanding in the kitchen with the parfon of the parish, and expressing much impatience to fee his protector, whom as vet he had fcarce found time to thank for the effential fervice he had done him and the countefs.-The daughter paffing at the fame time with a glafs of water, Monfieur de Melville could not help taking notice of her figure, which was ftrikingly engaging---- "Av. (faid the parfon) "fhe is the prettieft girl, and the beft girl in all "my parish; and if I could give my fon an "eftate of then thousand a-year, he should have "my confent to lay it at her feet. If Mr Grieve "had been as folicitous about getting money, "as he has been in performing all the duties of "a primitive Christian, Fy would not have hung 44 fo

"foi long upon his hand." "What is her name?" faid I. "Sixteen years ago (anfwered the Vi-"car) I chriftened her by the names of Seraphina "Melvilia." "Ha! what! how! (cried the "count eagerly) fure, you faid Seraphina Melvi-"lia." "I did; (faid he) Mr Grieve told me "thofe were the names of two noble perfons "abroad, to whom he had been obliged for mo-"re than life."

The count, without fpeaking another fyllable, rufhed into the parlour, crying, "This is your "god-daughter, my dear." Mrs Grieve, then feizing the countefs by the hand, exclaimed with great agitation, "O Madam!—O Sir!—I "am—I am your poor Eleanor.—This is my "Seraphina Melvilia.—O child! thefe are the "count and countefs of Melville, the generous "—the glorious benefactors of thy once unhap-"py parents."

The countefs rifing from her feat, threw her arms about the neck of the amiable Seraphina, and clafped her to her breaft with great tendernefs, while fhe herfelf was embraced by the weeping mother. This moving fcene was compleated by the entrance of Grieve himfelf, who falling on his knees before the count, "Behold "(faid he) a penitent, who at length can look "upon his patron without fhrinking." "Ah, "Ferdinand! (cried he, raifing and folding him "in his arms) the playfellow of my infancy— "the companion of my youth?—Is it to you V 3 "then

"then I am indebted for my life?" "Heaven "has heard my prayer, (faid the other) and "given me an opportunity to prove myfelf not "altogether unworthy of your elemency and "protection." He then kiffed the hand of the countefs, while monfieur de Melville faluted his wife and lovely daughter, and all of us were greatly affected by this pathetic recognition.

In a word. Grieve was no other than Ferdinand count Fathom, whofe adventures were printed many years ago. Being a fincere convert to virtue, he had changed his name, that he might elude the inquiries of the count, whofe generous allowance he determined to forego, that he might have no dependence but upon his own industry and moderation. He had accordingly fettled in this village as a practitioner in furgery and phyfic, and for fome years wreftled . with all the miferies of indigence; which however, he and his wife had borne with the most exemplary refignation. At length, by dint of unwearied attention to the duties of his profeffion, which he exercised with equal humanity and fuccefs, he had acquired a tolerable fhare of bufinefs among the farmers and common people, which enabled him to live in a decent man-He had been scarce ever seen to fmile; ner. was unaffectedly pious; and all the time he could fpare from the avocations of his employment he fpent in educating his daughter, and in fludying for his own improvement.----In fhort.

HUMPHRY CLINKER. 311

fhort, the adventurer Fathom was, under the name of Grieve, univerfally respected among the commonalty of this district. as a prodigy of learning and virtue. These particulars I learned from the vicar, when we quitted the room, that they might be under no reftraint in their mutual effutions. I make no doubt that Grieve will be prefied to leave off bufinefs, and reunite himfelf to the count's family; and as the countefs feemed extremely fond of his daughter. fhe will, in all probability, infift upon Seraphina's accompanying her to Scotland.

Having paid our compliments to thefe noble perfons, we returned to the 'fquire's, where we expected an invitation to pass the night, which was wet and raw; but, it feems, 'fquire Burdock's hospitality reached not fo far for the honour of Yorkshire: we therefore departed in the evening, and lay at an inn, where I caught cold.

In hope of riding it down before it could take fast hold on my constitution, I refolved to visit another relation, one Mr. Pimpernel, who lived about a dozen miles from the place where we lodged. Pimpernel, being the youngeft of four fons, was bred an attorney at Furnival's-inn; but all his elder brothers dying, he got himfelf called to the bar for the honour of his family, and foon after this preferment, fucceeded to his father's effate, which was very confiderable. He carried home with him all the knavifh chicanery of the lowest pettifogger, together with a wife whom VA whom he had purchased of a drayman for twenty pounds; and he foon found means to obtain a dedimus as an acting justice of peace. He is not only a fordid miler in his disposition, but his avarice is mingled with a fpirit of defpotifm, which is truly diabolical.-He is a brutal hufbaud. an unnatural parent, a harfh mafter, an oppreffive landlord, a litigious neighour, and a partial magistrate.---Friends he has none; and in point of hospitality and good breeding, our coufin Burdock is a prince in comparison of this ungracious miscreant, whose house is the lively reprefentation of a goal. Our reception was fuitable to the character I have fketched. Had it depended upon the wife, we fhould have been kindly treated. She is really a good fort of a woman, in fpite of her low original, and well respected in the county; but fhe has not interest. enough in her own house to command a draught of table beer, far lefs to beftow any kind of education on her children, who run about, like ragged colts, in a flate of nature ---- Pox on him! he is fuch a dirty fellow, that I have not patience to profecute the fubject.

By that time we reached Harrigate, I began to be vifited by certain rheumatic fymptoms. The Scotch lawyer, Mr. Micklewhimmen, recommended a hot bath of thefe waters io earneftly, that I was over perfuaded to try the experiment. ——He had ufed it often with fuccefs, and always ftaid an hour in the bath, which was a tub filled filled with Harrigate water, heated for the purpofe. If I could hardly bear the fmell of a fingle tumbler when cold, you may guefs how my nofe was regaled by the fleams arising from a hot bath of the fame fluid. At night, I was conducted into a dark hole on the ground floor, where the tub fmoked and ftunk like the pot of Acheron, in one corner, and in another flood a dirty bed provided with thick blankets, in which I was to fweat after coming out of the bath. My heart feemed to die within me when I entered this difinal bagnio, and found my brain affaulted by fuch infufferable effluvia-I curfed Micklewhimmen for not confidering that my organs were formed on this fide of the Tweed: but being aflumed to recoil upon the threshold, I fubmitted to the process.

· After having endured all but real fuffocation for above a quarter of an hour in the tub. I was moved to the bed and wrapped in blankets-There I lay a full hour panting with intelerable heat: but not the least moisture appearing on my fkin. I was carried to my own chamber, and naffed the night without clofing an eye, in fuch a flutter of spirits as rendered me the most milerable wretch in being. I fhould certainly have run diftracted, if the rarefaction of my blood, occafioned by that Stygian bath, had not burft the veffels, and produced a violent hæmorrhage, which, though dreadful and alarming, removed the horrible difquiet.----I loft two pounds of V 5 blood.

blood, and more, on this occafion; and find myfelf fill weak and languid; but, I believe, a little exercife will forward my recovery; and therefore I am refolved to fet out to-morrow for York, in my way to Scarborough, where I propofe to brace up my fibres by fea-bathing, which, I know, is one of your favourite fpecifics. There is, however, one difeafe, for which you have found as yet no fpecific, and that is old age, of which this tedious unconnected epiftle is an infallible fymptom:----what, therefore, connot be cured, muft be endured, by you, as well as by

Yours,

Harrigate, June 16.

MATT. BRAMBLE.

To Sir WATKIN PHILLIPS, Bart. of Jefus College, Oxon.

DEAR KNIGHT,

THE manner of living at Harrigate was fo agreeable to my difposition, that I left the place with fome regret—Our aunt Tabby would have probably made fome objection to our departing fo foon, had not an accident embroiled her with Mr. Micklewhimmen, the Scots advocate, on whose heart she had been practising, from the fecond fecond day after our arrival-That original. though feemingly precluded from the use of his limbs, had turned his genius to good account--In fhort, by dint of groaning, and whining, he had excited the compatiion of the company fo effectually, that an old lady, who occupied the very best apartment in the house, gave it up for his eafe and convenience. When his man led him into the Long Room, all the females were immediately in commotion-One fet an elbowchair: another fhook up the cufhion; a third brought a ftool; and a fourth a pillow, for the accommodation of his feet-Two ladies (of whom Tabby was always one) fupported him into the dining-room, and placed him properly on the table; and his tafte was indulged with a fucceffion of delicacies, culled by their fair hands. All this attention he repaid with a profusion of compliments and benedictions, which were not the lefs agreeable for being delivered in the Scottifly dialect. As for Mrs. Tabitha, his refpects were particularly addreffed to her, and he did not fail to mingle them with religious reflections, touching free grace, knowing her bias to Methodifm, which he also professed upon a calvinistical model.

For my part I could not help thinking this lawyer was not fuch an invalid as he pretended to be. I obferved he eat very heartily three times a day; and though his bottle was marked ftomachic tincture, he had recourfe to it fo often,

ten. and feemed to fwallow it with fuch peculiar relifh, that I fuspected it was not compound. ed in the apothecary's fhop, or the chemist's laboratory. One day, while he was earnest in difcourfe with Mrs. Tabitha, and his fervant had gone out on fome occasion or other. I dexterously exchanged the labels, and fituation of his bottle and mine; and having tafted his tincture; found it was excellent claret. I forthwith handed it about to fome of my neighbours, and it was quite emptied before Mr Micklewhimmen had occafion to repeat his draught. At length, turning about, he took hold of my bottle instead of his own, and, filling a large glafs; drank to the health of Mrs. Tabitha-It had fcarce touched his lips, when he perceived the change which had been put upon him, and was at first a little out of countenance-He feemed to retire within himfelf, in order to deliberate, and in half a minute his refolution was taken; addreffing himfelf to our quarter, "I give the gentleman "cradit for his wit (faid he); it was a gude "practical joke; but fometimes bi joci in seria "ducunt mala-----I hope, for his own fake, "he has na drank all the liccor; for it was a "vara poorful infusion of jallap in Bourdeaux wi-"ne: as it's possible he may ha ta'en fic a dofe "as will produce a terrible cataftrophe in his ain "hooels."---

By far the greater part of the contents had fallen to the fhare of a young clothier from Leeds.

Leeds, who had come to make a figure at Harrigate, and was, in effect, a great coxcomb in his way. It was with a view to laugh at his fellow-guefts, as well as to mortify the lawyer that he had emptied the bottle, when it came to his turn, and he had laughed accordingly: but now his mirth gave way to his apprehenfion -He began to fpit, to make wry faces, and writhe himfelf into various contorfions "Damn the ftuff! (cried he) I thought it had a "villainous twang-----pah! He that would co-"zen a Scot, mun get oop betimes, and take "Old Scratch for his counfellor-" "In troth. "mefter what d'ye ca'um, (replied the lawyer) "your wit has run you into a filthy puddle----"I'm truly confarned for your waeful cafe-The "beft advice I can give you in fic a delemma, is "to fend an express to Rippon for doctor Waugh. "without delay; and, in the mean time, fwal-"low all the oil and butter you can find in the "hoofe, to defend your poor ftomach and intaiti-"nes from the villication of the particles of the "jallap, which is vara violent, even when taken "in moderation."

The poor clothier's torments had already begun: he retired, roaring with pain, to his own chamber; the oil was fwallowed, and the doctor fent for; but before he arrived, the mifera-'ble patient had made fuch difcharges upwards and downwards, that nothing remained to give him further offence; and this double evacuation was

317

was produced by imagination alone; for what he had drank was genuine wine of Bourdeaux, which the lawyer had brought from Scotland for his own private ufe. The clothier finding the joke turn out fo expensive and difagreeable, quitted the house next morning, leaving the triumph to Micklewimmen, who enjoyed it internally, without any outward figns of exultation; on the contrary, he affected to pity the young man for what he had fuffered, and acquired fresh credit from this shew of moderation.

It was about the middle of the night, which fucceeded this adventure, that the vent of the kitchen chimney being foul, the foot took fire, and the alarm was given in a dreadful manner-Every body leaped naked out of bed, and in a minute the whole house was filled with cries and confusion-There were two stairs in the house, and to these we naturally ran; but they were both 'to blocked up by the people preffing one upon another, that it feemed impossible to pafs, without throwing down and drampling upon the women. In the midit of this anarchy. Mr Micklewhimmen, with a leathern portmanteau on his back, came running as nimbly as a buck along the paffage; and Tabby, in her un. der-petticoat. endeavouring to hook him under the arm, that fhe might escape through his protection, he very fairly pushed her down, crying, "Na, na, gude faith, charity begins at hame !" Without paying the least respect to the shrieks and

and intreaties of his female friends, he charged through the midft of the crowd, overturning every thing that opposed him. and actually fought his way to the bottom of the ftair-cafe-By this time Clinker had found a ladder. by which he entered the window of my uncle's chamber, where our family was affembled, and proposed that we should make our exit successively by that conveyance. The 'fquire exhorted his fifter to begin the descent; but, before the could refolve, her woman, Mrs Winifred Ienkins, in a transport of terror, threw herself out at the window upon the ladder, while Humphry dropped upon the ground, that he might receive her in her defcent-This maiden was just as fhe had started out of bed, the moon shone very bright, and a fresh breeze of wind blowing, none of Mrs Winifred's beauties could poffibly efcape the view of the fortunate Clinker, whole heart was not able to withfrand the united force of fo many charms; at least, I am much mistaken. if he has not been her humble flave from that moment-He received her in his arms, and, giving her his coat to protect her from the weather, afcended again with admirable dexterity.

At that inftant, the landlord of the house called out with an audible voice, that the fire was extinguished, and the ladies had nothing further to fear: this was a welcome note to the audience, and produced an immediate effect; the shrieking ceased, and a confused found of expostulation

٩

tion enfued. I conducted Mrs. Tabitha and my fifter to their own chamber, where Liddy fainted away : but was foon brought to herfelf. Then I went to offer my fervice to the other ladies, who might want affiftance-----They were all founding through the paffage to their feveral apartments; and as the thorough-fair was lighted by two lamps, I had a pretty good observation of them in their transit; but, as most of them were naked to the fmock. and all their heads fhrowded in huge night-caps, I could not distinguish one face from another, though I recognized fome of their voices-Thefe were generally plaintiff; fome wept, fome fcolded, and fome prayed _____ l lifted up one poor old gentlewoman, who had been overturned and fore bruifed by a multitude of feet; and this was also the cafe with the lame parfon from Northhumberland. whom Micklewhimmen had in his paffage overthrown, though not with impunity; for the cripple, in falling, gave him fuch a good pelt on the head with his crutch, that the blood followed.

As for this lawyer, he waited below till the hurly-burly was over, and then ftole foftly to his owm chamber, from whence he did not venture to make a fecond fally till eleven in the forenoon, when he was led into the public room by his own fervant and another affiftant, groaning moft woefully, with a bloody napkin round his head. But things were greatly altered—The felfifth felfish brutality of his behaviour on the frairs had fteeled their hearts againft all his arts and addrefs -----Not a foul offered to accommodate him with chair, cufhion, or footftool; fo that he was obliged to fit down on a hard wooden bench-In that polition. he looked around with a rueful afpect, and, bowing very low, faid, in a whining tone, "Your most humble "fervant, ladies-Fire is a dreadful calamity-" "Fire purifies gold, and it tries friendship, (cried "Mrs. Tabitha, bridling.)" "Yea, Madam, (re-"plied-Micklewhimmen,) and it tries difcretion "alfo-----" If diferention confifts in forfaking a "friend in adverfity, you are eminently pofief-"fed of that virtue, (refumed our aunt)." "Na. "Madam, (rejoined the advocate) well I wot, I "cannot claim any merit from the mode of my " retreat-Ye'll pleafe to obferve, ladies, the-"re are twa independent principles that actuate "our nature-One is inftinct, which we have "in common with the brute creation, and the "other is reafon-Noo, in certain great "emergencies, when the faculty of reafon is "fufpended, inftinct takes the lead, and, when "this predominates, having no affinity with rea-"fon. it pays no fort of regard to its connec-"tions: it only operates for the prefervation of "the individual, and that by the most expedi-"tious and effectual means; therefore, begging "your pardon, ladies, I'm no accountable in Vol. I. х foro

"foro confcientiae, for what I did, while under "the influence of this irrefiftible pooer."

Here my uncle interpofed, "I fhould be glad "to know, (faid he) whether it was inftinct "that prompted you to retreat with bag and "baggage; for, I think, you had a portmanteau "on your fhoulder-" The lawyer answered, without hefitation, "Gif I might tell my mind "freely, withoot incurring the fuspicion of pre-"fumption, I fhould think it was fomething "fuperior to either reafon or inftinct which fug-"gested that measure, and this on a twafald ac-"coont: in the first place, the portmanteau con-"tained the writings of a worthy nobleman's "eftate; and their being burned, would have "occafioned a lofs that could not be repaired: " fecondly, my good angel feems to have laid "the portmantle on my fhoulders, by way of "defence, to fuftain the violence of a most in-"human blow, from the crutch of a reverend "clergyman; which, even in fpite of that "medium, hath wounded me forely, even "unto the pericranium." "By your own doc-"trine (cried the parfon, who chanced to be "present) I am not accountable for the blow, "which was the effect of inftinct." "I crave " your pardon, reverend Sir, (faid the other) "inftinct never acts but for the prefervation of "the individual; but your prefervation was out "of the cafe-You had already received the "damage, and therefore the blow must be im-"puted

ŧ

"puted to revenge, which is a finful paffion, "that ill becomes any Christian, especially a "Protestant divine; and let me tell you, most "reverend doctor, gin I had a mind to plea, "the law would hauld my libel relevant." "Why, "the damage is pretty equal on both fides (cried "the parson); your head is broke, and my "crutch is fnapped in the middle—Now, if "you will repair the one, I will be at the ex-"pence of curing the other."

This fally raifed the laugh against Micklewhimmen, who began to look grave; when my uncle, in order to change the difcourfe, obferyed, that inftinct had been very kind to him in another respect, for it had restored to him the use of his limbs, which, in his exit, he had moved with furprifing agility .----- He replied, that it was the nature of fear to brace up the nerves; and mentioned fome furprifing feats of ftrength and activity performed by perfons under the impulse of terror; but he complained, that in his own particular, the effects had ceased. when the caufe was taken away.----The 'fquire faid he would lay a tea-drinking on his head, that he fhould dance a Scots measure. without making a falfe ftep; and the advocate grinning, called for the piper.-----A fiedler being at hand, this original farted up, with his bloody napkin over his black tye-periwig, and acquitted himfelf in fuch a manner, as excited the mirth of the whole company; but he could X 2 not not regain the good graces of Mrs Tabby', who did not underftand the principle of inftinct; and the lawyer did not think it worth his while to proceed to further demonstration.

.

From Harrigate we came hither, by the way of York, and here we fhall tarry fome days, as my uncle and Tabitha are both refolved to make use of the waters. Scarborough, though a paltry town, is romantic, from its fituation along a cliff that overhangs the fea. The harbour is formed by a fmall elbow of land that runs out as a natural mole, directly opposite to the town; and on that fide is the caftle, which flands very high. of confiderable extent, and, before the invention of gunpowder, was counted impreg-At the other end of Scarborough are nahle. two public rooms for the use of the company who refort to this place in the fummer, to drink the waters and bathe in the fea, and the diverfions are pretty much on the fame footing here as at Bath. The Spa is a little way beyond the town, on this fide, under a cliff, within a few paces of the fea, and thither the drinkers go every morning in difhabille; but the defcent is by a great number of fteps, which invalids find very inconvenient. Betwixt the well and the harbour, the bathing machines are ranged along the beach, with all their proper utenfils and attendants-----You have never feen one of thefe machines-----Image to yourfelf a fmall, fnug, wooden chamber, fixed upon a wheel-carriage, having having a door at each end, and on each fide a little window above, a bench below-----The bather, afcending into this apartment by wooden steps, shuts himself in, and begins to undrefs, while the attendant yokes a horfe to the end next the fea, and draws the carriage forwards, till the furface of the water is on a level with the floor of the dreffing room, then he moves and fixes the horfe to the other end____The perfon within, being ftripped, opens the door to the fea-ward, where he finds the guide ready, and plunges headlong into the water-After having bathed, he reafcends into the apartment, by the fteps which had been fhifted for that purpofe, and puts on his clothes at his leifure. while the carriage is drawn back again upon the dry land; fo that he has nothing further to do, but to open the door, and come down as he went up-Should he be fo weak or ill as to require a fervant to put off and on his clothes, there is room enough in the apartment for half a dozen people. The guides who attend the ladies in the water, are of their own fex, and they and the female pathers have a drefs of flannel for the fea; nay, they are provided with other conveniencies for the fupport of decorum. A certain number of the machines are fitted with tilts, that project from the fea-ward ends of them. fo as to fcreen the bathers from the view of all perfons whatfoever-The beach is admirably adapted for this practice, the defcent X 3 being being gently gradual, and the fand foft as yelvet; but then the machines can be used only at a certain time of the tide, which varies every day; fo that fometimes the bathers are obliged to rife very early in the morning-For my part. I love fwimming as an exercise, and can enjoy it at all times of the tide, without the formality of an apparatus .--- You and I have often plunged together into the lfis; but the fea is a much more noble bath, for health as well as pleafure. You cannot conceive what a flow of fpirits it gives, and how it braces every finew of the human frame. Were I to enumerate half the difeafes which are every day cured by feabathing, you might justly fay you had received a treatife, instead of a letter, from

Your affectionate friend,

and fervant.

Scarborough, July 1.

J. MELFORD.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.

	······································
	ROTANOX
i	2014
-	· · · ·

